EYE WITNESS' DESCRIPTION OF MASSACRES AT TREBIZOND.

Armenians Pursued and Savagely Slaughtered by the Blood-Thirsty Turks—Pinned in Buildings and Burned Alive—Russians Brutally Refuse Aid to the Terrorized Fugitives.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The representative of the United Press at Constantinople reports under the date of Nov. 15th, that at six o'clock on the evening of Nov. 14th Major M. A. Jewett, United States consul at Sovas, sent a telegram to United States minister Terrell, informing him that in the disturbances which had taken place at Sovas 800 Armenians and ten Turks had been killed and that, according to official reports, a large body of Kurds were then approaching the town. Mr. Jewett gave no details of the disturbances, but the discrepancy in the figures shows that the Turkish allegations that the Armenians were the aggressors are absolutely untrue and that the Armenians were deliberately massacred.

Minister Terrell has also received a despatch from Harpool in the Pashalik of Dirbiki, sixty miles west of the city of that name. The despatch is dated Nov. 13th, and says that the lives of the occupants of four of the buildings burned at that place were saved and the occupants of eight others of the burned houses perished in the flames. The remaining houses were stripped of every article of value. The country in that vicinity, the despatch says, is desolate, and thousands of persons are homeless and destitute, in fact, starving.

The missionary buildings, of which there are twelve, are situated within the compound or enclosure, and are occupied by twelve Armenian families and 500 theological students. A ladies' seminary is also within the enclosure.

New York, Nov. 16.—An eye witness on board the Austrian Lloyd steamship Venus, writes from Trebizond under date of Oct. 8th, giving some details of the massacre of the Armenians at Trebizond. He says:

At seven o'clock this morning our steamer anchored close to the town of Trebizond. After all the passengers had landed, except the three Europeans, of whom I am one, and the unloading of the cargo had begun, the sound of a shot came from the eastern side of the town, not far from the shore. Soon shots were fired in quick succession and the whole town was in a state of great excitement. An Armenian rushed frantically round the corner of the custom house, making for the shore, when he was struck by a bullet and fell to the ground. The military came up, and, with their rifles loaded, marched through the streets.

Close to where the fallen Armenian lay another one was seized and thrown into the sea. But the water was not deep enough to drown him, and his head appeared above the surface. The people then began to hurl stones at the unfortunate wretch, and a Turk got into a boat, and rowing out to him, smashed in his skull.

A boat with three Armenians put out, hotly pursued, and there began a race for life and death. Scarcely 100 meters from us lay a Russian steamer, which was the goal of the fugitives. As they came near to her the Turks gave up the chase. Brutally and inhumanly the people on board the steamer threw the Armenians down the ship's ladder, kicking them with their feet. When the Turks saw this they pushed forward with renewed courage and beat the Armenians to death.

Three Turkish boatmen seized an Armenian, one of their mates, threw him out of the boat into the water, beat him about the head with their oars, and finished up by holding him underneath the water with an oar until he was drowned. On the eastern shore an Armenian was shot down, but he was only wounded, for he tried to get up. When the Turks saw this they gathered round him, and whenever he endeavored to rise they hurled stones at him. This lasted half an hour, until at length a Turk fractured his skull with a large stone. The bodies remained in the roadway a day and a half. Two days after the massacre I walked through the town, and my feet were wet with the blood of Christians, for the pools of gore were often so close together that it was impossible to avoid them. On a hill near Trebizond are some Armenian settlements. They were surrounded and set on fire. Anyone who tried to escape was shot down, and the people were burned alive. In the evening the columns of fire rose high into the sky and lighted up the darkness.

Want a Stop Put to Massacres.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Anglo-Armenian association has received the following telegram from Constantinople: "Massacres are proceeding almost everywhere in Asia Minor. Over 100,000 Persians are dying from starvation in Armenia. For God's sake urge the government to put a stop to the most awful event of modern times. The ports are powerless, as the telegraph lines are controlled by the palace officials, who have incited these massacres."

