DOMINION OFFICIALS NOT SURPRISED AT ITS REJECTION.

The Annual Licenses Airendy Granted be Cancelled-English Opinion.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23. - Little surprise is expressed in efficial circles over the rejection of the fisheries treaty by the United States a satisfactory settlement. | Hon. C. H. Tup- is his daughter Della.

per, Minister of Marine said : "The Americans according to the existing arrangements are allowed to buy bait and I don't think it likely tranship cargoes. that the annual licenses already granted American fishermen under the modus vivendi will be cancelled, but when they expire it will be a matter then for the Cabinet to consider the advisability or nonmatters will remark them. In a work order in council bringing the modus vivend into operation is revoked. This, of course, is a question for the Cabinet to decide."

The Feeling in England. LONDON, Aug. 23. - No surprise is felt here at the Senate's rejection of the Fisheries Treaty. The result was fully expected ever since the question was allowed to degenerate into the arena of party politics in the States. It is generally felt that British action must await a Canadian initiative. Every sympathy is felt with Canada under the trying cir. cumstances, but one frequently hears confidence expressed in well-informed cia cles that while stoutly maintaining her admitted rights Canada will take no action likely to provoke a breach of peace. The agreement come to by the Commission and admitted among non-partisans of each country to mete out justice in the case, must, it is argued, form the basis of a permanent settlement. When the fever of the Presidential contest is over the people of the States will be left free to consider the question on its merits.

Cabinet Ministers' Views,

OTTAWA, Aug. 23. - Those of the dominion cabinet ministers in Ottawa are noncommittal on the subject of the rejection of the fisheries treaty by the United States senate. Hon. C. H. Tupper says it was very regretable. It would make no immediate change in the situation, nor was there any need for any immediate consideration of the question by the government.

"Then the modus vivendi will not be abrogated at once ?" he was asked.

"No, certainly not," he replied, "The Dominion government has the power to revoke the licenses at any time, as each per mit contains a clause to that effect; but the government will not do anything of that kind. The permits were granted nominally for a year, and will be allowed to run on. After the close of the fishing season the government will decide what course is to be followed in the future. Hon, Mr. Thompson spoke similarly. The United States retaliation act being mentioned Mr. Thompson declined to believe that there was any probability of the United States executive accepting the rejection of the treaty as a signal to put the act in force. At least not in the near future. The act, he held, was passed under the misapprehension that Canada objected to any compromise on the fisheries question. Canada has since proved that she was anxious to compromise, and it was not likely any disposition now existed in responsible quarters in the United States to put the act in force. All the cabinet ministers declined to express any anticipations of the future course of political events in the states, but there is certainly a hope in official quarters that the presidential and other coming elections in the states will so strengthen the democratic party that a permanent settlement of the fisheries difficulties will be only a question

But Mr. Mauritzen, if he sometimes does awkward things, knows how to make amends. This is the way he did it in the present instance. On Saturday last he reappeared in the McDermott mansion and sought the presence of the daughter of his host. He flung a folded paper into her lap.

"Read that, Miss Della," he said, "and

If Wales had been a republic he would have had no possible competitor for the presidency, and he well deserved the title of "the member for Wales." LONDON, Aug. 22.—General Boulanger's three electoral victories make him once nore formidable, even if only for the moment. The effect throughout Europe is that of a sudden menace to peace. The Berlin, Vienna and London press take no pains to conceal their contempt for a nation which can find material for a hero or a leader in a man of Gen. Boulanger's calibre. They admit, however, that his success, in continued, might set France on the road to war. Gladstone has devoted another long speech to the task of impressing on the English public the wrongs of Ireland. He can find but two parallels for what is going on in that island -- Polandand Naples, Nor does be think even the case of Poland quite so discreditable to Russia as that of Ireland to England. Ireland never gave England the provocation which Poland gave Russia. As for Naples and her prisons, they are bad enough. But even King Bomba treated his political prisoners better than Balfour does his. He did not make them keep company with felons. It is remarkable that the ablest Gladstonian organ in the kingdom, The Manchester Guardian, protests against this comparison of Ireland with Poland in its leading editorial. That powerful journal challenges the accuracy of Gladstone's historical narrative, disputes the conclusions he draws and denies the justness of the comparison between the methods of Mouravieff and the methods of Balfour. Mouravieff would have hanged or shot where Balfour only inflicts hardships and indignities.
