Season's New Goods - Custom House Open - Rarely Filled.

THOUSAND ISLAND PARK, August 30 - The season of '97 on the St. Lawrence is drawing to a close. On a whole it has been all the most sanguine expected. Some of the hotels have done all they could wish, while others have exceeded their usual limits. The cottages in their usual style, but beside having to secure sleeping apartments in cottages for quite a number of its guests. The steamers are still doing a big business, and if the fine weather continues a great many will remain on the river until the 15th September.

The Murray Hill hotel closed down on Saturday, but all the rest of the hotels will remain open until the 15th September. The island lately occupied by Rev. Dr. B. Libby, of Watertown, is situated but a short distance below here. A grand boulevard is proposed on the main shore between Clayton and Alexander Bay. A surveyor is now at work making an estimate. Col. O. G. Staples, of the Thousand Island house, is at the head. This colonel proposes to stand a large portion of the amount necessary to accomplish this object.

The W.C.T.U. and friends had their annual meeting in the chapel on Wednesday. There is an uncertainty as yet of the railway line between here and Westminster being built this fall. An entertainment was held in the chapel on Wednesday evening and was well attended. Proceeds were in aid of the M. E. church. Receipts unusually good. Rev. W. H. Graves will still be retained as pastor during the coming winter.

Cap. Archibald B. Snow, actor, vocalist, humorist, improvisator and entertainer, gave his great entertainment in the tabernacle on Monday night. A large audience attended and was well pleased. Quite a number of new cottages will be erected here this fall, several being now partly erected.

There was an occurrence of rather an amusing nature at the steamboat dock on Thursday evening on the arrival of the Empire State from Kingston. Among the passengers was a lady from the city who had visited Kingston during the day, and on stepping off the boat was accompanied by one of the custom officials as to the contents of a neatly-tied parcel she carried. The lady replied there was nothing in it, but the officer insisted and taking the parcel began untying it. The outer wrapper was tied very secure and after much trouble he got it removed to find another wrapper similar, and continuing until several layers were removed. After removing the last wrapper a small pasteboard lunch box - empty - was exposed to view. The roars from the spectators on the pavilion and the feelings of the official can be imagined. The lady insisted on her parcel being tied up, as it was, which the officer had to do amid the roars and smiles of the lookers on. Services were conducted in the tabernacle yesterday morning and evening by the Rev. Dr. J. H. Wiley, of Akron, Ohio.

Let's See the City. J. Allen Baker, of London, England, accompanied by his son Allen, and sister-in-law, Miss Mosier, left the city to day on route for New York city. They have been the guests of Mr. Baker's aunt, Mrs. John Hewton, Alfred street, for the past week. They also made several visits among their relatives in the vicinity. Mr. Baker has enjoyed visiting the haunts of his boyhood, more especially the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Brewer, of Elginburg, where four generations met under her roof. Mrs. Brewer is in her ninety-first year.

Probably the last known accessible region on this continent is the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence - east of Tadoussac - and yet for nearly four centuries ships have sailed by it. Frederic Island describes "a lazy cruise" in a schooner along this shore with excursions up some of its wonderful salmon streams. TO THE LAND OF THE FREE.

W. B. REED SEEKS THE LAND OF HIS FATHERS.

After Having Victimized Numerous Kingstons He Owe Largest Mills and Gas Bills - Shipped With Furniture Not All Paid For - Story of the Case.

Quite a number of Kingston business men are mourning the hurried departure of W. B. Reed, who for two years past has had charge of the Anglo-American hotel, corner of Ontario and Johnston streets, and who, without ostentation, left the city yesterday afternoon, taking with him his household furniture, for which he had previously given a bill of sale to H. Brown, a former employee.

Two years ago, when A. Moreland gave up the Anglo, Messrs. S. Oberdorfer and John Fisher, the chief mortgages, arranged with Reed, a genuine down-east Yankee, to take the hotel off their hands, they still holding a mortgage for between $2,000 and $3,000 on the place. Reed seemed to make things pay and, to all appearances, he was doing well in a quiet way.