Wonderful Silver Discovery.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 20.—The most wonderful silver discovery of recent years has been made on the north shore of Lake Superior, near the mouth of the Paysplat river, not far from the Indian reservation. The vein is said to be ten feet wide, and where stripped it is as rich as ever the Silver Islet, Beaver or Badger were in the palmy days. The peculiar feature is that the lead is located where no precious metals were supposed to be found, the geological formation being granite. Parties who have seen the property corroborate the statements made as to its value. It is said to be owned by Messrs. Allan, of Ottawa; Donnelly, of Port Arthur; and King, of Fort William.

HE WIELDED A HATCHET.

And Left a Company of Men And Women Weltering in Blood.

EMPORIA, Kansas, Nov. 19.—Dunlap, a little village thirty miles north of here, is wild with excitement. David Henderson, a young negro school teacher, not long ago assaulted one of his pupils, Dora Ray, about fourteen years old. He was cited to appear before the board of education. Last night he did so accompanied by his lawyer. At the hearing evidence was not only produced proving the attempted assault a few days ago, but testimony was adduced charging him with renewing his attempt yesterday afternoon. Notwithstanding all this the board wished to settle the matter so that Henderson would not have to appear in court to answer to a criminal charge. This exasperated the father of the little girl, Samuel Ray, who insisted that he be arrested and tried. A quarrel ensued and Henderson struck Ray over the head with a hatchet, splitting his skull open. He then made a rush for the door of the school room, which the investigation was taking place and was met in the aisle by Mrs. Ray, who attempted to stop him. She, too, fell before his murderous weapon, being struck on the head with the sharp edge of the hatchet. The next in his path was Mrs. McKalk, a daughter of Mrs. Ray, and sister of Dora. He also fell her to the floor with his bloody weapon. He then turned aside and struck Thomas Starkey a blow over the head and escaped, leaving his victims weltering in blood. Henderson has not been seen since, although the utmost efforts are being put forth to capture him.

EMPORIA, Kas., Nov. 20.—David Henderson, the colored school teacher who did such ghastly work with a hatchet, Monday night, at Dunlap, has been captured and is now in jail. He claims the deed was done in self-defense, as he was surrounded by a crowd clamoring for his life and that he had to cut his way out. None of his victims have yet died. Thomas Skelly and Mrs. Ray, however, are lying at the point of death. There are predictions of a lynch mob should either of the injured die.

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENCE.

In Regard to the Discriminating Duty Imposed by Canada.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The secretary of the treasury has decided that articles bought in Canada being the products of another country will have a dutiable value in this country that does not include the Canadian customs duty. This position, now clearly defined by the ruling of the treasury department, will be followed by diplomatic correspondence between this government and Great Britain with regard to the discrimination against the United States displayed by Canadian officials. Canada insists upon the addition of the United States customs duties being paid on all goods purchased in this country in bond that have been imported from other countries, regardless of the duty of the country where they are made may be. The United States looks upon this as unjust discrimination, intended to operate against American importers and the transportation companies of the United States. So long as Canada imposes this additional duty it can be easily seen that but little goods of foreign manufacture or foreign products entering the United States ports or transported over United States lines will find their way into the dominion.

The state department will at an early day call upon the British government for an explanation as to why Canada thus imposes this discriminating duty against the United States.

GAUTHIER'S ANTICS

Caused the Court to Adjourn While He was Examined.

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—Amaris Gauthier, the murderer of Celina Consigny, was brought before Judge Wurtelle in the court of queen's bench to be put on trial. He is defended by E. N. St. Jean, who pleads insanity. When Gauthier was put into the dock he carried on such antics and made such a noise in spite of the admonitions of the judge that the court adjourned until he was examined by medical men, who will ascertain whether he is sane enough to be tried.

Judge Wurtelle has fixed the trial of Napoleon Demers for the murder of his wife for Dec. 9th.

Many fine buildings have been built on this land, the owners of which have no title to the ground.

