Victory Perches On The Banners Of Democracy.

AN AFTERMATH OF SORROW

WAS ALL THE RESULT THE LEXOW INVESTIGATION GAVE.

Thousands Of Dollars Were Squandered By The Good Dr. Parkhurst—No Beneficial Result Was Obtained—Henry George Bore Upon His Brother's Impulse, An Honest Man—He Left A Lasting Treasure Behind.

(Special Correspondence Letter No. 1,071) NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The greatest civic battle of the nineteenth century has been fought and victory perches on the banners of the untried democracy. If ever a party had reason to be proud it is the democratic party in the campaign just past. To its opponent it owes nothing. Everything that could be done to beat it was done: neither pawns nor expense was spared to give Tammany its conge; and if it be true that the vox populi is indeed the vox Dei, then hath the Almighty spoken the same words that blazed forth on the palace walls of the mighty Assyrian king, "Mene, mene, tekel upharsin." "Thus all weighed in the balances, and art found wanting."

Our experiment of a reform government has not been an unqualified success, and we have begun to realize that there is such a thing as being altogether too good, for here in New York we are not the right kind of timber to make saints out of, and situated as we are, a slight flavoring of wholesome sin is absolutely necessary to our healthful existence, even if we have to cast it off when we reach the gates of pearl and gold.

I know you are wickered and I fear we have been dyed in the wool and warranted to wash, and prone to evil as the sparks to fly upward, but whether we thought ourselves wicked or not made very little difference to the Lexow committee, which our moral legislature had deputed to keep us from being so good as to be altogether too good. They came for wool and went away shorn, and in handing up their report as the final result of their christian endeavor were compelled to confess that only one criminal had been convicted, and they found, on investigation, that New York was a very sinful place; that it needed a moral and spiritual purgation, and, notwithstanding the utmost vigilance of our detectives, certain sinful Germans have been known to drink a live compound called lager, and have actually declared that it tasted good, when the courts have arrested these wicked law-breakers. The magistrate began to drink any lager: the question was, "How did we know it was lager, and not beer?" Of course we did not know. Had we smelled it? Certainly not. Then the magistrate sang out, "Discharged; next," and the saloonkeeper marched out of court laughing at us. But we are happy to say that we convicted a police captain of bribery, whose precinct lies along the river, where fruit and vegetables are sold to the retailers in our own city and Brooklyn, and the trial occupied many days; it cost the state several thousand dollars, and, owing to the fiery zeal of our present recorder, Mr. Goff, combined with an immense knowledge of Blackstone, Chitty and Storey, he landed the black hearted villain in state prison, to the great delight of the Lexow committee, as it vindicated the necessity of their appointment.

The crime of this wretch was bribery. It was Saturday evening and the captain, as was his custom, took a stroll through the market to see that his men were doing their duty. Passing a fruit dealer's store, he found the sidewalk blocked and he told the fruit dealer that the obstructions must be removed at once. It was Saturday evening, and the man was oversteered with peaches; by Monday they would be ruined, so he cried out after the wretched captain, "Cap, I guess I'll send you a basket." "Cap, I guess I'll send you a basket," said the captain and his family joy, revelled in peaches. That basket of peaches was the captain's "bete noir"; it got him into as much trouble as that unfortunate apple did our first parents. This basket of peaches and a few other counts in the indictment were clearly proven and the wretch was hanged to the gallows. Notorious houses were razed to the ground, the soiled doves into the result of driving the wretched wretch and his tradespeople. The whole city was turned upside down. Country people visiting New York are anxious to see all the interesting sights; if it happened to be Sunday they would go in the morning to hear the good Dr. Parkhurst preach and after service send around to the vestry to request that he would please direct them to the house where he saw that wicked midnight dance.

Looking back over these troublous years with their freight of crime and sin with its aftermath of sorrow and shame, the question which presses home to us most heavily is, "What have we got to show for the thousands we have squandered in these shameful investigations? Are we any better, are our morals any purer, are our lives and property more secure than they were five years ago—or one year later than they were five years ago?" Let the newspapers of the day answer that question with records that make angels weep. And right here is where the grandest opportunity ever given to any political party is accorded to democracy.

