People Buried Under the Ashes SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2. - The excitement in Corea, caused by the kinnappers, has greatly calmed down. A band of China pirates in the province of Caiphong, which has held its fastness since 1883, in an engagement in June lost 19 killed and a considerable number wounded. The cholera in Amoy seems for the time to be held in check, but at Chang Chon it is reported that 3,000 deaths have occurred in the past 60 days. Japan papers state that a telegram from Makomotoa, Japan, dated July 15th, says that the volcano of Mount Ivahassi suddenly burst into activity, and in a short time 56 houses in Inasenura were destroyed. A telegram received on the 16th says the eruption still continued with great destruction and loss of life. About 400 persons and 30 houses in a village called Bira were buried under the sand and ashes thrown by the volcano. Among those buried were fifteen fifteen visitors at the Hot Springs in the neighbourhood.

FAGAN ON CHAMBERLAIN

Talks About the Betrayal by the Radical of the Cabinet's Secrets.

Indianapolis, Aug. 2.—Patrick Egan, in an interview on the Parnell commission and its effects upon the Irish party, expressed himself as willing to meet a fair and impartial investigation. He declared the letters published by the London Times to be forgeries, regarding the charge made by Parnell on Tuesday against Chamberlain. Egan said that during the whole time Chamberlain was communicating cabinet secrets to the Irish party Chamberlain's object was to undermine Gladstone. In reply to an inquiry that if Chamberlain would demand an investigation he (Egan) knew where the evidence could be got to sustain the charge, some of that evidence was in writing, and in the hands of their friends. Egan further said the information which Chamberlain secretly divulged to the Irish party was of considerable importance from time to

The Ameliasburg Council Gives the By Law a Six Months' Hoist.

Belleville, Aug2.-James Benson, clerk of the township of Ameliasburg, may figure as a defendant in a lawsuit. A majority of the taxpayers supported the by-law to take $15,000 stock in the Bay of Quinte bridge, but Mr. Benson, at the meeting of the township council, reported that a twofifths majority was necessary before the by-law became valid, and the council acting on his advice gave it the six months' hoist. Unless the council gives the by-law its third reading within six weeks it will be served with a mandamus, as it is claimed that a majority was sufficient to pass the by-law. A city lawyer offered to wager $200 to $50 with Clerk Benson that the latter is wrong in his interpretation of the statute, but Benson couldn't see it.

THE BITTER FEUD BETWEEN PAR-NELL AND CHAMBERLAIN.

The Irish Leptica's Brief but Scusnitonal Speech-The Debnte on the Commission Bill Resumed.

NEW York, Aug. 1-The Times' London special says: "The feud between Parnell and Chamberlain is the sensation of the hour. No man on the Conservative side is hated with anything like the bitterness with which Irishmen look upon Camberlain. This is due partly to his political character, the member for Birmingham being most unscrupulous in his political warf ere, and partly to the feeling that Chamberlain, who was formerly an extremist of the Radicals, has tricked and betrayed them. They know, as everybody else knows, that the foundation stone upon which the Liberal-Unionist party rests is keeping Gladstone out of the premiership, and that, whatever may be the feeling of his followers, Cham- ment Mr. Parnell's memory is curiously at personal motives. Ever since the discussion of the Parnell Bill begun, dormant dislikes and sleeping hatreds have been more and more plainly manifested in the House. The debate has been characterized by an unrestrained acrimony that has passed all bounds.

Chamberlain arose in some anger last evening after the two preceding speakers-Mr. Reid and Sir George Trevelyan-had maliciously quoted his own words in support of a motion then before the House to restrict the scope of the commission. He was brilliantly bitter on Sir George, but failed to answer Mr. Reid's thrusts. He could not deny his own words, but he talked generally for some time against the motion and sat down.

