IF WE WOULD.

If we would but check the speaker,
When he spoils his neighbour's fame;
If we would but help the erring,
Ere we utter words of blame;
If we would, how many might we
Turn from sin and shame!

Ah! the wrongs that might be righted,
If we would but see the way!
Ah, the pains that might be lightened
Every hour and every day,
If we would but hear the pleadings
Of the hearts that go astray.

In each life, however lowly,
There are seeds of mighty good;
Still we shrink from souls appealing
With a timid "if we could."
But a God who judgeth all things
Knows the truth is, "if we would."

"SANDY BILL."

Did you know Sandy Bill? Well, I should say so! Smartest and ugliest man ever on the frontier. Knew him first in Dead Man's gulch when they found placers there. Bill came down to wash dirt, but he soon got tired of that and took to cards. But cards got away with him. He wasn't strong enough for them. He used to say, after he got right bad, that the black spots stained his heart and the red ones his hands. He was sullen-like at times, and then there was trouble. He'd pull a gun quicker than a flash, and there would be a cold meat for the coroner in the wink of an eye. Bad man, Bill was.

They wanted to get him out of the gulch once, and the camp council held a meeting on it, but the undertaker got the council drunk and made 'em vote that Bill should stay. He was good for one branch of business at least.

Bill was cross-eyed and when he got right mad it used to make the boys feel queer all around. They couldn't understand exactly who he was mad at, for his eye would take in all sides of the room, which made it sorter awkward. He shot a fellow once and got off on the plea that it was an accident on this account. Four men swore that he was looking right at them, and that his gun went off in the other direction. The court allowed that a man couldn't be hung because of an infirmity, but said that if such an accident happened again an overruling Providence would rake in a prominent citizen. For you see there wasn't any getting away from Bill's straight shooting, even if he had crooked eyes. When he had the drop on a man you could bet on a funeral with the same christian confidence you could on four aces.

But Bill went under, and in a queer way, too. It was after they found some gold lodes of free milling quartz above the gulch and the camp had become a town. Bill was running a bank above the Nugget saloon, and he made it pay big. One day a fellow walked into town all rags and misery, and went into the bank. Bill was keeping cases, and the minute he saw the stranger he jumped up and walked over to him. There was some talk and they shook hands. Then Bill came back to the table leading the stranger. "Boys," said he, "when I was sick this man doctored me; when I was hungry he fed me; when I crawled out of the rebel stockade in Macon and tried to get north he helped me. My friends are his friends. My enemies are his enemies. No matter how the cards run half I've got is his." Then Bill sat down, for he wasn't much of a talker.

The next day the stranger came out in a better outfit, but it didn't help his looks much. There was something mean about his eyes that looked like the devil's mark. He had a noisy, blustering way about him, and nobody took to Bill's pet. And it wasn't a good day for Bill when he came, either, for after that everything seemed to go wrong. The stranger spent an awful sight of money, and all of it came from Bill. He used to cut up and make bad breaks about the bank, but Bill stood it all and never said a word. If any of the boys growled he'd just take in three angles of the room with his eyes, and that settled matters. If they talked with him, he'd just shrug his shoulders and say he was of age.

One day, though, Bill's bank closed. Nobody knew what it meant for a while, but when "Georgia"—that's what they called the stranger—didn't turn up it was whispered about that he had gathered up all the loose scads and skipped. Bill would never say so, though. He wouldn't talk about it at all. He just soaked his watch and pin and went in for another pile with two different expressions in his eyes, one harder than the other. About "Georgia" he never opened his mouth.

He got to drinking pretty hard after that, but his luck was big. It was hard to tell how much he won, for he would not talk about it, but he made a big winning and must have had a nice little pile. He never said anything to any one, and didn't seem to want any friends. Things went on this way for some time after "Georgia" left, and then there was an excitement. Two bronchos had been stolen above the camp, and the chief was caught and brought into town. It was "Georgia," looking more hang-dog and meaner than ever. As soon as Bill heard of it he went to the owners of the stock and offered them double the price not to prosecute. They took it and agreed, but the thing had raised such a row that a trial was bound to come off anyhow. It didn't, though. The day set "Georgia" escaped from jail and got away scot free. There was a good deal of talk about it, and the next time Bill was seen on the streets it was noticed that he didn't wear his watch. He bet low at the tables that evening, too.

