

BACKACHE

When a man has had a serious trouble with his kidneys and bladder as I have had, and has for years tried all kinds of doctors and medicines without relief, and at last finds a new remedy which cures him, he should at least say a word in its favor. I have had my back trouble for so long a time, I don't remember when it first began, but I do know that since I bought a box of Hobbs' Spargus Kidney Pills from Jones' drug store and used them faithfully according to instructions I have enjoyed entire relief from pain and weakness.

The Barriefield Assault Case. The case against Octave Vallinacourt, for criminal assault, was opened this morning before Judge Price. J. L. Whiting, crown-attorney, prosecuted, while John McIntyre appeared for the father of the little girl, Sergt. Groves, and Dr. Smythe for the defendant. The evidence of Dr. Ross was repeated. Little Emily Groves contradicted the evidence she gave before the magistrate in several points, but her story in the main part, touching the assault, was substantially as published. Her little sister, Violet, did not waver in her testimony. Mrs. Groves thought her children were at school. After learning of the assault she took her little daughter and going to the golf house told Vallinacourt that she was going to see a doctor and the chief of the police to the assault. "Tut, tut," replied Vallinacourt, "keep quiet, there are ladies in the golf house." Thomas Aird, working at the lodge, saw Vallinacourt and Emily Groves enter the golfhouse but did not hear any crying. He was working not more than fifty feet away. Vallinacourt was leading and the little girl followed. W. J. Veale gave corroborating evidence. Mrs. Hutton, Mrs. Rickie and other residents of Barriefield were called by the defence to prove the good character of the defendant.

The underclothing of the little girl were shown mused and blood stained. At two o'clock the case had not been finished, subpoena being issued for Mrs. Briggs and Miss Henderson, wanted to give evidence for the defence.

A Lesson in Temperance. Some few days ago a youth who believes he has the wisdom of manhood was out for his daily walk, when he came to a village where he was unable to find a refreshment house.

Being rather thirsty he began to look about for some one who could direct him to one.

After a while he came across a little girl of about eight summers minding a baby.

"My little girl," he said, "can you tell me if there is a beer-shop in this neighborhood?"

DIED UNDER CHLOROFORM.

PATIENT COLLAPSED AT GENERAL HOSPITAL THIS MORNING.

Hugh Hickey, an Emigrant Boy Operated Upon—in Good Condition When Chloroform Administered—Operation About Completed When He Collapsed—An Inquest Not Necessary.

Hugh Hickey, an immigrant boy aged sixteen years, died on the operating table at the general hospital this morning, while under the influence of chloroform. The boy had worked for a farmer in the township of Bedford, and on May 8th entered the hospital, where an operation was performed upon him ten days later for trachoma, a disease of the eye. On that occasion chloroform was administered, and no evil results followed. The operation also was successful. On the 28th May he was discharged and was employed by a milk vendor near the city.

Hickey got dust in his eyes when threshing last week and this brought on his eye trouble again. On August 28th he entered the hospital as an outdoor patient, having his eyes treated daily, and a few days later it was decided to perform another operation on the diseased member. The patient was last night properly prepared for the administration of the anesthetic. This morning when the operation took place, Hickey was examined by Dr. Connell and found to be in good condition physically. He was a strong and healthy boy. Chloroform was administered by the house surgeon, Drs. Mylks and Hoffman. The operation was quite completed when Dr. Connell noticed the patient collapsing under the anesthetic and immediately began every possible effort to resuscitate him. Dr. Woods happened in and aided in applying restoratives but all was unavailing and Hickey died about 9:30 o'clock. The operation only lasted seven minutes and as soon as signs of collapse appeared everything possible was done to revive the patient.

Dr. Connell immediately notified the coroner, Dr. Kilborn and requested an inquest over the death of Hickey. Dr. Kilborn took a written statement from each of the four doctors in attendance at the operation, all of whom stated that every possible means was taken to save the boy, and that he was in perfect condition before the chloroform was administered. The coroner decided that an inquest was not justifiable.

Endeavors are being made to find out the name of the milk vendor with whom the boy was employed. The farmer with whom he previously worked in Bedford badly treated him, and he would not return when first discharged from the hospital, and the hospital authorities kept him a week after he was recovered until he could find employment.

CAN'T APPROVE THE PROPOSAL.

To Teach Cooking in the Local Public Schools.

"Has the board of education been approached in regard to the opening of cooking classes in the local public schools?" was the question a White reporter asked chairman Meek this morning.

"No," was the answer, "and I don't see that there is any use in discussing the subject at this juncture. Life is too short, and we have too many other things on hand that have to be attended to to waste any time on this."

"But it is said that cooking is part of the public school curriculum, and that the matter is now in the hands of the minister of education."

"Oh," exclaimed the chairman, "I thought that the board of education had something to say about the matter—and I think so still. Hon. Mr. Ross may put what he thinks best into departmental regulations, but he is too sensible a man to interfere with local affairs."

"Are you in favor of having cooking taught in the public schools?"

"Well, I am in favor of having cooking taught—in its proper place. But I don't think it could be undertaken in the public schools, where there is not the opportunity to properly deal with what is already upon the time-table. At any rate, I cannot approve of the proposal."

FLOWERS FROM THE KLONDIKE

Weather Was Balmly at Dyes on August 14th—A Kingston Boy Writes.

John Elmer has received a letter from his son, David J. Elmer, who is making his way to the Klondike gold mining region. The young man wrote from Dyes on August 14th and the letter was eighteen days on its journey to Kingston. The postage amounted to nineteen cents. It did not come through the regular post office channel, but was carried by pack-mules from Dyes to the confines of civilization. The writer contradicts the stories that state that the Klondike is almost unbearably cold even in August, and he enclosed in his letter several flowers plucked by him on the day the letter was written. The weather then was balmly and summer-like, with no indication of intense cold.

Accident To A Lumber Barge. The barge Minnie Francis, carrying 150,000 feet of lumber, to be used in the construction of the Moores elevator, struck a rock near Kempsville and sank. Owing to the fact that her cargo was of lumber she was floated without great difficulty, and 90,000 feet of lumber was put ashore. The barge brought the remainder here, and after having discharged was placed in the Davis' dry dock to have the large hole stove in her hull by the rock repaired.

Here's Bovine Wisdom. Police constables Aiken, Bramah, Craig, Kennedy, Lawson and Megarry spent Wednesday and yesterday on the Barriefield rifle ranges putting in their annual target practice. So far the elusive bullet-eye has not been attained by any of the marksmen, but, it is said, there is not a cow in the township that can be persuaded or forced to venture on the common wile the firing is in progress.

Ill In A Strange City. Late last evening John Myers, Belleville, fell on the sidewalk at the corner of Princess and Wellington streets. Dr. Eggk was summoned and found the man suffering from an epileptic fit. An ambulance was secured and he was taken to the Hotel Dieu. This morning he had sufficiently recovered to proceed to his home.

Received The Cheque. W. M. Drannan, D.S.C.R. of the I.O.F., received this morning a cheque for $2,000, the amount for which the late George W. Ross was insured in Coast Protection No. 59, I.O.F. The application for payment was forwarded on Wednesday evening last. This was quick and satisfactory work.

A Public Discussion. B. W. Folger, ex-mayor Wright and Thomas Dunn engaged in a warm discussion on the Princess street double track question to-day. Quite a crowd gathered to hear the arguments, but it is safe to wager that no man's opinion was changed by what was heard.
