All I knew of it was striking the water, swallowing a young Niagara and then waking up in bed; also a good licking, which followed. Not even did have the terrible pairs of coming back to life which some writers have portrayed so vividly that really no self respecting person should get revived without them. "The second time was in the Harlem.

I had some reputation among my fellows as a diver, and one day I swam to a fence that run far into the river to divide two estates and dived under it. There was just space enough between the fence and the bottom to wriggle through. PATTI'S PARROT.

Lost From One Vessel, It Made Its Way to

rot, Koko, form a little chapter of great perils to himself, disconsolation and tears on the part of his mistress and of curious coincidences touching the bird, owner and the Samaritan of the seas who acts the graceful part of rescuer. In 1888 the firm of Abbey, Schoeffel &

Grau, theatrical speculators and manazers, included in their various enterprises a tour with Mme. Patti and a strong opera company to Buenos Ayres, Montevideo and Rio. Marcus-Mayer, business manager, went out in advance, and on the Royal Mail steamer Fagus formed the acquaintance of an African parrot whose linguistic abilities elevated him to the distinction of being almost as polyglot as the accomplished Mr. Mayer himself. Before leaving England Mme. Patti had commissioned the agent to procure for her any South American birds of plumage or song that he might meet with, and especially a half dozen of the gayly feathered but by no means musical macaws for which Brazil is famous. The parrot was not included in We claim for any of the specifications, but his ready use of Spanish, Portuguese, French and English-a few words at least in all them-and some ridiculous speech in the dialect of the West Indian negroes, justified his purchase from the chief engineer of the Fagus, and when Mme. Patti arrived at the Hotel d'Etranger in Rio ments with the greeting, "Soy Kokoa disposicion a usted."

Amid his more brilliant companions he at first attracted but little attention, but in a few days, possibly having heard his mistress sing, he evinced his delight in a manner so flattering that he was raised to the position of first favorite. At Montevideo Senor Hora, the editor of the newspaper El Expresso, gave Koko a gold collar inscribed in Spanish with the words: "I am Koko, the polyglet pairot of the Nicolini. Another Triumph For MANLEY'S CELERY-NERVE COMPOUND. Mrs. M. Wallace, of 112 Berkeley street, Toronto, writes as follows: I write this to let you know I have used Manley's Celery-Nerve Compound for salt rheum and poor blood. I did not know what to take. My daughter advised me to get Manley's Celery-Nerve Compound as she knew of a lady who was taking it and it was doing her good. I said I would try it; took one bottle and it helped me greatly, my feet got perfectly well, and my complexion became better on account of the improved condition of my blood. 'Cough Chaser" For the Voice, 10e Sold in Kingsten by E. C. Mitchell, 126