Then Mr. Parnell arose at 11.55 o'clock and put more sensational language into the five minutes that remained than has been heard in Parliament for years. Taking Chamberlain's change of front as a basis, he charged him with political cowardice and generally with selfish treachery to his colleagues. He finished by saying:-"And after he became Minister my principal recollection of him is that he was always most anxious to betray to us the secrets and counsels of his colleagues in the Cabinet, and to endeavor while sitting by the side of those colleagues and while in consultation with them, to undermine their councils and their plans in his own favor. If this inquiry be extended into these matters, and I see no reason why it should not, I shall be able to make good my words by documentary evidence which is not forged." In the sensation which his speech caused it was remarked that Gladstone stared at Chamberlain in rapt astonishment, and the light in which Parnell's charge put the ex-Premier's trusted Cabinet Councillor was an ugly one to say the least.

A HOT DEBATE.

More Talk in the House Over the Parnell Commission,

LONDON, Aug. 1 .- On the resumption of the debate in the House of Commons today on the Parnell Commission Bill Mr. Balfour said that the speech of Home, Sec. Matthews last night, in which he said the judges already had the power to select such of the charges as they deemed worthy of an inquiry, contained what the Government had Sir Lyon Playfair (Lib.) contended that Mr. Matthews had extended the scope of the bill to an enormous extent. Mr. Matthews now said the inquiry was into an organization which induced crime, whereas the House had been led to believe that the bill was intended to enable certain members to clear their character.

Mr. Bradlaugh declared that Mr. Matthews had made out an absolutely new remarks were most improper. Mr. Reid offered an amendment that the commission enquire into the charges only so far as they bear upon charges and allegations against members of the House. support of his amendment Mr. Reid said that Mr. Smith claimed the inclusion of outside persons in the inquiry was irrelevant. Mr. Smith's friend, Mr. Walter, had not insisted that other than members be included until he visited Mr. Smith, when he saw that the only chance of escaping disgrace and averting the ruin of The Times was to get a roving inquiry regarding persons over whom members had no control. Mr. Matthews said the inquiry was not into the conduct of members but into their capacity as members of an outside organization. Mr. O'Donnell in a published letter had said that Frank Byrne was only the

Mr. Healey said he believed the changes in the bill were the result of Mr. Walter's visit to Mr. Smith.

Mr. Balfour admitted that the Cabinet at its meeting on July 11 had decided to include the words "and others." If Mr. Smith, in announcing to the House the reference of the matter to a commission, did not read those words it was doubtless due to inadvertence.

Mr. Gladstone thought the omission of the words when Mr. Smith announced the commission deserved the censure of the Hot After Mr, Chamberlain.

LONDON, Aug. 2 .-- Mr. O'Shea writes to the Times in regard to the interview between Mr. Parnell and Mr. Chamberlain, He "Both are right. But, full of horror as Mr. Parnell was on the day after the Phœnix park murders, it is not astonishing that he has forgotten when he asked me to arrange an interview with a minister he then considered his benefactor. It is quite true that he went with Mr. McCarthy after I left Mr. Chamberlain. I only wish that those who believe Mr. Parnell cognizant of crime had seen him on that day. Ihnocence never showed itself more clearly under a terrible ordeal. Wild as his attack may appear I know that he has long been imbued with the idea that Mr. Chamberlain divulged cabinet secrets. The last time I spoke to Mr. Parnell, shortly before the division on Mr. Gladstone's home rule bill, he threatened to publish the charge, and I advised him to make up his mind that Mr. Chamberlain could not object. In regard to local govern-

Parnell's own. Chamberlain hesitated and only adopted it because it was Parnell's. Why he now repudiates it is a mystery. Surely, also, there is some mistake about the renewal of the Coercion act, amended in Parnell's own hand, into the form in which he proposed it should be passed, with just enough show of opposition in parliament to satisfy those concerned."

MONTREAL, Aug. 1. - Kate Slicer, aged 22, a poor orphan without work, was brought before the Recorder to-day charged with attempting her life. She was arrested last night when acting strangely, but while in the cells during the night the girl took off her shoes and one stocking and fastened the latter tightly around her neck. The constable on duty took no notice of a slight noise until he was startled by a heavy thump on the floor. He then had the cell opened when the girl was discovered strangling, her tongue protruding and she lying prostrate. The stocking was at once unwound and the girl recovered. Both stock ings were taken away, but ten minutes later the girl made a similar attempt with a lace that she had in her possession. She was remanded for eight days.
