

Lord Randolph Churchill is said to be sick, but the suspicion is that Mr. Chamberlain has dumbfounded him by the boldness of his platform. He knew that the great Radical leader had a knack of reaching the people's hearts, and the applause following his last great speech seems to have brought total collapse to the Tory touter. Lord Randolph has been trying to undermine Mr. Chamberlain's public popularity, but he has not succeeded.

The Orange Sentinel warns our French Canadian neighbors that they stand upon a volcano, which at any moment may explode. "Riel," it says, "has been fairly tried and convicted, and the sentence of the court must be carried out. His crimes against Canada and the Canadian people are self-evident, and if the French element of this Dominion are determined to cheat the gollows, they must accept the consequences." The Sentinel should have gone a little further and stated what these consequences are likely to be.

LIBERAL SENTIMENT.

In addressing the electors of Hampstead, the Marquis of Lorne said that his mind had been much influenced in favour of free churches and free schools by what he saw in Canada. He was in favour of disestablishment; and of making the sale of land as easy as the sale of an umbrella. But on the above points he is widely at variance with the prevailing feeling in England. The liberal air one breathes in Canada creates a healthfulness of sentiment that the political fogs of England do not assimulate with. In spite of the growing power and aggressiveness of Radicalism the Marquis will find conversion to his views very slow among the influential | The bed room windows had been forced classes. A REMARKABLE SPEECH.

That was a remarkable speech which Vice-President Hendricks made in Indiana on the Irish question. It was kind of him to attend a meeting of Irishmen, to express his sympathy with Parnell, to denounce landlordism, and to demand the independence of Ireland And why did he do all this? Because he was greatly concerned about the success of the new movement? Not a bit of it. Mr. Hendricks is a demagogue, and he has spent his later years in forwarding the interests of his party. Great man he is not, but he has been credited with much shrewdness, and negally makes the speeches which political exigencies suggest. The Vice-President of the United States is not supposed to play the part of the ward politician; he is expected to be some: what dignified in his official relations; certainly he is expected to leave the dictation of foreign policy and foreign government to those whose outspokenness is not likely to prove so embarrassing. He said nothing wonderful, nothing that had not been said before by abler men, but his saying it at all has been remarkable, and for the reason that his motives have been of a most dishonest character.

POLITICAL HUMBUGS.

The leader of the Tory party in the British House of Commons, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, is determined that if bold assertion can avail in the pending elections it shall not be wanting on his part. He has undertaken to prove that the Tories have not been the persistent opponents of Irish reforms, that history on this point is unjust and erroneous. In a recent speech he is reported to have said: "I have had some experience of the government of Ireland. There are few politicians in this country who have been responsible for the government of Ireland for a longer period than I have, and I say-not as a boast-that, when I left the Irish office in 1878. Ireland was more free from exceptional legislation and more tranquil than it had almost been known in the history of our time. Therefore it is not fair and not true to say the Tories are the party in favor of the coercion of Ireland by exceptional legislation. What we desire and intend is preservation of law and order in Ireland by constitutional means, and we believe we shall be able to do it.

A wonderful regard Sir Michael and his friends appear to have suddenly developed for the Irish people. They were not always so solicitous about the downtrodden Hibernians; in truth, these they neglected so much during the latter portion of Beaconsfield's reign as to force them to the brink of revolution. The condition of the country was anything but tranquil, nor was there promise of that peace and prosperity for the return of which some almost despaired. Sir Michael denies that his party favored coercion; but the memory of the average reader is not so defective as to have lost recollection of the threat which Lord Beaconsfield made before his fateful defeat—that, if necessary, he would restore order in Ireland at the point of the bayonet. It was Mr. Gladstone who gave Ireland all the constitutional reforms she now enjoys, and he did it despite the opposition of men like Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and the Marquis of Salisbury. For political effect, they would now pose as the saviours of a distressed people, but before one can have confidence in them, he must be sure that the ugly record of the past is buried, and buried so deep as to be beyond the hope of resurrection.

ROUNDING A LIFE ROMANCE.