Never before in our country, nor, I believe, in any other, has such a sudden change of dynasty brought about such a radical change in all of its methods of governmental administration as that wrought by the quiet administration of November 2nd. We are ostensibly a republic, yet by that election we placed in the hands of Judge Van Wyck, a young man of whose existence not one in fifty of our own people had ever heard, a power such as is only held by supreme despots in Russia, Persia and other despotic governments. Let the people close around him and pledge him their honor and fealty. He represents more people and than founded the greatest republic of all time. Let us hold up his hands as the Hebrews of old held up the prophet's hands while Joshua arrested the sun in the heavens and completed his victory over the enemies of the Lord. On the 1st day of January, 1898, our new municipal life begins, which places us among the grandest cities of the world. On that day the outgoing and incoming chief magistrates will ride down to our city together; they chat pleasantly by the way. Arriving at the city hall, the ceremony is brief, not exceeding a half hour; the great ledger of the new city is passed over to the mayor elect.

The mad carnival was at its height. The goal was in sight and already it seemed as if the prophet of the people would hear the shout that hailed him the victor race and long before Henry George, the tribune of the people, had been elected he felt must come. The consolidation of the two great cities of New York and Brooklyn, with many small towns and villages beside, afforded such an opportunity for labor to claim a hearing and to show its power as had not been afforded it for many years before. Labor recognized him as her advocate and apostle, for he bore upon his brow God's impress—an honest man. No one who ever looked on that face doubted him. Two thousand years ago the prophet would have hailed him as a prophet. Later on the church would have canonized him for the life in that calendar where live the soldiers who have defended her in her hours of stormy trial and have helped in the upbuilding of her greatness and glory. The work of the campaign was practically ended; all that remained was to award the prizes. Eagerly labor closed around the champion, for he was their only hope. His eyes and ears were open to all ears but his. Around his head were his wife and children, whose eyes were wet with scalding tears, for they felt that the end was near. No tears moistened the eyes of the dying man as each one kissed him for the last time on earth. Gradually, as a child sinks to sleep, Henry George found rest and peace. The Jordan's stormy tide was passed and the dazzling mountains of the promised land were coming into view and there were thousands on the shore to greet him—for him the day of jubilee had come. When the time came to lay him in the earth to rest upon his mother's bosom, man and women of every degree turned out to do him honor. Silver or gold, he left none behind, but he leaves that which is better than Golconda's jewels or Ophi's golden ore, a spotless character and an honest name.—BROADBIRM.

A CLOUD OF WITNESSES.

Proclaim in No Uncertain Sound the Pain Annihilating Properties of South American Rheumatic Cure.

Here's evidence enough to convince the most skeptical that South American Rheumatic Cure does all that is claimed for it. Mrs. Parkin, of Binbrook, completely cured of sciatica with four bottles. W. McFarlane, of Hamilton, laid up several weeks with acute rheumatism. Three bottles cured him. Mr. Sinclair, of Hamilton, over seventy years old, could not raise his head from rheumatism. Three bottles cured him. Mr. Adams, of Hamilton—sciatica so bad could not walk—cured in four days—and thousands more. Sold by W. H. Medley, successor to N. C. Polson & Co.

A SMALL FORTUNE.

Rochester Inventor Receives $45,000 For Patenting A New Chainless Wheel. ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 13.—A check for $45,000 has been received in this city for Robert W. Jamieson, as payment for the patent of a chainless bicycle which Mr. Jamieson invented.

The concern to which Mr. Jamieson sold his patent is a western firm, and he is now west making negotiations. He does not know that the check is here. It was received by another person of the same name, who held it for some time until he could find the rightful owner. The person who first received it thought he had inherited a fortune, or imagined that he had fallen heir to a large estate, until subsequent inquiry revealed the facts.

Meantime, it seems Mr. Jamieson, for whom the check was intended, had been notified that it had been sent, but not receiving it, thought it best to go and investigate the matter.

Mr. Jamieson is an engraver. His partner in the engraving business is the only person who knows of the arrangement between Mr. Jamieson and the bicycle factory and he will not give out any information as to the details further than acknowledging that the check had been received and is in payment for the patent.

Fairly Staggered. Samuel Humphries, retired carriage manufacturer, Strathroy, Ont., says: "For a long time I have had kidney troubles and pain in the back. I could not straighten up and often had to sit down until the pain and weakness went away. I have taken one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and must say they are a great kidney medicine, because they have entirely removed all pain from my back, curing the urinary difficulties and benefiting my general health in a remarkable degree."