Yesterday, however, he packed up his household effects, after having given a bill of sale for the same to H. Brown, as stated. The goods were loaded on the Pierpont and Reed took passage on the same boat for Cape Vincent. James McParland, to whom Reed owed considerably more than $100, happened by accident, of course, to be aboard the Pierpont, and so did the bailiff, J. A. Gardiner. Mr. Gardiner, acting under Mr. McParland's orders, seized the furniture before the boat left her wharf, and "raided" the hotel, to oblige the boat's captain. He later found that Reed was aboard, and offered to accept ninety dollars in payment of his claim, which offer Reed accepted, and was about to pay, when Capt. Allen gave notice that the light, heat and power company had filed a claim of $40 for gas used by Reed. This called off the deal between Reed and McParland, and the furniture came back to Kingston. It was not landed, however, for H. M. Folger received a letter last night from a Cape Vincent legal man, demanding that the goods be allowed to go across. Accordingly they went back with the Pierpont this morning.

Reed owed a great many trades people about town, it is said. Among his creditors are Oberdorfer and Fisher, $2,300; Kingston light, heat and power company, $40; R. Reed, furniture, $50; Carving, brooding and maling company, $15; cash register company, $200; and it is said, butchers, grocers, etc. and it is also said to be a hotel for the purchase or negotiation of a vessel in Cape Vincent, and that negotiations were about closed.

Mrs. Reed was packing up the clothing and other effects left behind by her husband when the chief mortgages appeared on the scene. John Fisher, reeve of Portsmouth, and S. Oberdorfer, the principal mortgages, have closed their mortgages, but whether this action was taken previous or subsequent to Reed's departure they decline to say. Meanwhile M. McParland has been placed in charge of the hotel by Messrs. Fisher and Oberdorfer, and business is being continued at the old stand as usual. Very little excitement was caused by the affair, and few Kingstonsians knew of it to-day.

SUICIDE AT VERONA.

Mrs. Wilkinson Shuffled Off This Mortal Coil By The Paris Green Route.

This afternoon coroner Phelan was notified by Dr. Moles, Verona, that Mrs. Wilkinson, wife of a cheesemaker, had committed suicide there by taking Paris green. The telegram stated that everything pointed to a direct case of suicide. He asked if an inquest was necessary. Coroner Phelan laid the facts before J. L. Whiting, county crown attorney, who thought an inquest unnecessary. Acting upon this advice, coroner Phelan telegraphed Dr. Moles not to hold the body, but to surrender it for burial, as the circumstances did not warrant the holding of an inquest.

Serious State Of Defalcation.

The investigation into the county treasurer's books yesterday disclosed a more serious state of defalcation than had hitherto been suspected. The outlook for the county is very serious and the taxpayers will pay heavily for the indifference and mismanagement of successive finance committees of the Frontenac council. The announcement will scarcely be credited, but the fact is, there have been no additions made or balances carried forward in the treasurer's cash book since January, 1894, over three and a half years. If such a thing were told in a business community it could scarcely be credited, seeing that a yearly audit of accounts is enforced by law and that auditors have for three years pronounced the books correctly kept. It seems that the W. M. had charges of criminal negligence rest upon the auditors of 1895, 1896 and 1897.

A harvesters' excursion for the north-west left the Union station this morning. It contained about three hundred laborers, the North Bay train going through in two sections. It was expected the excursion would have been larger, but the number, no doubt, was reduced owing to the accounts from Brandon and other centres of a surplus of farm labor.

PIRATES ON CANTON RIVER.

With Painted Faces and Revolvers They Secure Booty.

TACOMA, Wash., August 31. - The Japanese steamer brings news that had just reached Hong Kong, of the prevalence of pirates on the Canton river. One of the sons of Capt. Chung Kow, a Straits millionaire, Chung Ah Phin, was the victim. He, in company with a few of his relatives, hired a boat and was proceeding to their native place. On the second day the boat was in the mud and could not proceed. During the night a gang of men with painted faces and fully armed boarded the boat. With revolvers levelled at the passengers they commanded silence, while four men began at once to look for plunder. Ah Phin brought from the straits jewelry amounting in value to $50,000 and $30,000 in cash. This the pirates took besides clothing, etc. When they had satisfied themselves that nothing else was to be obtained they left the boat after threatening the victims with instant death if they made a noise till twelve hours afterwards. In the morning information was sent down to Canton, but before the authorities had time to get a gunboat up the river the pirates had made their escape.

MURDEROUS MOONSHINERS.

The dead are: B. F. Taylor, of Searcy county; Joe Dodson, of Stone county. The wounded are the Renfrew brother.

The names of the missing men are not given, but they are supposed to be deputy marshals of Searcy county. Taylor, one of the murdered men, was sixty years old, and was the wealthiest man in Searcy county. Dodson was a well known deputy and has been a terror to moonshiners for years. The men who did the shooting are supposed to be a gang of moonshiners, led by Horace Bruce and John Church, two of the most desperate characters in that part of the country.

