THIS WAS THE VERDICT OF THE

The Inquest Last Night-Evidence Taken by'the Coroner-Wall Under the Influence of Liquor-No Enmity Among the Rivetters-Evidence of Dr. W. T. Connell-Death Through an Epileptic Fit.

At the inquest held last evening in the police court room touching the sudden death of Henry Wall, any suspicion of foul play, which lurked in the minds of friends, was completely dissipated. Dr. Mundell, coroner, explained as the reason for holding the inquest, that the death occurred in a public house, and if death came from natural causes proper steps should be taken to vindicate the proprietor of the house.

The jury summoned by P. C. Lawson and empannelled, consisted of the following gentlemen: John Hickey (foreman), James Wooten, Percy Symons, J. Elliott, A. C. Waggoner, W. C. Martin, C. W. Wright, G. E. Ashley, John Smith, E. B. Loucks, H. Harkness and H. Taylor. Before taking evidence the jury adjourned to undertaker Ronan's establishment to view the body, and were then sworn in. During the examination the coroner explained fully the condition of the dead man when found yesterday morning. The jury then returned to the police court room and proceeded to hear evidence. James Norris, proprietor of the Ottawa house, was examined. His evidence involved description of how the death the deceased was discovered. In reply to questions asked by the jury, witness stated that Wall and Devine had been very intimate friends; that deceased had been taking liquor quite freely on ling, 288 Barrie Street, with modern improve-ments. Apply to John Mudic. tween five and half past five o'clock, well under the influence of the liquor. Witness could not say who was with Wall on Tuesday afternoon. He had refused liquor to Wall several times during that day. Devine also requested him not to give drink to Wall. There had been no disturbance at his house, and he could not say whether Wall had eaten any dinner or supper. Deceased was one of four rivetters stopping. at his place, and the friendship existing between them was rarely seen in men who knocked about the country. Wall was of > day on which he had been idle. P. McAvey, a sailor, who occupied a bed in the same room as deceased, stated that when retiring, about nine o'clock, he noticed Wall in a sound sleep, snoring forcibly, and lying on his back. Witness was asleep before the other occupant of the room appeared, and, although a very light sleeper, he had not been awakened during the night by unusual sounds. He heard Devine enter the room in the morning to awaken Wall. Devine had asked Barry, the other occupant, to arouse Wall, but he refused. When Devine shook Wall he exclaimed, "My God, he's dead! Witness emphatically stated that there was no enmity between the rivetters. R. Devine explained his discovery of his companion's death, and seemed visibly affected by his loss. He and the deceased. with others, followed boilermaking and shipbuilding. He knew deceased for seven years and never heard him complain about ill health. He knew Wall imbibed too much liquor, but there was never any fighting among them. Wall had often said that he had a sister in Boston, who was a millionaire. "I'd give $100 to find that sister," said the witness. Richard Barry, another of the "Hoho gang, emphasized the fact that great friendship existed among the rivetters. Wall was a steady drinker and was under the influence of liquor when he left the Ottawa house Tuesday noon. It was customary for Wall to lie down at night with his clothes on when he had been drinking.

Dr. W. T. Connell, who had performed a post mortem examination, explained the condition of the body. He stated that no signs of violence existed on the body. The tongue was clenched between the teeth and the mouth was full of froth. The face and body were of a purplish color, the face being the more discolored. Besides the mouth being frothy the wind pipe and bronchial tube contained froth. The heart was flabby and pale, but showed no signs of disease. The lungs were of normal size, but the stomach was half large again as is usual, and contained blood stained fluid, from which faint odor of alcohol escaped. Kidneys showed changes, common to liquor drink ers. No single organ, such as the heart lungs, etc., was in such a condition as to cause death of itself, and no trace of acids was found in the stomach. From the appearance of the blackened face, frothy mouth and clenched tengue he concluded that death came during an epileptic fit. There was no solid food in the stomach and there not been any taken for at least six hours before death. The coroner summed up the evidence and after sitting for half an hour the jury returned a verdict that Henry Wall came to his death through an epileptic fit.

E. B. Barker, Newark, N. J. on a Visit to

Among the guests at the British Ameri can hotel for luncheon vesterday were E. B Barker and wife, Newark, N. J. This Mr. Barker's first visit to Kingston in twenty-five years, and he expressed amazement at the wonderful growth of the Limestone city, especially in the way of substantial buildings. On his last visit he looked upon Kingston as a town, and now he considers it as pretty a city as is to be seen so far as he has travelled. Mr. Barker is connected with an ancient and respected family, a relative of his, David Barker, being one of the first settlers in Prince Edward county, and the first post master of Picton. Mr. Berker exhibited a gold ring bearing the Clarendon coat of arms, presented to his ancestors by quee Elizabeth. His uncle, residing in Prince Edward country, possesses the original coat of arms, which were presented by the queen. The visitors left by the Hero the afternoon for Picton to spend the remainder of the week with relatives, the majority of whom, in this country, are settled in Prince Edward. Mr. Barker is an extensive dealer in photographing sup-plies, and was intimately acquainted with the late W. K. Sheldon, of Sheldon & Davis, photographers, of this city.

THE FOOTBALL GRIDIRON.

PROSPECTS LOOMING UP SER. ENE AND BRIGHTLY.

