EDICAL FULMINATION.

The medical council of Quebec, in passng a resolution in essence that members of the profession, and licensed by the HOME EXCURSION council, shall not act as lodge physicians, has stirred up an agitation it may have occasion to regret. The legislature, in giving the council power to regulate the profession, never meant it to interfere with the personal liberty of any man. Primarily its function was to elevate the standard of education, and to see that those who entered into the practice of medicine were competent, so far as a college course and training could make them. The power and usefulness of the council ended there. When it presumed to go further, say what the fees of the practitioner shall be and who he shall attend and under what circumstances, it goes beyond the touch-line, and reaches a point where the game must be called. a certain number of men decide that they will not act as lodge doctors-refusing to accept appointment to care for the health of a number of persons at a stated salary society men have met in Montreal and demanded that the legislature correct, by a clear interpretation of the law, the abuses of the medical council.
