MR. H. G. JOLY'S REASONS.

For Resigning His Seat Rather Than Help Along in the Riel Agitation.

Gentlemen-If I refuse to attend the mass for the rest of Riel's soul it is not out of any religious prejudice. I have considered it my duty to attend the funeral of the Hon. Judge Caron, of the Hon. Luc Letellier de St. Just, and of a want of respect for Riel's memory.

The courage with which he met his death entitles him to the respect of all, even of those who cannot approve of his approve of the agitation which is now carried on in the Province of Quebec. THE JURY'S VERDICT STANDS. The Editor, British Whig.

SIR,-I noticed a letter from the Massey Manufacturing Company, of Toronto, in one of your issues of last week commenting upon the cases brought at Thomas Brown and myself, and in well which the jury found in our favor.

The company, in that letter, indulged in a great'deal of blowing and puffing about their machines, and also that the judge had charged the jury in their favor at the trial. This was certainly untrue, as the judge did not lean to one side or the other. They also threatened to move for a new trial, and otherwise glorified themselves and their machines. Well, they applied for a new trial. We were served with a long written application for a new trial and for a lot of other things puzzling to us. We handed the papers to our counsel, Mr. McIntyre, be.—Messrs. Mr. John Wilmot submitted a scheme which, after consideration, the board adopted. It was "that all convenors of missionary deputations be requested at the time of missionary meetings to organize in each parish a branch mission board with a chairman and secretary and treasurer, and a board of management of five members. The object of such branch shall be to comprise in its organization every member of the congregation, and each member shall be required of his or her means to contribute to the mission fund, and each statement to its members showing the The threshing machine has left the neighbor- club. names of contributors and the amount contributed. All such contributions less expenses shall be forwarded by the Secretary-Treasurer of the branch to in charge of Mr. E. Sands, I should have the Clerical Secretary of the Synod."

The mission board was requested to furnish convenors with a statement of the manner in which the funds were expended during the past year. The bishop was requested to issue a pastoral setting forth the needs of the mission fund, said pastoral to be read to the several congregations in the diocese on the Sunday previous to holding the annual missionary meeting.
