Mr. Allen asked that the report be considered clause by clause. He contended that Miss Crawford should be promoted to the principalship of Louise school instead of Miss Chown. The speaker thought Miss Crawford was best qualified for the posizion, and had the best claim upon it.

Mr. Williamson, chairman of the school nanagement committee, said he and his coffeagues had made the appointments according to a precedent laid down by the board of last year, to the effect that teachers should be promoted according to length of service.

A motion that the report be considered clause by clause was carried. A motion asking for the passage of the first clause of the report, relative to the appointment of Miss Chown to the principalship of Louise school, was defeated by a tie vote. Yeas-Messrs. Anglin, Dunlop, Horne, Martin and Williamson, 5. Nays-Messrs. Wilson, Allen, Arniel, Massie and Savage,

The club came here under a guarantee from a syndicate that their board would be paid and that they would be allowed a generous percentage of recepts. Yesterday Manager Henderson gave as the returns $65. Sam Bittle and others immediately started a vigorous kick. They claimed that their long experience in sizing up grand stands would not allow them to believe that there was less than $150 at least on the boards. Both parties were stubborn, and Bittle went home by the first train, and most of the other players dispersed to their homes.

church, with its contents, was found yesterday afternoon by the men engaged tearing the old walls away. The stone was ing, and in the centre of it was a leaden box. This was embedded in sand, which was damp. The box was examined in St. Andrew's hall in the presence of Dr. Fowler, Messrs. D. Gibson, James Minnes, W. G. Craig, R. J. Carson, A. Rea and others. was removed from the stone and opened. was very closely sealed, and contained its dampness, could not be handled. > A pan was placed on a board in the yard at the back of the bakery. On it the bottle found in the leaden box was broken by Mr. cient coins rolled out of it: Half crown. George III., 1819; sixpence, George III., III., 1775; farthing, harp on one side, 1806 farthing, George IV., 1828. There were two coppers which could not be read. One of the coins was bent, presumably in getting it into the bottle. There were eleven coins in all. Also several cories of the Kingston Chronicle and Gazette. One of the papers is of volume II., No. 30, July 28, 1820. A paper, the name on which cannot be read, is dated 1832. In another paper the advertisement of Mr. W. Johnson, barber, was very conspicuous. A local paragraph stated that the packet ship Garrett, after a five weeks' voyage, had reached Canada from Liverpool.

> Among the contents of the box was a pamphlet, but all that could be read of it were the words, "Kingston Almanac." The minutes of a congregational meeting, held in 1837, at which it was decided to enlarge the church erected in 1820, were also found. They were written on foolscap. Only part of the notes can be deciphered. The meeting was evidently a spirited one. The building committee was composed of Francis A Harper, chairman, Robert and David Duff, and Roderick M. Rose. The finance committee was composed of A. McNab, Thomas Gray, and J. Macdonald. The minutes were dated, "St. Andrew's Church, 13th February, 1837." A large sum of money was raised at the meeting for the improvement of the bailding. One line of the minutes could be read, thus : "We contradict the assertion made by the editor of the BRITISH WHIG." What the assertion was no one can conjecture.

There were some interesting paragraphs in a copy of the Chronicle and Gazette, dated Saturday, 27th of May, 1837. This paper was a tri-weekly published at the building on the corner of King and Brock streets. Written in lead pencil on one of the papers was the statement: "His Excellency was graciously pleased to confer on the above named gentlemen the honor of knightnood. The papers containing the names of the henored ones cannot be read.

In the box was a brass plate, engraved on both sides, and bearing this inscription : "St. Andrew's church - The foundation stone of this church was laid on the 20th day of July in the year 1820, the first year of the reign of His Majesty King George IV. by Thomas Markland, senior magistrate of Kingston. Mr. Archibald, architect. Removed-Frem north-east corner to its present place of deposit on the 24th day of May, 1837, when the foundation stone of the addition was laid."

Mr. Minnes took the coins away. He in tended showing them to Prof. Williamson and then delivering them to the Rev. Mr. Mackie. Mr. Craig took the papers home.

The relies will be exhibited in St. Andrew's hall.

Judson Tay lor, the famous Chinese missionary. cording to the Canadian Baptist he is a Yorkshireman, about fifty-six years of age. His father was a druggist and an eyangelist. He was much interested in China's condition and needs, and asked the Lord for a son to be dedicated to China. So, like Samuel, Mr. Taylor was dedicated to the Lord for China from his youth. His medical education was obtained in his father's shop, and with Dr. Hardy, of Hull, in the London hospital. In September, 1853, he sailed for China. He remained in that country for seven years, itinerating among the people, translating or revising the bible, and kindred

He decided to ask the lord for twenty. four missionaries for China-two each for each eleven unoccupied provinces and two for Mongolia. In 1865 the China Island mission was formed, and in May of the next year he sailed for China with seventeen missionaries. From that time till the present the mission has gone on increasing till now the European workers are 294, the native workers of all kinds exceed 120. There are three hospitals, five dispensaries, and sixteen opium refuges. There are over 2,000 Communication of the Control of the ded to that number this year. The income, which for the first ten years averaged £5,000, last year exceeded £33,000. He returned home in 1860, and about this time a great change occurred in his views of mission work. He states it thus himself: "In the study of the Divine Word I learn ed that, to obtain successful laborers, not elaborate appeals for help were needed; but, first, earnest prayer to God to thrust forth laborers; and, secondly, the deepening of the spiritual life of the churches, so that men shall be unable to stay at home, I saw that the apostolic plan was not to raise ways and means, but to go and do the work, trusting in His sure word who has said. 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you. Mr. Taylor was mainly instrumental in arousing the enthusiasm of England's young men in favor of Chinese missions, and of inducing some of the best graduates of Cambridge, Oxford, and other colleges a year ago to give themselves up to missionary work. He has been a busy man since his arrival in America, addressing audiences at Mr. Moody's conferences, at Northfield, Mass., and at Chatauqua. He speaks here in the First Congregational church on Mon day evening.

