The insurgents are evidently in great force, for in addition to being able to make stubborn stand against the British advance, they had a contingent of 7,000 men to spare for a flanking movement. Not any of the stories of this fierce engagemen suggest any demoralization of the enemy, who retired in good order and proceeded to construct fresh defensive works on the adjacent hills, showing that Afridiland will probably have to be conquered yard

SYRACUSE, Oct. 20.-Mrs. Julia Ann Sherman, who is ninety-two years of age, | The Engineers Are Asking For this afternoon put on wedding garments to become the bride of Benjamin F. Hunt, of Bridgeport, Conn., whose age is eightynine. The marriage took place at three p.m. in the parlors of the Sherman mansion, at the corner of Stone and Massey streets, Watertown. The was performed by the Rev. J. Porter, in the presence of 300 guests. The house was adorned as for the wedding of a young society belle and the affair was one of the swellest that Watertown has ever witnessed, although the bride chose to call it a quiet family affair. She was radiant with happiness as she approached the clergyman, leaning on the arm of her brother. The groom followed, attended by his son Daniel. He bore himself erect, with an almost jaunty air. The bride wore lavender silk, with an overdress of black Brussels lace, and carried white roses. The groom was clad in conventional black. Although both have been previously mar-

Mrs. Sherman's husband, the late John A. Sherman, died in 1882, leaving his wife heir to a large fortune, which a conservative estimate places at $500,000. She had one daughter, who died a year ago. Several months ago the groom, being then on a visit from his home in Connecticut among old friends in the northern part of the state, called on Mrs. Sherman, and they fell to talking over old times and sympathizing with each other in their loneliness. Mr. Hunt has three married sons, but has preferred not to cumber their homes with an old man who, as he says, "might be in the way." One of the sons is Daniel T. Hunt, for many years business manager of the Rochester Post-Express, but who now lives in Chicago. He was best man at the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Hunt have known each other for seventy years. She was born in land, Jefferson county, with her parents to reside. Mr. Hunt, three years her junior, lived in the neighboring town of Rodman. They met frequently at rustic merry-mak-