Sun Bonnets For Horses To Wear.

Horses in London are wearing straw hats this season. For some time the English society for the prevention of cruelty to animals has been agitating the question of protecting the heads of horses during the hot weather. This agitation has finally had a good effect, and nearly every horse that is compelled to draw heavy loads through the London streets is now protected from the sun's rays by a bonnet. This plan has long been followed in France and the hat adopted in England is the same as that used in Bordeaux. It looks much like the straw hats familiar to visitors to American summer resorts and bathing beaches. The brim is wide and there are holes through which the horse's ears project. It is held in place by being tied to the bridle. Manufacturers of straw goods are delighted with the innovation, as they have been kept busy all summer making the hats. They sell for a trifle, but such tremendous numbers are used that the total cost is considerable. The mortality amongst horses has decreased greatly since the use of the hats became common. There is a high crown and there is plenty of room for ventilation. During extremely hot weather in New York, the mortality among horses is very large. Truckmen there have the custom of tying wet sponges to the ears of their horses, and it doubtless saves many lives, but there is no doubt that they would guard against loss even more if they should adopt the humane practice of Londoners, even though the animals do look rather grotesque.

WERE TWO LOVE-SICK FOOLS

FORD'DEN TO MARRY, JUMP FROM A PRECIPICE.

Grief Stricken Parent, Running To The Bluff, Saw His Son Lying Dead, The Girl Dying - Are Buried Side by Side - Romance Tragically Concluded Beyond A Summer Resort.

Nashville, Tenn., August 31. - With arms clasped about each other Carl French, a boy scarcely out of his teens, and Helen Hunt, his pretty sweetheart, leaped over a precipice to instant death. The scene of the awful ending of their romance was in the mountains of White county, near the little summer resort and mining town of Bonair, about one hundred miles from Nashville. The rock from which the lovers jumped is 100 feet high.

Young French appeared in Bonair three months ago. He came from Indianapolis, Ind., to spend his vacation among the mountains, and he met Helen Hunt soon after his arrival. She was the daughter of Allen Hunt, a well-to-do miner, and was beautiful and accomplished. Report in Bonair has it that the girl at first turned a deaf ear to the love-making of the schoolboy.

He was persistent, however, and the girl recently consented to an engagement. Their wedding was set to take place within a month. It was all to be kept a secret from the parents of the prospective bride, room until the ceremony had been performed.

The young man's father arrived from Indianapolis Saturday, to the consternation of his son. Some one had written to Mr. French informing him of the interesting situation. After the first greeting was over Mr. French said:

Carl, I have come to take you home. The announcement came like a thunderbolt to this young lover. He begged his father to allow him to marry Helen, and when Mr. French declined to consider such a proposition the declaration of war would marry her or commit suicide.

Mr. French kept the boy under close surveillance. To-day was set as the time for the journey home. Yesterday Carl begged to be allowed to see his sweetheart once more. He said:

I must give good-bye to her," he said. Mr. French relented to the extent of allowing a last interview, but he stipulated that the two were not to go out of his sight. It was late yesterday afternoon when the two lovers met by Mr. French to walk to Sunset park, the father following at the respectful distance of forty feet.

The lovers walked to the north side of the park. They reached the big bluff overlooking the deep precipice, and seemed to be engaged in earnest conversation. The girl leaned forward and peered for a minute into the depths.

Then she drew back and put her hand in the hand of her lover. The two then embraced, and with arms outstretched about each other leaped over the precipice.

Mr. French, who had been keeping a watch upon them, darted forward with a wild cry of terror and grief. He looked over the bluff, and far below here on the two bodies. As quickly as he could he climbed down the bluff.

The boy was dead. His neck had been broken. The girl's head was crushed, and she was internally injured. She died in a few moments.

Mr. French gave the alarm, and help was quickly at hand. The bodies of the two lovers were conveyed to the home of the girl's parents.

The parents of both of the victims are nearly crazed with grief. The entire community is excited by the tragedy, and each little incident in the acquaintance of the lovers is tenderly recalled.

The funeral services over the two bodies took place at the Methodist church this morning. The church was filled to overflowing, and the two caskets were literally covered with flowers. Side by side the two were buried in the old Bonair cemetery, Mr. French saying he did not have the heart to separate them.
