PUNISHING THE CORRUPTORS.

In several election cases it was found that corruption had existed to a considerable extent, but it was not established, to the satisfaction of the judges, that the corruptors were agents of the candidates. In one instance seven voters were reported for corrupt practices, which means that they will be disqualified, deprived of their franchise, for several years. The law is thus and now taking a direction which the Whig has always advocated. So long as men can be found to accept bribes the bribing will be done, and the candidate, if really unaware of the proceedings, should not be called to account for them. But bribers and bribed should be made to feel that the law must be respected, and if they are held up, as they can be, and as many of them have been during the recent election trials, they will cease to be a torment and menace in the community. The mere reporting of the offenders, and the loss of votes, will not do. The jail will have to be occupied by a few of the worst corruptors as an object lesson to others who are following in their footsteps and surely in need of some re-

EXCUSING THE FALL.

The Toronto News, which rivals the Mail in its devotion to conservatism, excuses Mr. St. John's failure to establish corrup tion in his constituency to the disadvantage and defeat of his opponent. Our contem porary says that Mr. St. John proceeded on the assurance that he had a good case. He beard a great deal, but it did not materialize under the skillful manipulation of his counsel, Mr. Bristol.

This experience is worth something to Mr. So. John, as the experience in the Kingston election case should be worth something to those who had to back the protest and paysome of the cost of prosecu ting it. The tories went into the legal business with great gusto. They were going to show how Whitney had been unborsed. They heard some really dread ful things, and things that had to be ex posed and atoned for in the interest of the righteousness which exalteth a no much suspicion were made by evil tongues, and the confession followed in York, as in Kingston, that the evidence at the disposal of the party did not warrant the im portance that had been attached to it.

How bumiliating ! After the elections Mr. Whitney caused it to be known that there would not be a withdrawal of any election petition put in by the conservatives. There would be no compromise with the enemy. But the sawing off proceeded just the same, until the number of cases that went to a hearing was comparatively small. Now, and with the would appear to be unfortunate that there were any protests. The party has not gained anything by them but the wisdom that has come rather high.

ELECTORS SHOULD REFLECT.

The criticiem of the Mooers elevator is ecarcely just to an enterprising citizen. It will be remembered that the city council offered a bonus of $25,000 to anyone who would build this convenience, so necessary to the maintenance of the port of Kingston as a transportation point. Alderman Mooers, after the offer had long gone begging, took it up with more enterprise than people thought anyone in Kingston was capable of harboring. The risk that he underwent should not easily be forgotten by the citizens, and it should also be remembered that his work was the means of bringing the Montreal transportation company also to the front with an elevator which has cost $160,000, is the finest on the lakes, and is a guarantee that this very extensive company is anchored for all time to come. When the Mooers company built the elevator they did not anticipate the removal of the Kingston and Montreal forwarding company's barge line, and were taken short at the very opening of the reason, when it was impossible to secure other connections. No one in his senses would build an elevator expecting to keep it idle, and the very fact that will include all our favorite the company have so much money in this building is sufficient guarantee that it will be made useful. The company's loss is greater than the people's. Besides the entering of the company into this business has led to the building of a thur mil! one of the finest of the small mills to Canada, thus adding another industry to the city. The people can reasonably give al derman Mooers the credit he deserves, and refrain from running down an institution because it is not immediately successful. The history of the fair ground, some of the hotels, the car works, the vehicle works and athletic ground are evidences of the lack of proper spirit in Kingstonians. They go enthusiastically into a

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The weather is very suitable for the hee and toe exercise of the municipal candidates. And some of them are doing a lot of sprinting.

It is not often that a member of parliament resigns because he is out of love with his job. But that is what J. F. Quite, of Gaspe, has done. He has not made the proposal legally, but that he has made it at all is significant in this particular year of grace.

The Ca holic Register is not in love with Mr. Mulock's new stamp, and especially with his quotation from the jubilee ode, which was written by the author of the "Epic of Hades." The Register says the one is as much a hades of an ode as the other was a hades of an ep'c.

Toronto was regarded as a very pious city, a city of great spiritual fervour and religious echolarship, and yet here is "Bystander" with a lot of questions about the authenticity of the bible and the immortality of the soul. Is he too much occupied to attend one of the local seminaries?

Were the mayoralty nominations legally made? That is the question that now agitates the people. There ought to be no mietake about it. The law is easily read and should have been followed to the lebter. Any material change in it—as to how the nominations should be madecould have seen advertised.

Protest is made by patriotic Americans against the teaching of the Polish lan guage in the Buffilo schools. It is con tended that English is the national language, and that English is all that should be publicly taught. Hear, hoar. The other idea is the emanation of a ward heeler who does not care what is taught so long as he gets the Polish vote.

The conservative party will have a nice time of it ignoring the French or turning them down politically. It is the wildest proposal a disrupted party could make. It's an evidence that rock bottom, politi cally, has been reached, and that before any progress can be made towards reconstruction and reform new leaders, and men with new ideae, must be found.