Burglars are operating at Watford, Ont. A bank was entered and the safe blown up but no money discovered.

High Wheels in Favor. James Bowden Tricked Into Finishing First and Fined For Doing So. Chicago Chronicle.

Forty rusty, rickety relics of the former days of cycling were resurrected by the Chicago cycling club last Saturday. These were ordinary bicycles, and were ridden by forty of the club's best riders on the occasion of the annual club run over the Pullman course. Wheels that had been in seclusion since the run last year were brought out, and after much cutting and binding on of tires with string were made ready for the fray.

At 10:30 o'clock the forty riders had convened and the run to Pullman started. Several lines had been arranged for the wheelmen as penalties on the run. The first man and the last man into Pullman would be fined $1. Ten cents was forthcoming for every dismount en route, and should a fall occur the unfortunate would have to pay twenty five cents for the privilege. With much merriment and gaiety the party left the club house.

Many dismounts and falls were seen, and the wheelmen saw visions of a large list of fines. A. J. Nicolle, N. H. Van Siclen and Cyrus Davis were good riders and rapidly drew ahead. Nicolle suffered a header as the bunch drew out of the rest, but soon remounted, only to have the same thing happen again. However, the three rode hard and arrived in Pullman about 12:30, and ahead of the rest. Here after a consultation of the rest decided not to pay the $1 fine for finishing first, so they hid behind some bushes. Soon James H. Bowden (a Kingstonian) came along and, thinking the trio was in the hotel, went to meet them. The three winners then followed Jim in and demanded the penalty. After some good-natured "kicking" as to unfairness Bowden "dug up" the money and was allowed to eat dinner with the crowd.

All the riders who had finished, thirty-five in all, rested a short time and decided on the fines. Everyone was counted on and had to tell his number of dismounts and falls, and fines were collected to the amount of about $15. After dinner the run back to Chicago was a go as you please and Mr. Bowden set a pace that no one could keep up with.

A Triumph Peculiar to Diamond Dyes

Thousands of ladies in Canada now fully understand that dyes prepared for coloring wool goods cannot be used successfully for the coloring of cotton and mixed goods. The manufacturers of Diamond Dyes have long ago overcome the difficulty, and now their special cotton colors are chemical triumphs. The common imitation and soap grease dyes have one all round dye for wool, cotton and mixed goods. The result is that thousands of women are sadly disappointed when they use these crude dyes for coloring all cotton and mixed materials. The users of the imitation packages dye for their money and time get blotchy and muddy colors that cannot stand the first washing.

The latest special cotton colors of Diamond Dyes are wonderful discoveries unknown to makers of common dyes. Every color is clear, deep, brilliant and fast as a rock. When you are about to dye cotton or mixed goods, ask your dealer for Diamond Dye cotton colors, the only reliable cotton colors in the world. They are adulterated and soap grease dyes, if you would have perfect colors.

EXTREME NERVOUSNESS.

FREQUENTLY BRINGS ITS VICTIM TO THE VERGE OF INSANITY.

The Case of a Young Lady in Smith's Falls Who Suffered Severely—Given Up by Two Doctors—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Have Restored Her Health.

