SWAMPED AND DEFEATED.

The Champion's Boat Ran Into by Steamer-Fadly Managed Regatta at Fall River.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 20.-One of the worst managed regattas on record was attempted here to day. Hanlan's. boat was swamped and he was beaten. Things were upside down generally. In the professional race Hanian, Lee, Ten Eyek, Hamm, McKay, Hosmer, Ross, Driscoll, Teemer, Riley, Plaisted, Elliott and Gaisel started. The then first refused to row on account of the rough water, but the referee ordered them to their boats. Riley, Plaisted and Gaisel were not up to the line when the word was given. Haulan and Elliott had started before Plaisted heard the word. The referee shouted for the men to come back, and

A WHISTLE WAS SOUNDED.

Riley, Hosmer and Hamm came back, and the others kept on, Hanlau well ahead. It was not doubted on the referce's boat that all the men understood the signal to return, but the men continued over the course, with Teemer leading, Driscoll second, McKay third, Hanlan a way behind them and the others struggling in the rear. It looked as if the men were determined not to row the race on its merits. The referee immediately ordered the race to be Phipps, as he struggled to release himrowed over again. About 7 o'clock another start was made. The men got off pretty even, Hanlan shooting to the front, with Elliott a close second, Lee and Hawm several lengths behind and close together. The rest of the men were in a bunch. Plaisted slightly ahead. Hanlan turned the buoy first, Ross and Hosmer close behind and turning nearly together. Hanlan had the inside course, but his water was, quite rough. The steamer Canonicus with an excursion party, came down the river as Hanian turned the buoy and STEAMED AMONG THE CARSMEN. The swell swamped Hanlan, Elliott and Hamm, practically throwing Hanlan out of the race. Darkness fell rapidly and it was almost impossible to distinguish the men at the finish. Lee upset after crossing the line, and Driscoll drew out half a mile from the start.

At the finish half a dozen oarsmen surrounded the judge's boat, several claiming first position. It was given to Teemer, who made two and a half miles in 18.28; Hosmer 2nd, 18.30; Ross 3rd, 18.35. Hanlau said he was beaten, but did not feel very bad about it, ing. There was so money bet on him. The other oarsmen claim Hanlan was outrowed, but the roughness of the water and the swamping of his boat may be taken as the cause of defeat. Note .- The above is the way the report came over the wires last night, but it appears to be as badly mixed up as the regatta itself, says the World.

Fall River, Aug. 22.-The oarsmer are jubilant over Hanlan's defeat. Ross asserts that Hanlan, finding himself pushed too hard, swamped his own boat.

WIFE MURDER.

Unhappy Domestic Relations Culminate in Death - An Unfaithful Wife's End.

A horrible murder was committed on he ferry boat Hope, Detroit, just after she left the foot of Woodward-avenue Sunday evening. Luke Phipps, bar-tender at John Armstrong's billiard room, shot his wife, Effie Phipps, deliberately walking up behind her and firing the contents of a revolver into her body. Phipps heard that his wife was riding on one of the ferry boats, went down to the wharf, and discovered her on the upper deck of the Hope. He boarded the boat, mingling with the crowd. His wife, a slender blonde, sat alone. He passed among the people and reached slowly toward his hip pocket. When he had reached a point a few feet from her she saw him and started to go up. Before she could say a word his hand grasped the weapon in his pocket, and he shot three times, the woman falling and crying, "Oh, Luke ! ob, mother !"

THE SCENE ON THE BOAT. Some sought to seize the murlerer while others rained blows on his head with chairs. He was overpowered and given into the custody of one of the deck hands. The latter said to him "You have come to a pretty place to do a thing of this kind." "My friend," said self, and his breath showed that he had been drinking, "You don't know what I have gone through. The woman is my wife, and I intended to kill her. I den't care if I hang in a minute for it. There and if I had time I would have put them | murderers. into her." He relapsed into silence while his arms were pionioned, and he was held securely until fie reached the Canadian shore, where he was taken in charge and locked up. The dead woman was carried to the lower deck. Her death had been almost instantaneous. The bullets was small. One of them entered nearly under the left arm, one in the back just below the right shoulder, and one in the right side. Phipps and Effie Brown were married thirteen years ago at Spencerport, N.Y. They lived with her parents some time, when he came to Detroit. In 1877 they returned to Spencerport, and Mr. Brown gave his daughter ten acres of land, a house, and a billiard saloon, which he furnished in one of the blocks he owned. They all remained a few months. Phipps returned to Detroit his wife follow-

last evening by a reporter and said he was sorry he had committed the crime, but he had fully made up his minds to do it. "She has deserted me, and been untrue to me, and laughed at my appeals to come back and take care of the three children. I have not done it because I hated her, but because I loved her," he said. Phipps stated that the first cause of his troubles was a man named Harry Livingston, who was in Armstrong's employ and who boarded in his family. Some one told him his wife was not all to him she should be. He left home one led him to make complaint against his wife for adultery, which he did. She was are in Detroit.

MICHAEL DAVITT'S PROGNOSTICATION. Michael Davitt writes: It is probable that, in the event of the Gladstone Government being able to remain in power until next year, a change of the Parliamentary representation of Ireland will be one of the features of the measure of electoral reform which the Liberals stand pledged to introduce next year. The change will consist in reducing the quota of 105 members to 90 or 95. It is equally certain that the extension of household suffrage to county constituencies in Great Britain will apply to Ireland also, in which case the diminution of Irish constituencies would be overbalanced by an increase of national representatives. Under the existing franchise the most that Mr. Parnell expects to do at the general election is to secure seventy seats. This will still leave an anti-national composite party of members from Ireland, which will reduce his actual voting power in the House of Commons to 27.

