Passing now from the rotten rot of every. thing Cleveland and Clevelandish, let us say a word about this Indianapolis conven-

The temporary chairman is ex-Gov. Roswell P. Flower, a millionaire from our neighboring city of Watertown, N. Y. 'Ross" Flower, as we always called him in York state politics, early discovered a proclivity of ever being on the wrong side at convention time. From 1874 to 1886 the great and peerless Samuel J. Tilden, our candidate for president in 1876, and who was elected but cheated out of the presidency by the republicans, was the controlling figure in York state and national democratic politics. During all this time Ross Flower opposed the Tilden machine in York state. After the death of John Kelly, Flower became the head of the oppoait ion to the Tilden machine and as such bitterly opposed us of the Tilden machine considerable wealth to be divided amongst of September, 1882, at the city of Syracuse, N. Y., to bring out and nominate an utterly unknown man outside of his own with J. M. Plaunt, Renfrew, to go into the city of Buffalo of which he was then mayor -Grover Cleveland. But as usual in those days the Tilden machine rode rough shod over the course and Cleveland was nominated by a majority of about twenty in a buried on Wednesday.