Had Her Neck Broken.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 18.—A fatal accident occurred about five o'clock on Saturday evening on the Kingston road, about three miles from this city. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blanchard, who reside on the Indian reserve, in the township of Tyndinaga, were proceeding to their home, being seated in a lumber wagon. Mr. Blanchard was speeding his team with another man, when Mrs. Blanchard, becoming frightened seized one of the reins, causing the animals to go into a ditch. The vehicle struck a large stone, and the force threw Mrs. Blanchard out. One of the wheels passed over her head, breaking her neck, causing instant death. The deceased was forty-five years of age, and was a daughter of Chief Brant, of the reserve. She was much respected, and her untimely death is regretted by a large circle of friends. Father Ritchot says the entire date, "April 28th, 1870," was not written till some years after, as he left space on the first page intending to address them to some federal minister. He did not do so and in writing the date some years after, doubtless in 1873, force of habit in making three induced him to make a wrong date. He, however, corrected it on the spot by making a cipher over the three.

THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

BIT OF HISTORY THAT IS READ-ABLE JUST NOW.

Why the Ratepayers in Lowe Township Refused to Pay Taxes—They Were Told to Resist by the Parish Priest—Assailing Officials.

LOWE, Que., Nov. 18.—The militia was unlikely to be called to do service in Lowe township. Delinquent ratepayers are paying up their taxes as quickly as possible to-day. An informal meeting attended by about 100 ratepayers was held this morning, at which it was decided to re-establish municipal government. A provisional council of seven was nominated, names to be sent to Quebec for the approval of the lieutenant-governor, and upon which approval the council will be duly formed. About forty ratepayers paid up their arrears to-day, but few from the vicinity of Brennan's Hill, the mob's headquarters. The militia will likely be detained here until Wednesday.

LOWE, Que., Nov. 19.—The prospects for to-day are unchanged. Some taxpayers still hold out. Escorts may accompany the bailiffs in the case of trouble while seizures are being made. The troops will not return to Ottawa till to-morrow at the earliest.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Andrew McDonald, one of the leading residents of Lowe township, has explained what led up to the present trouble. Near the end of the '80's a council was formed, but only existed for two years, when it dissolved. The late Jaleb Brooks was mayor, and Mr. McDonald was one of the councillors. An assessment was levied and the majority of the ratepayers paid their taxes, but about twenty-five refused to do so. The township took action against these delinquents and the court gave judgment in the township's favor. Some of the ratepayers' chattels were seized upon, and several head of cattle claimed by the bailiffs. It was thought that these seizures would have the effect of making the other delinquents pay up and save costs. At the expiration of fifteen days after the seizure the cattle were to be sold.

The Sunday preceding the sale, Rev. Fr. McGoey, of Farrellton, at mass told his parishioners that they could not legally be taxed by the township, and if they chose to refuse to pay the taxes the township could not collect from them. The next day was the date of the sale of the seized cattle. The bailiff had opened the sale, when some of those attending asked him by what authority he was selling the cattle. He showed his papers, whereupon the people threw him to the ground and drove the cattle away. A man named Wells Evans, who remonstrated with the people, received a blow across the shoulder with an iron which disabled him for some time. Mr. McDonald in passing the place on his way home that evening was stopped, and being a member of the township council, which body levied the assessment, was informed that he would have to suffer. He took his assailants into an hotel to have, as he says, "a last drink before he died," and while they were drinking he slipped out, jumped into his sleigh and drove hurriedly away.

The other members of the township council were similarly abused, and they finally decided that when they could not legislate it was high time for them to resign, and the council dissolved.

Mr. McDonald has no sympathy for the delinquents, as he believes they have no justification in refusing to pay taxes.

Collections yesterday up to noon, $212. Total tax collection made since Monday morning, $866. There are still forty delinquents.

One of those who settled was Michael Carroll, at whose hotel the mob have had their headquarters. He paid $11.70 for an original tax bill of $1.30.

Returning to Ottawa.

LOWE, Que., Nov. 20.—Orders have been issued for the withdrawal of militia from Lowe township. The ratepayers have paid all their taxes and have bound themselves to meet $5,000 the cost of military expedition. This afternoon the militia are breaking camp preparatory to returning to Ottawa by special train in the evening.

Fog in Brooklyn, N.Y., caused a train accident on the bridge, fatally injuring Thomas Cooper, George Granite and Thos. Schaffer.