That changed his luck, and when a gambler's luck changes he's gone. The cards never turn up right after they've got out of the habit. It was hard on Bill. He drank hard and looked hard. He wore his clothes a good deal longer than he used to, and when the snow began to fly he was on the streets without an overcoat. No one could help him, he wouldn't have it. He lived over a little dive on an off street, and didn't allow any one to come near his room. He was surly, and bitter and ugly, and when he got into a row with a man he used to beat him with anything he could get his hands on. He never did that in his better days. He'd just shoot and be done with it. So all the boys sort of kept away from him, and he got a bad name. When he played at all it was with a tin horn crowd, and queer stories came to be circulated after a time. There was a good deal of "holding up" in those days, and people got an idea that Bill might be doing some of it. At any rate a man was killed in front of Bill's place early one morning, and when the crowd came up and found Bill there it was quick enough to think that he had done it. He had been seen with the dead man the night before, and there was another man all muffled with them, but Bill wouldn't say who he was. Fact is, he wouldn't answer any questions at all, and when the trial came it didn't take the jury long to bring in a verdict of guilty. The town was a little scared up, and the people thought there ought to be an example. There was one queer thing about it, though. The murdered man had a lot of money, but there wasn't a nickel on Bill. After the verdict there was an attempt by some of Bill's old friends to get a pardon, but he wouldn't have it. He said he was ready and willing to hang and wanted the show to end as soon as possible. The only thing he seemed uneasy about was as to whether any one else was suspected, and he would ask cautious questions about what people thought, and what the theories concerning the murder were. The day before the hanging he wrote a letter, put it in an envelope and addressed it, and then put both in a blank envelope. He gave this to Reddy Jim, one of his old time pards, and told him not to take off the blank envelope until after he was dead, and then deliver the letter inside to where it was addressed, and keep his mouth shut about the whole business. Reddy promised, and the next day Bill was hung and died game.

After he was dead Reddy took off the blank envelope and read the address. It was to "Georgia." That made him curious and the letter burned his hands. He had always had an idea that there was something behind the murder which Bill was trying to conceal, and he thought that this letter might tell what it was. So, after holding it four days he gave it to the sheriff, who opened it. This is what was in it:

"Dear Old Pard—The game's square. You saved me and I've saved you. I ain't mad or hurt because you didn't come back and take the murder off my shoulders, for I wanted to get through anyhow. The cards are against me and there's no use fighting luck. I only write this to tell you that some of these fools about here may think queer of the business and look into it, so get as far out of the way as you can. You'd better go home and drop your way of life. There ain't no good in it. Good bye.

"BILL."

That let in a lot of light. "Georgia" had killed the man and Bill had shouldered the blame. They tried to find him, but he was gone. He had put out for it when Bill was first tried. They never heard of him again.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Opening of the Season Propitious—Stock in Hand—Present Outlook.

(Montreal Paper.)

The season for cheese manufacture can be said to have fully opened, as nearly all the factories in this district have commenced operations, and those that have not already commenced operations can be expected to commence operations at an early date. The prospect is that, stimulated by the high prices last year, the make this year will be very large. As to the prospect for prices a New York correspondent under date of April 5th says: "The cheese trade in this city is in a stagnant condition. The present is unsatisfactory and the future uncertain. It was hoped that by this time the market would be cleaned up as thoroughly as it was last year. But a close account of stock held in this market on the first of this month showed that there were 35,013 boxes of what were classed as "cheddars," and 15,814 boxes of "flats," making a total of 50,827 boxes on hand. A year ago the stock footed up about 26,000 boxes, so that there is an excess this year of 25,000 boxes more than last spring at the same date. Of course the proportion of fine stock is comparately small, probably not more than 10,000, and it is believed that the price of this can be fully maintained. The receipts, however, are unusually large for this season of the year, almost double in fact. Last year the receipts in April were about 26,000 boxes, this year they will be 40,000, if we judge from the receipts of the month already past. This stock is composed chiefly of creamery skims, and it is arriving so freely that the price is correspondingly low. As soon as full milk fodder cheese comes into market it will probably bring about 12½c. Prices on the other side of the water do not warrant shippers in paying more than 12½c. for the best fall stock now in the market, but it is hoped that, if new cheese starts at that, the old will be worth enough more to enable holders to get out without much loss." In New York the receipts for the week were 10,065 boxes, exports 14,966 boxes. There was 13½c. bid for fancy cheese, state or western, 13¼c. was bid for fine October New York state factory and offered at 14c. Medium and lower grades dull, flat skims unsalable.

