Sketch of Austria's Emperor.

A correspondent describes the Emperor Francis Joseph as one of the baldest men in his dominions. He has a rugged face, half hidden under a mass of wild mustache and whiskers, and his features at a first glance denote something of the ferocity of the hyena. He has a hard frown, a cold stare, a strong rasping voice, and his habitual expression is one of intense seriousness. I'm is, however, extremely gentle, good natured and kind hearted.

His ruling passion is soldiering, and his favorite amusement, sport. He rises at 5 o'clock summer and winter, and has disposed of a mass of business before most men are out of bed. Unless obliged to attend a late party he is generally in bed by 10 p. m. He lives very frugally; takes beer at lunckeon, champagne at dinner-never more than two glasses-and smokes the commonest kind of Austrian cigar-a long thin weed with a straw in it, called a Virginia. This is the favorite smoke of Viennese cab drivers. Over indulgence in it caused the emperor some years ago to be afflicted with a gastric complaint, and for a long time he was forbidden to smoke, but he has now begun again. -London Figaro.

OTTAWA, Aug. 13 .- A deputation from Ottawa County, consisting of Alonzo Wright, M.P., Warden Cormier, Father Beauchamp and J. Conroy waited on Sir Hector Langevin, Minister of Public Works, to-day with a view to obtaining assistance from the Government for a bridge across the Ottawa River at Deschere, about 3 miles below Aylmer. The idea is to construct an interprovincial bridge similar to the one built by the Government at Les Joachims rapids on the Ottawa and towards which the Local Government, of Ontario and Quebec contributed. Sir Hector promised that the matter should receive consideration, and it is probable that an engineer will be sent to make asurvey of the locality.

continuously for 5 minutes. An alarm from box 32 about 9.50 last night called the brigade to the house of Mrs. Kelly, 67 Victoria street, where fire had broken out originating in the basement cupboard through causes unknown. The damage is estimated at $150. The Connors family, residing on Brown's lane, celebrated the civic holiday by indulging in a fight among themselves. The result of the fracas was the arrest of Mary Connors, the wife, and her son John, and the conveyance to the Hospital of Timothy Connors, the head of the household. Timothy's condition is such as to preclude the possibility of his attendance at court to-day, his body being one mass of bruises caused by his wife and sons' affectionate attention. The police are looking for Michael, a second son of the injured man, who is credited with being as active in the assault as his brother John. Yesterday afternoon the friends of Duncan McDongall residing at 28 Richmondhad not been home since August 9, and they were afraid that something untoward had happened him. After they had gone the Sergeant put on his thinking cap, and came to the conclusion that he had met Mr. McDougall somewhere recently. He turned up the Police record, and found that the missing man was in jail for drunkenness, having been sent down on the very day of his disappearance. Mr, C. H. Forbes, grocer, corner of Murray and Cher-Howell-streets, locked up his store, vesterday afternoon, and took his family down to Balmy Beach for a drive. In his absence three young men broke into the place, but their entry being observed by a neighbor, she quickly called a passing policeman. He assisted by a cloud of residents proceeded to the store to arrest the intruders. Some he posted in the lane in rear, while others were ranged in front to cut off all escape. Just as every preparation had been made to effect the arrest, the less. three burglars made a dash out; broke through the cordon and made their escape with an inconsiderable booty.

MR. CALL RESUMES THE DISCUSSION OF THE TREATY.

The Plorida Senator Caimining Canada's Eight to the Instage Fisheries-The

Senate Adjourns Without a Vote. WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 .- The Senate resumed consideration of the Fisheries Treaty yesterday and was addressed by Mr. Call (Dem., Fla.) in support of its ratification. He argued that Mr. Sherman's contention that the great bays on the Canadian coast were high seas and public property would apply to the open-sea fisheries of Florida, between Key West and the mainland and to the coasts of Alaska and the Northwest. and would amount to a surrender of territorial possession and jurisdiction over all that vast line. To his mind a treaty which asserted a jurisdictional power and right over these waters was to be commended as establishing a principle more important than the enjoyment of the inshore fisheries of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. He said that the United States was great and powerful but only so long and so far as it conformed to would not be willing to grant commercial rights in Florida waters to foreign fishing position. The effect of the proposed retaliation was to make people in the United States pay two prices for the fish they used. He regarded the pending treaty as fair and just and proper.

right, to justice, to humanity in its relations with other nations. He declared he

The presiding officer (Mr. Cockrell) an nounced the question to be on Mr. Morgan's motion to postpone the consideration of the treaty till December next, and asked if the senate was ready for the question.

Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.): "On that motion I call for the yeas and nays." Mr. Gray (Dem., Del.) said that before the vote was taken he desired to say something on the matter. It had become evident on the Republican side of the chamber that the treaty was not to be ratified at this session. The Senate had been told in a more or less peremptory tone that it was not only to be rejected, but was to be rejected to-day. The treaty was being discussed in the very midst of an excited political campaign and Democratic senators had been told they were arguing the British side of the case. Why should consideration of the treaty not be postponed? Why should not those influences that come from the sober second thought and from the absence of extraneous influences and excitement be involved? The issues involved were momentous and the consequences that might arise were too grave to be lightly dealt with. The fishermen whose rights were the subject matter of the treaty, were pursuing their avocations now unmolested under the protocolattached to the treaty. The burden was on those who denied that the postponement should be made to give some good, strong and broad reason for their opposition. Mr. Gray then proceeded to criticise a published letter purporting to be from Mr. C. L. Woodbury, which stated that the 12th article of the treaty gave away the rights of the States to control their territorial waters. He declared this was an absolutely fatuous argument, that it was unlawyerlike and nonsensical and he did not believe that Mr. Woodbury had ever risked his high professional reputation by such an argument. He asserted that the claim of Canada over its bays was as absolute as the claim of. Maryland to jurisdiction over Chesapeake Bay. These waters were as much a part of the local jurisdiction as the solid ground covered by cornfields and houses. The pending treaty came to the Senate ermined

Mr. Gray again resuming complimented Mr. Sherman on the statesmanlike aver dium of his recent speech, but said that when he got down from the plane of state manship to that of partisanship he flounder ed. Concluding Mr. Gray said that if the treaty should be rejected and the menty ances to American fishermen should be renewed the responsibility would fall on those who voted to reject the treaty. Mr. George (Dem., Miss.) read from The Boston Herald the report of a meeting of the Deep Sea Assembly Knights of Labor, held at Gloucester, at which resolutions were passed protesting against the fish trust and favoring competition as the only remedy. He asked Mr. Hoar if The Herale report of the meeting might be relied upon. Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.) said that there were a great many things in that paper that would very much mislead anybody, bu tit would not publish a narrative of facts which it did not believe to be entirely true. Con. tinuing, he said the picture which the as semblage of Gloucester Knights of Labor had drawn of the fisheries and the fisher, interests and of the laboring men and capitalists of Massachusetts was a slander and devoid of truth, " Mr. Hoar then made some pointed allusions to Senator George and the latter rose to reply, but on the motion of Mr. Beck the Senate adjourned