According to Stead the czar of the Russias is a man the people must love. Stead calls him the emperor of peace, and writes in the most gushing way about the im pressions the young man made upon him during a recent visit to St. Petersburg. Stead is a wonder to many. He vibrates so much between sensationalism and sentimentalism that one never knows when to take him seriously.

Fancy the postponement of a trial, for misdemeanor on a public indictment, the true bill of a grand jury, pending an election in the legislature of a United States senator. That is what has happened in Philadelphia. The offender is Senator Quay, who is charged with wrongfully using hundreds of thousands of dollars of state funds for personal and purty pur poses. Administration of justice touched

The Toronto children's society is being criticised for alleged interference in the religion of children it claims for protection. Surely that matter is very easily adjusted. In Kingston the first step taken by the children's aid workers was to secure the co-operation of Roman Catholics, both ladies and gentlemen, and no better work ers could be desired. Harmony has mark. ed the proceedings. Protestant members defer entirely to the advice of their Roman Catholic colleagues in the disposal of children of that religion. Toronto can quite often take a leaf from the books of the smaller cities.

The close of the season of 1898 should make the people of Kingston grateful to Hon. J. l. Tarte for favors received. It was his advocacy with his colleagues which led to the dredging of Kingston harbor one of the most effective works ever done here. Then to the final recommendation of his department is due the contract for the drill shed, the farnishing of work to a great many men, the providing of the military with a proper armory and the prospective improvement of a section of the city too long neglected. By all means, politics aside, Mr. Tarte deserves that every citizen should wish him a happy New Year.

DIED AT DETROIT.

Andrew Wallace, The "soud Gray Poet," Laid To Rest.

The death is announced of Andrew Wanless, which sad event occurred at Detroit. Deceased was familiarly known as "Our Good Gray Poet,"! and for many years conducted a bookstore Detroit. He leaves behind him the record of a long life devoted to literature, and, in addition to this, a large collection of original writings in poetry and prose of which any man might well feel proud. He had also amassed a library of 22,000 volumes, and his books vied even with his warmest friends in holding a place in his affections. His fame in literature was widespread, and his or inions as a connoisseur of books were eagerly sought and respected.

Born in 1824 in the little village of Longiarmacus, Berwickshire, in the heart of the Lammermoor hills, Scotland. Mr. Wanless had a good oppor tunity to secure an excellent education. His father was a graduate of the university of Edinburgh, and was for over filty years a respected schoolmaster. He was related very closely to the famous Douglas clan. Early in life Andrew Wanless showed inclinahe was bound as an apprentice to the book-binding trade. While serving his "time" he dabbled in literature and wrote poems for the newspapers. At the close of his apprenticeship he located in Edingburgh as foreman of a bindery. There he joined an arts' society, learned the French language and numbered among his most intimate friends many notable personages who admired the man for his broad literary attainments. He bound many of the manuscript copies of Sir Wallace Scott's novels.

A CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT.

The Sabbath School "cholars Having Merry

The scholars of Cooke's church Sabbath school enjoyed their Christmas entertainment last evening, when the school room was crowded with happy children and their parents The programme for the evening was a Christma- cantaba, ably presented by the infant class and junior pupile, under the direction of Miss Ethel Jones and Miss Edith Newman, the latter looking after the musical lections The little scholars were at bired in fancy colored dresses to represent holly, mistletoe and snow, and they presented a cute picture as they went through their exercises behind the footlights The solo work was attended to by Mies Nita Lemmon, and recitations by Miss Mabel Dunlop and Willie Pipe. A the close of the canbaba each pupil was given a box of candy. D A. Shaw, sup erintendent, occupied the chair.

Uhristmas Tree At Chalmers'. This year the annual Sabbath school en tertainment at Chalmers' church took the the form of a Christmas tree and literary concert. It was held in the Sabbath school room of the church last evening, and turned out a great success. Mr Ward, the superintendent, with an efficient corps of workers, had provided a good programme which was most successfully carried out.

Music, instrumental and vocal, songs and choruses, dialogues, readings and recitations, boys' drill, phonograph, speeches and songe, and so forth, were there One of the pleasant features of the ocea sion was the cordiality with which the scholars and members of the teaching staff, and ladies and gentlemen outside the school, rendered their valuable assistance. And the audience was as large as could be accommodated in the building, and ap peared much pleased with the programme.

There were gifts on the tree and in two large boxes near by for all the young peo ple-a large orange, a sucker candy, a nandful of raisins, a handful of nuts, and a handful of assorted candies for each. The tip boe of expectation was reached as the arrival of Santa Claus was announced. And sure enough he came, and made s most proper, if brief, speech, with a faraway tone to his voice, not just quite like this world. They could hear the tinkling of the reindeer bells outside. Then be distributed the gifts, and a happy meet-

First Baptist Church.