How Indians Return Calls.

A party of Sioux Indians were guests at a leading Milwaukee hotel, and the ladies had a great deal of amusement with them, studying their customs; that is, they all did except one lady. The ladies called upon the Indians, and the savages returned the calls almost before the ladies got to their rooms. One lady called on a chief, and then went to her room and retired, and pretty soon there was a knock at her door, and she found that it was the chief. She told him to come in the morning. The lady unlocks her door in the morning, so the porter can come in and build a fire before she gets up. She heard a knock in the morning, and supposing it was the porter, she said, "Come in." The door opened, and in walked Mr. Indian. She took one look at him, and pulled the bedclothes over her head. He sat down on the side of the bed and said, "How?" Well, she was so scared that she didn't know "How" from Adam. She said to him in the best Sioux that she could command, "Please, good Mr. Indian, go away until I get up," but he didn't seem to be in a hurry. He picked up pieces of her wearing apparel from the floor, different articles that he didn't seem to know anything about where they were worn, and made comments on them in the Sioux tongue. The stockings seemed to paralyze his untutored mind the most. They were those long, 90 degrees in the shade stockings, and they were to much for his feeble intellect. He held them up by the toes and said "Ugh!" The lady trembled and wished he would go way. He seemed to take great delight in examining the hair on the bureau, and looked as much as to say, "Poor girl, some hostile tribe has made war on the pale face and taken many scalps." Finally, she happened to think of the bell, and she rung it as though the house was on fire, and pretty soon the porter came and invited the Indian to go down stairs and take a drink. The lady locked the door to quick, and she will never leave it open again when there are Indians in town. She says her hair—on the bureau—fairly turned grey from fright.—"Milwaukee Sun."

LATE DR PUNSHON

A Brief Sketch of his Active and Brilliant Minister at Career.

Dr. Punshon was born at Doncaster England, in 1824, and was the son of a well-to-do draper there. He received his early education in his native town, but at the age of eleven he was placed in charge of a tutor who was the son of a Congregational minister in Derbyshire. At fifteen he became a clerk in the shipping business at Hull, and subsequently served in the same capacity at Sunderland. At twenty he removed to Woolwich, where he resided with his uncle, the Rev. Benjamin Clough, a distinguished oriental scholar and a zealous and self-denying missionary. Under his influence Dr. Punshon prepared himself for the Wesleyan ministry, and at the Conference of 1843 received his first appointment, which was to Whitehaven, in Cumberland. Though only 21 he at once became popular as a preacher, and during the seven years of his sojourn at Whitehaven, Carlisle, and Newcastle he won a reputation which extended over the whole north of England. The next six years were spent at Sheffield and Leeds amidst ever-increasing

POPULARITY AND USEFULNESS.

In 1854 he made his début as an Exeter Hall lecturer, his subject being the now familiar one, "The Prophet of Horeb," and this appearance was followed by a second one in 1857, when he delivered for the first time his admirable lecture on "John Bunyan." From this time forward he was occupied largely with work in and around London, until his departure for Canada in 1868. Immediately after his return to England in 1873 he was elected to the highest position in his own church, that of President of the Conference. He has since filled the position of Secretary of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, which has helped to keep his name familiar to the adherents of that body in all lands. For some time past his

HEALTH HAS BEEN FAILING

and he spent a part of last winter in the South of France to recuperate. The recent death of one of his sons at Bournemouth, and the poor health of another son, seemed to prey upon him. He went a few weeks ago to Italy and returned—so it is natural to surmise—to England to die. His home was at Brixton, where he died. He leaves a wife and two sons, one of the latter having gone from Toronto about a month ago. Dr. Punshon's first wife was a daughter of Mr. Vicars, of Gateshead, and he was married to her shortly after he took up his residence in Newcastle. His marriage with his second wife, who was a sister of the first, took place after his arrival in Toronto, where her death occurred in '71. His daughter, who was the wife of Prof. Raynor, of Victoria College, died at Cobourg on the eve of his departure for England in 1873.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea, being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.

