Campbellford Gazette. Lee Yong, conducting the Chinese laundry business in Campbellford, a few days ago felt rather out of sorts. He went to a medical man and folding his arms across his stomach bent almost to the ground and groaned, "Sickie too muchie." The doctor examined the patient and gave him a box of pills to take. The Chinaman took the doctor at his word and went home and took the whole box. 'Lee Wan, the Chinaman who started the business in Campbellford reached here from Kingston a few days ago and is now running the laundry.

Tendered A Gift.

Napanee Beaver. Rev. R. S. Forneri and bride met with a warm welcome home from the parishoners of Adolphustown, who gathered at the rectory on their return Friday, 10th inst., from their wedding trip. An excellent repast, speaking and music were among the enjoyments of the evening. As a token of the good will of the congregation, Mrs. Forneri was presented with a wedding gift in its most useful form, namely, in bank notes. The rector thanked his people and reciprocated their good wishes.

"Opifer per Orbem Dicor '

WHAT'S IN A NAME? A contrast has been made between the action of Hon. Mr. Mulock and that of some other members of the local and federal governments. When Hon. Mr. Mulock became poetmaster-general he resigned the position of director of a banking concern, which recently failed, and to the embarrassment of many people. Mr. Mulock did not think it wise to be identified with the management of anything which had to do, directly or indirectly, with the government of which he was a member. It is pointed out that such is not the position of other members, and yet it does not make Mr. Mulock's contention the less pointed. It is evident that ministers and members of parliament are advertised as at the head of various enterprises because of the prestige they are supposed to lend them, and it is also evident that these men cannot be familiar with the details of business. cannot help it in any material way, cannot know much about it. Yet they have become its sponsers to the people. It is even the fashion nowadays for the fraternal societies to initiate ministers and members at sight, to print their pictures and speeches in the literature of the order, to paint their pictures and make a great ado at the unveiling of them, and all for purposes which are apparent, though they are most carefully concealed in these public ceromonies. It is time that our ministers and members of parliament called a halt in this mad rush for fame. Are they to be understood as endorsing all transactions with which their names are associated ? If so the public will hold them to account when mishap or misfortune calls for a reckon-

OBLIGATION OF CHRISTIANS.

The minds of some of our best thinkers are occupied with a study of the church of the past, the present and future. The inference is a general one that the church is not so aggressive as it has been, and this is owing to a lacking in that spirit of consecration which characterized the Mosaic movement and the early Christian church. The money idea is not, in the opinion of some, to be advanced in the pulpit. Christianity, they say, should not day. be a question of dollars and cents, but in the opinion of Rev. Dr. Penticost, of New York, one of the foremost divines in America, a man's wealth and religion cannot be considered separately. God, from the beginning, has been teaching the lesson that all the bounty of this world belongs to Him, and that He is to be honored by the consecration of a worthy portion of all the individual earns or acquires. "And," says Dr. Penticost, "until the church realizes and rises to meet these requirements, this sanctification of wealth, freely, unreservedly, fully, it will experience the present condition of spiritual OF THE OLD-FASHIONED TEA DEALERS poverty. At the threshold of the church of Christ God emphasizes the necessity of the sanctifying of wealth to His cause. But when we withhold our riches, why does not God strike us dead as He did the two children of Israel who withheld the spoils from Him? We are dead, many of us, and our churches are dead. There are dead men in the pews of our churches every Sunday. Not dead in body, but in spirit. If we were to take a vote as to whether or not we wanted a revival, we would all vote yes. We want that revival, but how much do we want it? 'Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse,' saith the Lord, 'and prove me if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing such as ye shall not be able to receive We can have a reviyal any time .we desire it. The reason we do not have a revival is because we, as individuals, do not bring all of our tithes into the store house. There have been revivals in all times, and yet there has never been one which called forth the fulfilment of this promise in its abundance." And Dr. Penticost closed his remarkable discourse in Utica by pointing out that a tenth of the income of the individual is due the hord, and to give it alone involves no great sacrifice. The free-will offering is that in excess of the obligation, the offering that is made out of a full and grateful heart. And people say, Oh, let us hear less about the money side of religion. If the consecration of wealth is a part of that religion, if there cannot be spiritual life without it, if in withholding his contributions one is rob bing God and deadening his spiritual impulses, the education of the church upon the subject is a necessity, and the sooner it begins the better.

One thing is certain-as a study of the local church records will prove-that the more generous givers to any good object, the church, the charity, the mission, are those who have accepted the obligation reforred to by Dr. Penticost and acted in accordance with it. This giving to the poor, the needy, the benighted, to all the funds in which the church is understood to be interested, is a growth and a grace that is so becoming to the Christian.

The church of the future will be that whose agencies for the relief or help of man are most efficient, whose battle against evils in every form will be most energetic, whose aids for the embarrassments of its members will be most successful, whose means of meeting the oppressions of life will be most ample, whose "multiform activities," says one, "will be inclusive, not exclusive." Do you see any signs of it in the church of to-day?

. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Later Information.

KINGSTON, Dec. 16 - (To the Editor): A few more election returns just to hand furnish an excellent commentary on Mr. Bar kér's recent letter. In Liverpool the churchmen elected number eight on a board of tifteen, a gain of two. In Birmingham four churchmen were elected, the high church man being second on the list with the largest number of votes of any churchman. In Sheffield a Wesleyan withdrew in favor of the churchmen, of whom seven were returned, together with one Roman Catholic. The churchmen polled 205,574 votes and the progressives with one additional candi date only 197,573. In Stockton all the five church candidates were returned. Four "unsectarians" mot defeat and two Roman Catholics were elected. The church and Roman Catholics control In Middlesborough church returned five out of six candidates and the Roman Catholics two. Four unsectarians, one independent, one "ratepayers' representative" and two labor men complete the board. On the other hand in Northampton, Bradford and Leeds the church party has met defeat. In Bradford this was due to bad organiza tion for church candidates averaged 21, 757 votes against the radicals 20,882, but the votes were badly distributed. On the whole the opposition of Englishmen to the religious teaching desired and earnestly sought by the church of their fathers is a little difficult to discover in their behavior at the polls. - ROBERT W.

Victorian Order Of Nurses' Scheme KINGSTON, Dec. 17.—(To the Elitor) A recent letter of your correspondent

Gatineau contained one of many misrepresentations of the Victorian nurses' scheme now floating about. It was to the effect that lady Aberdeen thinks there are not enough nurses in Canada, and so wants to bring in nurses from outside, the inference being that these are to compete injuriously with Canadian nurses. Now neither lady Aberdeen, nor any one on her behalf, has said that there are not nurses enough in Canada; no one know at present whether there are or not. There certainly are not enough nurses in the north-west, and one principal aim of this maligned scheme is to be a channel whereby the superabundance of nurses waiting for work in Ontario and Quebec is to be brought into the work awaiting them in the north-west. Of course, if the supply of qualified Canadian nurses should prove insufficient, other nurses will have to be brought in, in the interest of the suffering patients, but as there are many Canadian nurses who have had to seek employment in the United States, not a few of these will probably be available for the Victorian order. Some first rate Canadian nurses have already volunteered for its service, and many more are in full sympathy with its views"-