NEWBURGH AS IT IS.

Considerable Transformation Since the Fire Nearly a Year Ago. Newburgh has vastly improved since the disastrons fire attacked it last fall, and is now rebuilt in a handsome way. It was with interest that we noted the changes made. Thomas Beck has erected a commodious hotel, well equipped and having all the necessary stable and shed accommodation. D. A. Burdette has built two nicely finished houses, on Concession street, which are rented. Mr. Courtice is building a veneered brick residence of neat design. Near to it George Thompson has completed $4,000 brick house. It stands in the centre of a beautiful lawn. William Sutton utilized part of the old walls, adding a new front of brick, thus giving him a commodious residence and store. He has also built a fine barn. A. Fox and R. Dugan are finishing nice homes, and W. Taylor is building one for himself. Mrs. Rook has vastly improved her property, and her new house looks decidedly tasty. Messrs. D. Stickney, W. Miles, Loucks, Presley. Farley, J. Remo, C. Shorey, L. Fox, H. Dunn, M. W. Simpkins and R. Paulhave made most pleasing improvements to their residences and premises. Henry Dunn has built a good brick blacksmith shop. Mrs. Dereche has fixed up her estate, and the Methodist parsonage has been thoroughly overhauled. On the west side of Main street Dr. Duff has built a fine brick house, while the Masonic hall and drug store make a most attractive block. Henry Paul has added a commodious store and house, and E. O. Lanfear's fine home is really an ornament to the place. Mr. McConnell has rebuilt his stone residence, and has added a new barn. The blocks occupied by C. W. Welbanks,

H. Finkle, Caton and Woods are such buildings as reflect credit on the enterprise of the R. B. Hope has completed his new hotel and a really fine structure it is. Mr. Farley has rebuilt his shop, and has added a fine veneered cottage and new barn. C. W. Thompson's residence, costing $6,000, is ap proaching completion, and is the finest residence in the village. It stands in a commanding position. Joseph Taylor has moved into his new factory. The new station of the N. T. & Q. RR. is number one in every respect. C. Hill has finished a very pretty cottage, while Mr. Fry has put up a com modious residence on the old site. It was the first building completed after the fire. Other slight improvements have been made to buildings and properties, altogether making Newburgh a pleasant place to visit.

An Indignant Liquor Seller-Fined For Indecency-The Defence Put In. A, Armstrong was too drunk to appear this morning. He was remanded.

A charge of illegal liquor selling was dismissed as against a Brock street inn keeper. When the dismissal occurred the proprietor remarked to the inspector : "It is generally thought that you know where the liquor selling occurs, and the next time I come up here I will spend $50 to find out if you really know." Another liquor case was remand ed for a month. Peter Rousseau, a witness, was detained.

There was an unsettled fine against him.

Isaac Yourex, a medical student, was charged with indecent exposure in his house on Brock street. Police Officer Nesbitt hav ing been told of his antics made an investigation and found that the complaints were too true. Defendant claimed to be ignorant of exposing himself while indulging in his customary bath. He was unaware that people were peering into his room. Whatever had occurred there was without evil intent on his part. The windows were open, to be sure, so that he could have pure air, but he had no idea he could be seen. He did not think there was anything honorable on the part of neighbors to scrutinize, gap and peer into his apartments. This morning he was made aware that such was going on, for he found a "lady" watching his room for fully ten minutes. The magistrate imposed a fine of $50 and costs.

A SALVATIONIST EPISODE

The Army People Crowd About a Hostelry and Are Douced With Water.

The salvationists began a species of ag gressive warfare last night not at all praise worthy. Coming down the street about eight o'clock, in jubilant mood, they passed along King street as far as the Collender house, halting close to the sidewalk and singing and shouting, the drums meantime being vigorously beaten. A great crowd soon collected and cheered derisively at the apparent attempt to annoy the proprietor of the restaurant. To disperse the crowd the hose was turned on, and some of the salvationists' clothes were saturated. Before any thing serious occurred police officer (raig turned off the water and ordered the salvationists to their accustomed meeting placethe market square.

The episode created much talk last night. There was general indignation at the conduct of the salvationists. "The citizens have treated the army with great deference," said one, "but if they intend continuing the present attitude they may not be greeted with so much cordiality or given so much liberty." The proprietor of the Collender house said he had no objection to the army people conducting their services on the market square as they had done in years past, but he would not allow them to annoy him, his guests or his customers by crowding about his premises and blocking the street. The authorities should act promptly. His business was legitimate and he required protection.