The finest remedies in the world for bad legs, old wounds, sores, and ulcers. If used according to directions given with them, there is no wound, bad leg, or ulcerous sore, however obstinate or long standing, but will yield to their healing and curative properties. Numbers of persons, who have been patients in several of the large hospitals and under the care of eminent surgeons, without deriving the slightest benefit have been thoroughly cured by Holloway's Ointment and Pills. For glandular swellings, tumors, scurvy, and diseases of the skin, there is no medicine that can be used with so good an effect. In fact, in the worst forms of disease, dependent upon the condition of the blood, these medicines, if used conjointly, are irrestible.

Who is the Prettiest Girl in America?

Is a question that would perplex a congress of connoisseurs assembled to nominate the most beautiful. But such an assemblage would not be surprised to learn, that the most charming of their sex, on this side of the Atlantic, enhance the beauty and preserve the soundness of their teeth with SOZODONT, since everybody knows, that the ladies prefer it to any and all dentifrices. Let no man say after this, that women lack judgment.

Zopesa and Brazil.

As a result of the new commercial enterprise just assuming importance with Brazil, is the introduction of ZOPESA, so justly celebrated where it is known for the cure of all forms of Indigestion. The company have opened a laboratory in Toronto. ZOPESA comes to us highly endorsed and recommended, its certainty to relief and cure Dyspepsia and Constipation, makes this remarkable compound a necessity in Canada. The company make sample bottles at the trifling cost of 10 cents; to be had of Heath & Gunn and Henry Wade.

Reminders

Bellmen were appointed in London in 1556, to ring the bells at night and cry, "Take care of your fire and candle, be charitable to the poor, and pray for the dead." We are constantly reminded by circumstances to take care of our health, and preserve in a proper way our bodies. This, alas! is too often neglected. The dyspeptic and bilious are induced to make trial of some drug or patent medicine, which often aggravates the malady. Be sure and provide yourself with Baxter's Mandrake Bitters; they are highly prized by all who have used them, as the most effectual cure for all disorders of the stomach.

Poultry of All Kinds

Are improved in weight, prolificness and health, through the use of HARVELL'S CONDITION POWDERS. Where these great specifics are occasionally mixed with the feed, according to the printed directions, the stock at once becomes remunerative and free from all disease. Try them!

A cough is usually the effort of Nature to expel some morbid matter irritating the air passages of the lungs. It may, however, proceed from an inflamed or irritable condition of the throat, a slight rash or humor often being perceptible. Let the cause be what it may, the remedy should be Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. A purely vegetable Balsamic throat and lung healer. For sale by all dealers in medicine, at 25 cents per bottle.

Do not let prejudice stand in the way of relief if you suffer from any lingering disease. Burdock Blood Bitters cures others, why should it not benefit you? It is a specific for all forms of Blood, Liver, and Kidney Complaints, Nervous Headaches, General Debility, Scrofula and all diseases of the secretory system. Trial bottles 10 cents.

Warner's Blood Purifier

THE season is at hand when most people require to take such medicine as will CLEANSE THE LIVER AND STOMACH of the impurities which are not generally discharged by nature alone, but which must be removed in order that those organs may perform their functions thoroughly. The most successful agents in such word are often the simplest, and in

Warner's Blood Purifier
are combined the three qualities of Simplicity, Safety and Success.

A course of this valuable medicine just at this time of the year, has the desirable and certain effect of gradually but thoroughly purging and afterwards regulating the stomach, liver and bowels, and of cleansing the blood, and in this lies THE GRAND SECRET OF THE ENJOYMENT OF HEALTH. Warner's Blood Purifier sold by all druggists. Price fifty cents a bottle.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN
On the Loss of MANHOOD

WE have recently published a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practise, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife, pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.
