Funeral of Wesley Church-Coroner's Inquest-Post-Mortem Examination. TRENTON, Aug. 21.- The Smoke Point

debtors - Matt. vi., 12. Peter Loveless and his sons, John and Wellington, are still in semi-restraint at Constable Morrison's house, Consecon. Dr. Thornton, coroner, and Drs. Day and Philps, assistants, conducted a post-mortem examination on Saturday night. The bullet from a thirty-two calibre pistol was found to have entered the left side, about five inches below the arm, penetrating both lungs and the heart. The weapon was held so close to the side of the deceased that his shirt was burned by the powder. John Loveless held Church while the father, who was held by John Bonter to keep him from using a pitchfork, told the young son Wellington to get the pistol and do the shooting. The coroner's inquest was postponed until to-day on account of the funeral. The clerk of the peace of the town of Picton was at Consecon to day gathering facts. The prisoners have retained G. W. Ostrom, M. P. P., as chief counsel, and T. A. O'Rourke. The prisoners will be removed to Picton gaol after the in-

EXECUTION OF LYONS.

He Dies Bravely-The Inspection He Made of the Gallows Yesterday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.-Dan Lyons, the murderer of Quinn, the athlete, expiated his crime this morning upon the scaffold in the tombs. He was hanged at 7.15 o'clock. Lyons passed his last night upon earth in a perfectly cool and collected way At 7 o'clock last night he insisted on going into the yard to examine the gallows. While there he entered the little box containing the weight that was to jerk him into eternity. With a critical eye he examined the rope that held the weight of 425 lbs. He cooly remarked: "That won't be heavy enough to hang me." Early in the evening Lyons confessed, ate a lunch of lobster salad and fruit, took a bath and retired. His rest was as peaceful as that of a babe.

At 7 a.m. the procession to the gallows was formed. As Lyons approached the scaffold his face blanched. He bowed to the jury and the deputies. Lyons smiled faintly and said: "Good-bye, Joe," to Atkinson. The drop fell at 7:13, and at 7:19 Lyons was pronounced dead. The crime for which Lyons was executed was the murder of Joseph F. Quinn on July 5, 1887. Quinn was 25 years old, a clerk in the coffee exchange, a prominent member of Pastime athletic club, and all-round athlete.

SUCCESSES OF BOULANGER.

They Have an Unsettling Effect on Paris-Their Significance Not Understood.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The Times' London says: "Gen. Boulanger's triple success is felt to have grievously unsettled again the French situation, domestic and foreign. Despite the protestations of devotion to some vague sort of a republic, which he still utters, these elections are everywhere treat. ed as directly hostile to the republic. All sides in l'aris agree to that. Their significance is more apparent when the total poll is considered. There were in the three departments 678,700 votes cast, and Gen. Boulanger's aggregate majority is 101,894. The theory of a fusion of all the monarchical sumed his argument against the treaty and elements in his support does not explain the fact that in two of the departments, the Somme and the Charente Inferieure, the republican vote of 46,000 is smaller now than it was three years ago. Nobody pretends to forecast the direct result of the elections upon the ministry in Paris, but it is evident that there is considerable turbulence in the provinces."

A WARNING TO WIDOWS.

Don't Trifle With the Affections of An Earnest Lover or You'll be Sued.

Moncron, N.B., Aug. 21. - A novel breach of promise case is threatened in which William Crowson is plaintiff and Mrs. Gaskin, defendant. Crowson is a widower and Mrs. Gaskin a buxon widow who lives at Coverdale about three miles from Monctou. The fair widow is the owner of a fine farm and Crowson has been more or less about the place for some years, part of the time as farmer in charge. The couple at one time frequently drove to church together, and were in each other's company to such an extent as to cause some gossip, but the course of true love did not run smooth in this, case. The pleasant relations between the couple were ruptured, and Mr. Crowson wants $5,000 as a solace for his affections. The fair defendant is reported to be about 45 years of age, and

ARE CERTAIN OF THE REPUBLICAN SENATORS.

Taken To-Day.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. The Fisheries Treaty was up in the Squate again yesterday. After Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) had spoken for two hours, in support of the treaty be yielded the floor, in accordance with the agreement of Friday, so that the opponents of the treaty might present their views up to 4 o'clock, the two hours up to 6 being reserved for its friends.

Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.) said he had already stated briefly and with care the opinion which he entertained and which in reference to the effect of the proposed treaty on their interests. Nothing which he necessary for him to add to or modify the argument which he had made. He took the floor at this time only to call attention. to three or four catch! words by which the friends of the treaty sought fasten on its opponents views which they never entertained and which they constantly repudiated. these was that there was a proposition for retaliation on the Republican side. Another was that somebody had said that the time for negotiations had passed in any such sense as the senator from Alabama had put upon it. Another was that the grievances of which American fishermen complained could not occur again if the treaty were ratified. What the opponents of the treaty proposed to say to Canada was this: We do not desire to interfere with the degree discretion hospitality, measure be equal measure countries and ports of both as somebody must initiate the rule in the first place the opportunity and prerogative would be conceded to Canada. If Canada said it was not fiting that American fishermen should go into her ports with a catch of fish to be transhipped to the United States than no Canadian vessel should come into a port of the United States with a catch of American fishermen for damages admitted to negotiation or arbitration. Mr. Payne, (Dem., O.) inquired whether Mr. Hoar favored the motion submitted by Mr. Gibson (Dem., La.) looking to arbitra-

Mr. Hoar replied that he had not examined the motion enough to wish to be diverted from what he was saying. He did not propose, however, to enter on a question of international arbitration until he was satisfied that it would be entered into on the other side in the same spirit in which the United States entered into it. He did not propose to put this country again to the risk of a alifax award or of a judgment by Mr.

Mr. Evarts (Rep., N. Y.) said it could not be important for him to restate or reargue the positions which he had taken when he addressed the Senate in opposition to the treaty. He had reached a stage in his observations when he should take up the articles in detail, not perhaps with much precision but to express a general and peremptory condemnation of them.

Mr. Blair, (Rep., N. H.) asked Mr. Evarts in connection with the first article whether, as it was substantially an agreement that the treaty of 1818 was therein construed, it was not an abandonment of all American claims for damages and an admission that there was no ground for such claim. Mr. Evarts: "Undoubtedly, if with our eyes open we sign such an article." Mr. Evarts went on to discuss each of the articles briefly.

At 4 o'clock the presiding officer, Mr. Harris, called the attention to the agreement under which the last two hours were to be given to the friends of the treaty, but as Mr. Evarts had not completed his argument it was agreed that he should continue it and that as much time as he should occupy after 4 o'clock would be allowed to the other side to-morrow in addition to the two closing hours. Mr. Evarts then reclosed by saying that if the treaty were rejected, as it would be, its rejection would be an opening to quiet and repose. Mr. Gray (Dem., Del.) said in reference to Mr. Evarts' two days' speeches against the treaty that he felt like the old Scotch lidy who was asked by her minister whether she had understood his sermon in which she seemed so much interested. He (Gray) had not the presumption to suppose that he understood the speech of the senator for along the Aflantic coast from Easport to the most southern point of Florida. He (Gray) proceeded to argue against such interpretation of the article. He feared there were some Senators figuring largely in the debate Flanders and when the lien growled at the

A Duel With Knives.

Holderness' left arm was nearly cut off, and he had a long scalp wound. One of Anderson's hands was frightfully cut.

the Bondbolders. MONETEAL, Aug. 20. In reply to enquiries made by Hanson Bros., financial agents of this city, at the request of their London agents regarding the Conversion measure of the Quebec Government, Hon. Mr. Mercier has sent this reply :

" QURBEC, Aug. 18, 1888, - Your letter of yesterday received with copies of cables exchanged between you and your London agents, and ro answer I am authorized to state correct and you may declare positively that the Government will renounce its conversion scheme if it cannot be carried through. and before giving a final decision I desire to know whether the Government intends, yes-or no, to make such conversion in spite of the bondhalders' consent,"

"After consultation with me and other members of the Government, our colleague, Hon. Mr. Garnaen, leader of the Legislative Council, made in writing in the name of the Government the following official declaration in answer to Mr. Starne's question : "I am authorized to answer 'no' and to state that the Government will abandon the conversion scheme if it cannot be carried throughout with the consent of the bondholders. After this Ministerial declaration Hon. Messrs. Starnes and Champagne, two opponents of the Government, being satisfied with this engagement, voted for the measure, which was carried. The Government considers itself pledged by that declaration, which as far as it may be necessary I hereby ratify in the name of the Government, and I declare again that my Government will abandon the conversion scheme if it cannot be carried through with the consent of the bondhoiders. Of course speaking of having the law vetoed or withdrawn is purely ridiculous, as the law is perfectly constitutional and to make a voluntary conversion. "In conclusion I may add that we are much surprised to see that some first-class business men in London should have been led astray by our political opponents here, and this is all the more singular as other first-class business firms in England, France and Canada have already proposed to us to undertake such conversion, " Yours truly,

. " HONORE MERCIER,

"Prime Minister." Thereupon Messrs. Hanson sent the following cable to their London agents: " MONTBEAL, Aug. 16, 1888,-Much more than facts justify is being made out of the Quebec Government's conversion scheme. Before passing the Act the Upper House demanded and received from the Government positive written pledges not to force redemp-