RHODES' MOVEMENTS.

Buffalo, Aug. 20.—Capt. Rhodes was at the Falls to-day, but did nothing except talk. He did not send his sand bag armour through, but will send a 65pound dog through to-morrow encased in the apparatus, and will thereupon be arrested for cruelty to animals. The police were looking for him to-night, but as he is registered at several hotels, and has been hovering between the Falls and Suspension Bridge, they did not catch him. An old scow 30 x 12ft. is being converted into a 65 x 16 ft. boat, to be built nearly like the Maid of the Mist. It will be sent through the rapids with no one aboard, as soon as completed. Capt. Rhodes wants to go, but at a meeting to-night the projectors refused to have anything to do with him.

A GREAT RIOT.

London, Aug. 20 .- The riotous outbreaks which occurred at Coatbridge vesterday between the Irish Home Rule element and the Orangemen were resuned to-day with even more violence. Clubs, stones and not a few pistols were freely used by the members of the warring factions and many received serious wounds. The police had to charge the mob repeatedly before they desisted their efforts for supremacy; in fact, so fierce did the conflict rage, and so intense was the feeling between the fighting factions that at the first charge of the police both parties turned on them and beat them back.

London, Aug. 20 .- Two of the police were dangerously wounded. A number of Catholics armed with picks and hammers paraded the main streets in search of antagonists.

A CATTLE RANCHE.

Kingstonian Tells of the Cattle Ranches in New Mexico-Old King stonians Heard From

Yesterday afternoon the door of our sanctum was pushed open and a familiar figure popped in. No card was used to introduce him. John Waddingham had just returned from a two years visit to New Mexico. There is no man in Kingston who has travelled as much as John. As a roving printer he has seen more of the world- and at less cost than one has conception of. For many months he has been on the road, and though he has repeatedly gone far a way has bobbed up serenely in the limestone city. "Come in" was the greeting given the typo. He did come in and soon gave an account of his wanderings. He was on the ranche of his brother, Wilson Waddingham, a millionaire and an old Kingstonian. HE HAS THE BELL RANCHE situated near Lacinta, New Mexicos This ranche is 33 miles square and contains over 600,000 acres of land, rough and rocky but excellent for grazing purposes. Upon it there are 70,000 head of cattle. The stock is graded and brings the highest figures in the market. The ranche is considered the finest in the world. From 50 to 100 men look after the stock. The cattle are kept until three years old and upward, then sold. No heifers are disposed of. These are kept for breeding. The rane he 150 miles from the Atcheson, Topeka and Sante Fe Railway. Dou Mical Stattery, an Irishman, is the chief herder. There is another manche at Fort Bascom in which the Waddinghams are interested. This consists of about 200, 000 acres, upon which road 11,000 head of cattle. Joseph Waddingham, brother of Wilson, is manager of what is known as the "Waddingham Cattle Association." The brand is "three P's," on the side, shoulder and hip of each animal. Joseph Waddingham, who formerly kept the planing mill here, has a store at Fort Bascom, and his son William is Postmaster at Lacinta.

A LOST SON. John states that shortly after his arrival in Mexico, his cousin, Joseph Waddingham, jr., son of Joseph Waddingham, of Fort Bascom, a lad 16 years of age, went out after supper, threw a blanket and saddle over a horse, jumped upon the animal's back and went for a ride. From that day no trace has been found of him. Days and weeks were consumed in hunting for the lost boy. but yet no clue has been obtained. The grief of the mother has been very great. The lad had between $60 and $70 on his person, and some think he was made away with. A CATTLE STAMPEDE.

John was once with Mexican and Texas cowboys, who drove 11,000 head of cattle from Trieeo to Fort Bascom, a distance of 200 miles. The trip occupied six weeks. The cattle are driven from water to water each day, a distance of about eight or ten miles. The Indians were very annoying, and once caused a stampede. The red men in Mexico are very cowardly. The stampede occurred by their flourishing firebrands and yelling in the night. The least excitement sets the cattle wild, and with extended tails and lowered heads they rush in all directions, sometimes for four or five days, until they become faint from exhaustion and drop on the ground. The Indians chase the animals, kill those they can, cut the meat from their flanks and leave the remainder to land as an excuse. Mr. Gladstone was and that he will be tried in a Canadian Rhodes told a Globe correspondent that decay. The stampede caused a considfrequently interrupted by Mr. Biggar. Court. The shooting occurred on a he would make the attempt next Sun- erable loss to the owners of the cattle, and nearly a week was consumed in collecting some of the cattle again. KIND-HEARTED FELLOWS.

> In answer to the question as to whether cowboys were terrible men John said they were not. They were goodhearted men, extremely kind and affectionate. There was a great difference between a cowboy and a desperado. He tells a story of a cowboy who carried a pistol, and who, though he never used it, always had it near him. He caught small pox and was about to die, when he called his friends, declared that he was an outlaw, and that $1,200 was offered for his body. He had carried the pistol to protect himself. He asked his comrades to deliver his body and get the cash, but they refused, and wrapping his remains in a blanket placed it beneath the sod.