Lovers Who Separated Forty Years Ago Most by Chance and are Married. Baltimore, Sept. 11 .- Forty years ago

Rev. Thomas E. Myers, a young man of 30 years, persistently courted Miss Elvina Cobb, of Baltimore county. They afterward had a misunderstanding and parted. Two weeks ago the couple met at Emory Grove camp meeting for the first time since their separation. Each had been twice married and buried their life partners. Their hair was silver. Each registered as "Mr. Davis," and ed, and in the case of the whilom lover time had not dealt severely with him. His once sturdy frame seemed none the less capable of exciting a romantic interest. On the day before the camp broke up a young Baltimore belle turned a corner very suddenly and saw the Rev. Mr. Myers in the act of presenting a bouquet. He blushed and dropped the flowers.

The episode seemed to convince Mr. Myers that he should clear himself of the suspicion of flirting, and he torthwith proposed to Mrs. Hall. The engagement was at once announced. the ceremony being performed just forty years after the date of their separation. Rev. Dr. Thomas Poulson officiated, and the bride and groom stood under a huge silver bell while the knot was being tied. As the carriage bore Mr. and Mrs. Myers to the depot, their ten children and twelve grandchildren stood on the front steps and fired rice and old slippers after them. Mr. Myers' two greatgrandchildren, one of which was cutting its teeth, were curious and noisy specta-

FIGHT IN COUNTY CLARE

Provoked by the Opponents of Landlordism -A Great Many Sore Beads.

Kilrush, on Shannon, County Clare, Ireland, Sept. 12.—There was tremen dons excitement and rioting yesterday afternoon at the races for the Kilrush and Clare plates. For several days bitter complaints have been made against the obnoxious landlords who devote themselves to horse racing. Yesterday the following notice was posted in streets and on the fences for miles about :

"Men of Clare—Are you going to allow those vile instruments of landlord tyranny, Tom Sheedy and Charles Martin, who have carried their deathsentence to so many of our brethren. notably to Mrs. McIverney, who perished after her eviction, to run their horses, Harkaway and Stella Filly, in the people's races. If so you share in their infamy. Show yourselves then, and be there to prevent it, as scoundrels are defying you. 'God Save Ireland.'"

Thousands of people, who had been at the Limerick races, had arrived to witness the sport. The race-course was lined by enormous crowds of angry men, women and children, who were yelling and brandishing shillaleighs. Everybody felt that a big fight was to come off. The owners of the horses resorted to stratagem, in which they avoided the vengeance of the populace. Martin at-tempted to disguise his filly by painting her brown, but the jockey, Lynch, was recognized by the crowd and hailed with storms of groans, hisses and yells. A free fight ensued. Lynch was knocked off the horse and dragged about on the ground, where the people jumped on him. He narrowly escaped with his life. All the jockeys were torn off their horses and kicked and dragged about. Hundreds of heads were smashed, but nobody killed.

They rowed the Batteau Channel and caught a maskinonge, weighing 24 lbs. It made desperate efforts to regain its liberty. Once it sprang up and stuck its fine into one of Mr. Sabre's hands, inflicting a deep wound. Mr. Deming was surprised at the catch. Beside the maskinonge a number of pike and bass were captured.

> Hi, hway Robbery. Mr. George Graham, a venerable farmer. 72 years of age, Sidney, was robbed at Belleville on Tuesday evening. Mr. Graham had remained under the circus canvas in hopes that the rain would abate. As the evening advanced and the prospects for fair weather grew no brighter he boarded a street car. As he alighted from it at the bridge he was assaulted by unknown men. One choked him and the other went through his pockets and relieved him of $75 in cash, and a deposit book on the Bank of Commerce. A curious circumstance in connection with the robbery was that the thieves never touched his watch and chain, on which was a masonic emblem. Mr. Graham has a brother who lives near Portsmouth. All are U. E. Loyal-

AN ECONOMICAL TOWNSHIP. Some of the Schemes it Adopts to Save Money-Hard on the Poor. "The township of Kingston," says a resident, "is clearly proving that a corperation has no soul. The council has adopted a scheme which will throw several people upon the cold charity of the world. About three years ago a baby was found on a doorstep at Cataraqui, and, of course, the township had to maintain it. A widow was given charge of the infant and paid $1 a week. She became attached to the child and will no part with it. The corporation, ascertaining the affection which the foster mother had for the child, offered the woman $50 to close all further liability or have the child taken from her. In another instance it was found that a pauper, who was paid $5 a month, would rather starve than go to the poor house, and a councillor at once moved that he be sent to the institution at a cost of $6 a month, the grant in case of refusal to be withdrawn. The unfortunate is now begging from door to door. Truly the economy of the rich township of Kingston is wonderful." The residents seem very indignant over the council's action