Some of the New Players That Are Getting Into Condition for Coming Struggles-A Number of Lucky Finds Being Coached in the Points of the Game. As the season advances football matters brighten. The sombre clouds of uncertainty begin to roll away, revealing fair prospects of success. Certainly no stone is being left unturned in the endeavor to put strong teams in the field that will uphold the reputation of Kingston as a strong football centre. Queen's team has met with a lot of reverses and setbacks, but in spite of these the prospects of success loom up brightly. The old adage of the sea retaining as good fish as any removed therefrom holds good in this case. In Arniel the Amheret Island agricultural society's team possesses as good a man as ever handled a ball for the wearers of the red, blue and yellow. In centre scrimmage he is expected to perform herculean deeds. In addition to his strength he is fleet and has exhaustless powers. As a proof of this his performance of Tuesday furnishes an example. He worked on the field from four o'clock until 5:30 without ceasing a moment for rest, then went into the gymnasium and put in a half hour exercising with the apparatus, "just to supple up his muscles."

Another good man is "Tony" Rankin. He is placed for inside wing, and although he knows little about the game as yet, a couple of hard practices, such as the one coal heater call and see the samples at J. he passed through yesterday, together with the coaching he is receiving, will remove all crudeness and bring him out a full blown kicker. Barton, physical director for the Y.M.C.A., is also another lucky "find." Very Lax In Enforcing Ordinances. The laxity of the officials of the street department is disgraceful. Last night piles of sand and refuse were left unguarded by a light on King street, opposite St. George's cathedral, by a sidewalk contractor. The same dangerous piles have been permitted for many a night this year on Barrie, Brock and other streets. The electric light shadows from the trees are cast so far that such obstructions cannot be seen, and drivers are as liable as not to be thrown upon them. If the officials were not so lax and careless contractors would not dare disregard the law.

The Reason Of Cheap Drinks. "Frequenters of bar-rooms should exercise some judgment in selecting their haunte," remarked a citizen this morning. 'Last night I was in a certain bar-room and the bar-tender disclosed an extensive collection of chemicals and drugs used in coloring and in manufacturing gin and liquors. There was a great variety of bottles, some containing a dark fluid, out of which whiskey is made. A few drops of the dark liquid dropped in a glass half filled with water makes a whiskey with the flavor of absinthe in it. Another liquid treated the same way makes very palatable gin. It is an alarming statement, but such work is carried on too extensively. It is also known that agents go through the country selling these drugs." R.M.C. Cadet Appointments. The following general order appears in he last issue of the Army and Navy Ga-

THE MOOERS' COMPANY ELEVA-TORFAIRLY GROWING.

The Stone Work Will Be Finished This Week-The Staff of Workmen to be Doubled-The Size of the Building and the Amount of Timber Used in Its Con-A person desirons of securing an impression of the busy scene which charact terized the building of King Solomon's famous temple could not do better than to visit the spot whereon the Mooers' company grain elevator is being constructed. Of course the splendor will be missing, but the bustling, hive-like activity is there to be found in all its intensity. Where, a few short weeks ago, there was nothing, now appears the foundation for a massive structure, and although the site at present presents a chaotic appearance, still the building, like the Phonix of mythology, rising from its ashes, will, figuratively, grow above the disordered mass of mortar, stone, brick, timber, lumber and iron which now surrounds it.

By the end of this week the east end of the stonework will have been completed.

Until this is all finished the carpenters will be delayed. Work on the outer crib-

work will also be concluded by the close of this week. When these two heavy under. takings are at an end the present staff will be doubled and the work rushed to a conclusion. As fast as the crib work is finished up the openings between the logs are being filled in with loose stone. All the spiles near the middle of the building have been surrounded by loose stones to prevent any possibility of the building rocking or sagging. Stone foundation walls two feet thick are built upon the spiles. On these walls are laid clear cut timbers one foot square. These timbers form the base of the wooden super-structure, which consists of planking two inches thick and ten inches wide laid on their flat, forming walls ten inches thick in all directions. The storehouse proper will practically consist of three sections, a valley on either side, running from east to west, for grain conveyers, causing the divisions. These sections will be divided into fifty-six bins, forty-eight being 14x15 feet and eight a little smaller. Besides these are six large shipping bins, from which boats will be loaded. It will be possible to move grain from one bin to another with perfect ease. Openings exist from each bin to the two conveyers, which will carry grain to the east end of the storehouse, where barges will be loaded. Two similar conveyers will be placed on the second flat for the purpose of discharging vessels. The first story, shorewards, is all up, but the water end is not yet in position, owing to the delay on the stonework.

The entire engine room, walls and all rests on a solid bed of concrete eighteen inches thick. The bed for the engine and boilers has been laid, and just as soon as the roof covers this part of the plant the machinery will be placed in position. The engine will be of 250 horse power, but a steam condenser will increase the strength to 300 horse power. Two boilers, having a capacity of 125 horse power each, will supply steam for all purposes. The smokestack, to be of brick, is now underway. The engine room will be twenty-five feet high, and on account of being detached from the elevator proper, the insurance rates on the last named building will thereby be greatly lessened.

The building covers an area 74x211 ft. From the water line to its highest point will be 113 ft. 4 in. The space devoted to the storage of grain will be 60x168x72 ft. As the building proceeds, staging will be erected inside, material being hoisted by machinery. At the outer end of the ele vator there is twenty-five feet of water, while in either slip there is a depth of from sixteen to eighteen feet. Already 600,000 feet of lumber has been used, and 350,000 feet more is enroute. It is expected that by November 15th the elevator will be ready to receive grain. It will cost $100,000 and its capacity will be 575,000 bushels. J. H. Tromanhauser is superintending the construction for the contractors, and under his guidance the work is making satisfactory progress.