Many cases have been reported of how invalids who have suffered for years and whose cases had been given up by attending physicians, have been restored to health and vigor through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but we doubt if there is one more startling or more convincing than that of Miss Elizabeth Minshull, who resides with her brother, Thomas Minshull, in this town, an employee in Frost & Wood's agricultural works. The News heard of this remarkable case, and in meeting Mr. Minshull asked him if the story was correct. He replied: "All I know is that my sister had been given up as incurable by two physicians. She is now well enough to do any kind of household work and can go and come as she pleases, and this change has, in my honest conviction, been brought about by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." Mr. Minshull then related the following story to the News: "My sister is twenty years of age. She was born in Canada from England about three years ago, and resided with a Baptist minister, Rev. Mr. Cody, at Sorol, Que. In April, of 1896, she took ill and gradually grew worse. She was under a local physician's care for over five months. The doctor said that she was suffering from a complication of nervous diseases, and that he could do little for her. Her mother wrote me of my sister's state of health, and I had her come to Smith's Falls, in the hope that a change and rest would do her good. When she arrived here she was in a very weak state and a local physician was called in to see her. He attended her for some time, but with poor results, and finally acknowledged that the case was one which he could do very little for. My sister had, at this time become a pitiable object; the slightest noise would almost make her insane. It required someone to be with her at all times, and often after a fit of extreme nervousness she would become unconscious and remain in that state for days. When I went home I had to take my boots off at the doorstep so as not to disturb her. When the doctor told me he could do nothing for her, I consulted with my wife, who had great faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as she had known of several cases where, and I concluded it would do no harm to try them anyway, and mentioned the fact to the doctor. The doctor did not oppose their use, but said he thought they might do her good, as they were certainly a good medicine. In September of last year she began to use the pills, and before two boxes had been used she began to show signs of improvement. She has continued to improve since and is to-day a living testimony of the curative power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." Mr. Minshull has no hesitation in sounding the praises of a remedy that has worked such a change in the health of his sister and cheerfully gave the News the above particulars, and when asked to do so most willingly signed the following declaration:

SMITH'S FALLS, Sept. 11th, 1897. I hereby make declaration that the statements in above as to the condition of my sister, and the benefit she received from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are absolutely correct.

I WAS PAST RECOVERY.

Doctors Said So, But South American Nerve has No Hopeless Cases—It Nerves Back To Health and Never Fails.

For fifteen years I was a victim of dyspepsia. At intervals I was confined to my bed and my life despaired of. I consulted many doctors, with little or no relief—they pronounced my case past curing. South American Nerve was brought to my notice. I procured a bottle. The first few doses gave me great relief. Its effect on me was wonderful, and I think it the greatest cure in the market to-day for stomach disorders." Mrs. D. McArthur, Dundalk, Ont. Sold by W. H. Medley, successor to N. C. Polson & Co.

CZAR'S RECEPTION WAS COOL

And Led To a Diplomatic Change in The Court of Baden. ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 12.—An imperial ukase just issued announced that it being considered expedient to appoint a permanent charge d'affaires at Karlsruhe, capital of the grand duchy of Baden, prince Cantacuzene, who has hitherto represented Russia at Stuttgart, capital of the kingdom of Wurttemberg and at Karlsruhe has been relieved of his post at the court of Baden. It is safe to presume that the diplomatic change just announced so prominently from St. Petersburg was in some manner connected with the alleged slight put on the grand duke and grand duchess of Baden during the stay of the czar and czarina at Darmstadt, capital of the grand duchy of Hesse, where the Russian majesties were the guests during the latter part of last month of the brother of the czarina, the grand duke of Hesse.

Severe Asthma Relieved.

Dear Sirs—We have used Norway Pine Syrup in our home a great deal. I have a little boy who has had asthma for five or six years (he is only ten now), and during the severe attacks he would get great relief from using the syrup. For an ordinary cold it is ahead of any cough medicine I ever took. Edward Winchester, Smith's Cove, N.S.

Support Ratification.

New York, Nov. 12.—A despatch to the Herald from Washington says: Ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty by the United States senate is assured. The administration has made a poll of that body and president McKinley is satisfied that more than two-thirds of the senators will vote for ratification.

A CHARMED LIFE.

Lord Wolsley's Many Escapes From Death In Action.

A correspondent to the North British Daily Mail sends the following interesting letters concerning lord Wolsley's wonderful escapes:

No living soldier, so far as I know, has experienced more remarkable escapes from death than field-marshal lord Wolsley. Campaign after campaign he has seemed to be a charmed life. His first escape occurred in the Borneo war, when an ensign in the 80th regiment. Along with another officer, who was killed, he was leading a storming party against the fortified position of Myatsoon when struck by an iron jingal ball on the left thigh. The artery was laid bare, but not cut, otherwise his blood would have been in a few minutes. His condition, however, was most critical, and required the constant attendance of a soldier for six months. Several narrow escapes took place during the Crimean war, one in the trenches after Sebastopol in February, 1855, when his coat was pierced by a bullet; another, two months afterwards, when he was slightly wounded by the debris scattered by a round shot, and another, when with captain Peel, R. N., he dashed into a powder magazine, the entrance of which was managed to extinguish the flames. At the taking of the Quarries a bullet passed through his cap, knocking it from his head, and shortly afterwards he was wounded in the thigh by canister shot, and lost a considerable quantity of blood. On the night of the 30th of August he was nearly killed in the trenches. Along with two sappers, he was engaged in refilling some gabions with stones, when a round shot struck the gabions, and scattered the two sappers with terrible force. The two sappers were killed, and Wolsley was hurled to the ground with the utmost violence. His face and body were cut and battered all over. He was severely wounded in the leg. Both eyes were closed; the sight of one totally lost. Many thought that he would not recover; but he did, after spending a number of weeks in a cave in complete darkness. In the Indian mutiny he was once again struck through a "perfect shower of shot and bullets." To employ his own words—"the bullets hopped off the tires of the gun-like peas of a drum." When storming the Motee Mahul at Lucknow, a soldier, who had been his servant in the Crimea, was shot, and fell on the street. Wolsley sprang out to carry him under shelter, when a mutineer at a distance of five or six yards, took deliberate aim at him and fired; but the bullet, instead of striking him, passed through the body of the soldier. In the Red river expedition in 1857, during a severe storm of thunder and rain at night, a tree was thrown down, and in falling, crushed a boat close to the spot where Wolsley was sleeping. In the Ashantee campaign, during the attack on the village of Ordahue, Wolsley, while sitting on a small stool, was struck on the helmet by a slug-shot and knocked to the ground. If the slug had not been arrested by the pugaree folds, the career of the commander-in-chief would have been ended. After the night march before the battle of Tel-el-Kabir, when the troops had halted, lord Wolsley proceeded in advance of his staff to reconnoitre the position of the enemy. He dismounted and was gazing with his glass through the darkness, when suddenly a shell, fired, it is supposed, at random, fell between him and his horse. It buried itself in the sand, and did not explode. If it had, in all likelihood Wolsley would have been blown to pieces. Not a few envy the numerous honors and high positions lord Wolsley has attained, but how many would undergo the same hardships, dangers and wounds to secure them? FREE BOOK FOR WEAK MEN

"THREE CLASSES OF MEN" is the title of a little pocket volume I have just issued, showing the effects of early abuse, or later excesses. Every weak man, single, married, young or old, should read it and get the benefit of my thirty years experience, as a specialist in the scientific treatment of Drains, Losses, Impotency, Lame Back, Varicocele and Underdevelopment.

MEDICINES WILL NOT CURE. I know the action of every drug that was ever prescribed, but let me say as physician to patient, as man to man, medicines at best will but stimulate. They do not tone. What we must employ is nature's own gift. We need go no further. Why not use that potent force which she so bountifully bestows upon us? The one element most important to life in man or beast—ELECTRICITY—With my latest improved Galvanic Body Battery and Supporting Suspensory I combine a self-treatment which is positive and lasting.

On my professional word I make this statement: To weak men, young, middle aged or old, who may have the least foundation left to build upon, I promise a positive and permanent cure by the judicious use of my Electric Belt. More than 5,000 attested to this last year. IT STOPS THE DRAIN IN THIRTY DAYS and causing a free circulation of blood to and through the parts, gives development and speedily cures VARICOCELE. I publish in my "HealthWorld," (sent free, sealed with book) more than four hundred sworn voluntary testimonials new every month. I forfeit $5,000 if the currents from my Belt are not felt immediately upon applying to the body. You wear it at night.

IT CURES YOU WHILE YOU SLEEP. If possible, call and consult me free of charge, or probably you have a friend near by who would examine the belt for you. Write to-day for pamphlet and particulars.

SLOAN'S INDIAN TONIC

Th Only Permanent Cure for Indigestion. This is to certify that I, James Ross, Tollgate Keeper of the Town of Woodstock, Ont., have been a sufferer from indigestion and a weak stomach for a number of years, and have tried a great many medicines of different kinds but could only obtain temporary relief for a short time, but after using one bottle of Sloan's Indian Tonic I could perceive a great difference. My indigestion was better and my stomach was much stronger than before and I found I was gaining several pounds in flesh, where I was very weak and thin in flesh before. I think I used nine or ten bottles, but still I do not want to be without the medicine in the house, and I procure one or two bottles every year, and I can truthfully recommend Sloan's Indian Tonic to others suffering from the same complaint.
