POSTAL CARDS. The use of private postal cards is be coming quite general in Kingston, and, without any misgiving in the matter, citizens have been posting them to the United States. Such cards have been charged letter postage at the rate of three cents, and no little feeling has been created. The post office department explains private postal card law and declines to receive those of other countries, Canada included. This seems a very absurd exconstant receipt of cards from the United States not restricted in size at all, but

"We want," says the Chronicle, "to see

Patriotism demands it of their neighbors. Our merchants, in almost every line of business, keep good stocks and are fully abreast of the times. One has only to scan the advertising columns of our leading newspapers to find the announcements of the best of almost everything that can possibly be desired. It will be to the interest and to the credit alike of our people to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest.'

And some Kingston people can read along the same lines to the best effect, and some business men at that. The average Kingstonian is loyal to his city, but there are some people, who, with the revenue they derive from the people here, in a genyears. The Mail and Empire sees something significant in the appointment of several liberals to seats in the senate since there has been a change of government. There have been eight of these appointments. There would have been only fo ur had the Fuppers succeeded in bulldozing the governor into consenting to all their recommendations. Two senators desired to show how popular they were in Quebec, ran as remedialists, suffered defeat, and again cast longing eyes towards the senate. The idea was to give them the places they despised, and it was miscarried. Now there is nothing very remarkable about the action of the government in seeking to balance the political parties in the senate, in giving the liberals a chance to protect the legislation they advance in the upper chamber. The intention was lived together as husband and wife since clear, originally, to appoint an equal number of party men to the senate so that, evenly balanced, it would be able to give a fair and impartial supervision to the business coming before it. Again, if the government has done wrong it should be offered opposition by Mr. Foster and everyone who is in sympathy with him politically. There should be no cessation to the war upon it; and the conservative papers which on the one hand excuse Mr. Foster, and on the other hand censure him, are making themselves ridiculous.
