To vindicate the right of parliament to consider matters other than those mention. ed in the speech from the throne, Mr. Laurier introduced a formal bill. It was called a bill respecting the administration

The speaker then informed the house that his excellency had been pleased to make a speech to both houses of parliament, and that he had obtained a copy of

Mr. Laurier proposed that the speech from the throne should be taken into consideration to-morrow or any date that might suit the opposition. Sir Charles Tupper said that he did not think any time would be lost by the adoption of Monday instead of to-morrow, as a number of gentlemen who would like to take part in the discussion of the address would not be present until Monday. While on his feet Sir Charles asked if the leader of the government would be good enough to obtain permission from his excellency to lay on the table of the house the correspondence that had taken place in connection with the resignation of the late government. It would, he said, be desirable to have that correspondence when the address was considered, as the house could then deal with the question of the McK. Whittlebury's third.

Mr. Laurier replied that he had no objection to the postponement of the con-sideration of the address until Monday. "I would not like," said the premier, "to break the harmony which has existed so far, and which I hope will continue to the end of the session, and it is, therefore, with great pleasure that I accede to the demand of my honorable friend." In regard to the correspondence that had taken place attending the resignation of the late administration, he said that he could not give an answer at the present moment. but he would give it to-morrow. The motion that the speech be taken in to consideration on Monday was adopted. An incident occurred during the routine proceedings that followed. The premier proposed that the debates committee be composed, as it was last session, of fifteen members, nine representing the government and six the opposition. Sir Charles session, the relative proportion was not the same, as the difference between the majority and minority was not now so great as during the last parliament. Mr. Laurier's reply was that the difference seemed so minute that he did not think it proper to make any change. The composition of the committee is: Liberals, Messrs, Beausoleil, Monet, Charlton, Somerville, Richardson, Scriver, Ellis, Haley, Choquette. Conservatives, Messrs. Hamm, has been making enquiries into the places in Canada named after the town of Bedford, Eng., or after its long-time disinguished representative, the Duke of Sedford. These enquiries reached Kingston in due course, and short asketch of the township of Bedford, Frontenac, was sent by return mail. The sketch has been pub-lished in the Bedfordshire Times and in return the editor of that journal feels that the people of Bedford, Ont., and Bedford Mines, Quebec, might feel interested in the town and shire from which their name is sprung. This welcome communication is ppended, and it will be read with pleasure by English people now in Canada and the descendants of the people of the old land: Bedford in England is the capital of Bedfordshire and bestrides the river once or rather its High street bridge does, there eing an aspontine and transportine division of the town. It is one of the most ancient corporated boroughs and the town is frequently mentioned in very early English history. It was a flourishing town in Saxon times and derives its name from the beds and other hotel accommodation offered to pilgrims and travellers who had occasion to ford the river at this point, the Saxon 'Bedicanford" simply meaning beds on a ford. Its first charter was granted by Henry II and its last by Charles II. had a castle to defend the ford which was the scene of exploits between king John and his barons. DIED ON BOARD A SHIP

A despatch from Quebec says it is re-ported from Rimouski that Sir David Macpherson died on board the steamer Labrador last Sunday. The body is still on board. Deceased was returning to Canada to perform senatorial duties. He was father of Mrs. Kirkpatrick, wife of Lieut.-Gov. George A. Kirkpatrick, a former Kingstonian. He was born in 1816 at Castle Leathers, not far from Invernes Scotland. In 1835 he came to Canada and in 1864 entered parliament, and in 1867 was made a senator. He was a mem-Co., Toronto. In 1880 he was speaker o the senate, in 1883 made minister of the interior, and in 1884 was knighted. His wife died about two years ago.

To Be Landed At Quebec. RIMOUSKI, Que., Aug. 21.—The R.M.S. Labrador, from Liverpool, arrived off the point at 8:45, and put her mails on board the steam tender Contest, and landed her passengers for the lower province. They brought the sad news of the death of Sir David McPherson, who was a passenger. His death was unexpected, and took place on Sunday afternoon when the Labrador was in mid-ocean. Dr. Wright, of Otte wa, who was also a passenger, aided the ship's surgeon, and did all that was possible, but without avail. The body was preserved in ice, and will be landed at Quebec, where the steamer is due at eight o'clock this evening.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick Shocked. TORONTO, Aug. 21.-The totally unexpected news of Sir David Macpherson's death has cast a gloom over the city where he had so long resided and was so well and favorably known. The news did not reach government house direct for nearly an hour after the press despatches had made the melancholy intelligence public. Mrs. Kirkpatrick was greatly shooked at the sudden news of her father's demise, as the last reports of him had been very encouraging. Her widowed sister, Mrs. Meyrick Bankes, was accompanying the deceased senator and was with him at the and central square, which is further orna- last. The body will, doubtless, be brought