The Sunday school entertainment of the First Baptist church was in every way a success. There was a good and appreciative audience. The scholars acquitted themselves creditably, showing careful training. The Christmas trees (here were three of them) were all beauties, nicely decorated and well laden, two of them with gifts for echolars and teachers, the third with many useful contributions for the poor. This tree was under the auspices of the junior endeavor society, and is a new feature in our Christmas celebration worthy of notice. Is at racted much attention, and its bountiful supply will be a thrice repeated blessing to the givers, many of them not members of the society, to the young distributors, and to the receivers. At the close of the programme many prizes were distributed, and in the primary department every child received a present. In addition to the exercises by the children, Miss Pearl Moulton gave an excellent reci ation and the choir, under the leadership of Mr. Jacobe, sang several pleasing choruses.

Tables laden with delicacies and flowers were spread in the ante room, and all enjoyed a very happy time around the feetive board. Dr. Evans gave dramatic recitations in faultless style After the chairman, T. J. HE DOESN'T PLAY POKER.

The Startling Incident That Ended

His Interest In the Game. "I can't tell any story of big sums staked and lost, nor of any great hands made on freak draws, but I can tell you a true story of why I haven't touched a card in the past 14 years, and why, if I should live to be as old as Methusaleh, I will never play again," said Mr. George O. Summers. "You often hear men say they are going to quit, but they never do. took no vow, made no promise to abstain, but ever since a certain evening in the year 1884 card playing has had no charm or me.

"A party of us had gathered in a friend's room, and the expectation was that it would be a long session, for most of us were poker flends and, win or lose, would stay till the game broke up. In the crowd was a delicate young fellow, and it happened that along about 3 o'clock a. m. he was a couple of hundred dollars winner. We had started in at 6 the previous evening, and it was evident that nine hours' of play had tired him completely out; but, being dead game, he didn't want to quit, especially as he was ahead. Seeing he was undergoing punishment, I suggested that it was time to quit. A vigorous protest at once came from the

" 'But our friend here is fagged out,' I said, 'and as it is almost day we can ad journ and resume another time.

"Then the others appealed to the young fellow, and with great cheerfulness he answered: 'Yes, I'm willing to play on as long as I can sit in my chair. In fact, I'm willing to agree to play till somebody

"He meant it as a jest, but scarcely had he uttered the words than I saw him turn ghastly pale. His head fell forward, and before any one could reach out to catch him he had fallen to the floor insensible. The whole party was for a moment over--come with terror, and then we set to work to revive him. He had only fainted from weakness, and yet the incident was so tragic in its nature that I could not have been more impressed by it if he had actually dropped dead. And that is why all the fascination of poker completely left

THE CHINESE CHOPSTICK.

And the Question, Was Middle Amer ica Peopled From Asia?

With the evidences of Asiatic contact supposed to be so strong in Central America one might have imagined that so useful a device as the simple chopsticks would have secured a footing. These two sticks, held in one hand and known in China as 'hasteners or nimble lads,' are certainly the most useful, the most economical, and the most efficient device for their purposes ever invented by man.

Throughout that vast Asian region, embracing a population of 500,000,000, the chopstick is used as a substitute for fork, tongs and certain forms of tweezers. Even fish, omelet and cake are separated with the chopsticks, and the cook, the street scavenger and the watch repairer use this device in the form of iron, long bamboo and delicate ivory. The bamboo chopstick was known in China 1000 B. C., and shortly after this date the ivory form was devised. Their use is one of great antiquity in Japan, as attested by references to it in the ancient records of that country. One may search in vain for the trace of any object in the nature of a chopstick in Central or South America. Knitting needles of wood are found in the workbaskets associated with ancient Peruvian mummies, but the chopstick has not been found. Curious pottery rests for the chopsticks are exhumed in Japan, but even this enduring testimony of its early use is yet to be revealed in this country .- "Was Middle America Peopled From Asia?" by Professor E. S. Morse, in Popular Science

Nut Foods. Several physicians in different parts of Europe have been making experiments as to the nutritive and medicinal qualities of all kinds of nuts and have advanced views favoring their use as food under certain conditions for special diseases. Nuts contain a special kind of salt especially adapted for lubricating or softening the muscles of the arteries. Some practitioners claim that elderly people would be benefited by a more extensive nut diet. The only evil to be overcome is that the nut meats should be thoroughly masticated, so that no hard pieces may enter the digestive or-

A Stingy King.

In the beginning of the eighteenth century the now so powerful German empire was nothing more than the little kingdom of Prussia, having just dropped its title of duchy of Brandenburg. The country was very poor and the military discipline very harsh. Frederick William I was hard, cross and stingy and did not even know what it was to make a present. His reputation was so widely spread that it became a byword to say that a man had worked for the king of Prussia when he had done an unprofitable task.
