ARMBRECHT'S

Sustains and Refreshes Both Mind and Body-Aids Digestion-Improves the Appetite, and Removes Fatigue.

It is both effective and rapid in its action, and may be taken with perfect safety for any length of time. It is superior to all other tonics, such as Iron, Cinchona, Calisaya, &c., and unlike these IT NEVER CON-STIPATES.

In cases of sleeplessness from exhaustion or fatigue it is invaluable, producing sound and refreshing sleep, without the distressing sensation so common after Opiates, Bromides, and Hydrate of Chloral.

It has been prescribed throughout Europe for years by the most eminent physicians, and has been pronounced the most powerful restorer of the vital forces.

The best soap in general for washing the face is pure white Castile, though some of the better kinds of toilet soap are equally good. Where there is a tendency to eruptions the pure Castile soap has a healing effect where most soaps will aggravate the trouble. When possible, use soft water to wash in, but as around the city this is impracticable, a few drops of ammonia added to hard water will soften it wonderfully. Apropos of rain water for the skin, an old lady, who at the age of 97 years had skin as soft as velvet, attributed it to the constant use of rain water in washing. Never use soap on the face during the day, but just before retiring for the night wash the face with a soft cloth in warm water, using the Castile soap liberally. After drying the skin, rub it well with vaseline or cold cream; in the morning wash this off, using a very little ammonia or soap in the

A few drops of the spirits of campoor added to the wash water twice a week is good to whiten the skin.

Many women who are in the country for the summer lose much benefit of sun and fresh air through fear of getting tanned if they go out except at certain hours of the day. If before going out they will powder the face well the danger is much lessened. Baby powder is very nice to use for this purpose, but if this is not at hand magnesia or even flour will do very well. There are few things more painful, and seemingly so slight, as sunburn, and the best remedy for this affection is the old fashioned one, invariably recommended in the country, of using plenty of buttermilk. Bathe the parts affected liberally and often, allowing the liquid to dry on, and do not rinse it off. It is very cooling and relieves the smarting instantly. Cream is also used for this purpose, but it is not any better than the buttermilk.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

Helps and Hindrances to a Successful Dinner Party.

There are many whose wealth and position entail upon them a certain amount of entertaining. Having, perhaps, no special motive for giving dinners, they invite people to their houses because it is rather expected that they

At all events, people must eat to live, and may as well make that necessity as agreeable in the performance as possible; so the question is, what constitutes a pleasant dinner? First and foremost, of course, the meats and drinks; for if failure is there nothing can make up for it. But supposing that part to be perfection, the next thing is perhaps not to let the dinner last too long. "Linked sweetness long drawn out" is all very well; but one may have too much of a good thing, and there is sometimes a sensation of thralldom felt at dinner parties which is anything but conducive to brilliancy, or even cheerfulness, and although it may happen that one's neighbors are exceptionably agreeable, that is not invariably the case, and when it is not, conversation is apt to flag and to require superhuman efforts to make it go at all. A clever hostess will always try to invite such guests as are in harmony with each other; but is impossible to manage this sometimes, so that allowance must be made for the human lumps of lead who have to be asked, and also for the electric sort of beings, who carry with them an atmosphere charged with elements of storm and disturbance, and who at an over long dinner become irritable and argumentative, while the leaden ones seem to grow heavier the longer they sit, The bostess herself is, of course, one of the great est helps or hindrances to a dinner. Beli possessed and quiet, dressed becomingly to suit her own style, and above all never flurried or distraite, but with eye and ear on the alert, she is charming, even without beauty of feature, and her influence over the table is great, even when the party is so large that conversation is practically a series of tete-atetes. She can and will, when one of the occurs-which always does occur some time during the dinner-prevent the traditional "angel" being too slow in passing, REFRESHING, AN AGREE- by finding some topic to start her guests upon again, or some lively remark to make them laugh. As regards the guests, it is impossible not to feel at times that such sacrifices have been made at the shrine of policy as to spoil the real brilliancy and pleasure of (%) party. People are asked solely because of the value they represent, either in the way of riches or rank, when it may be that they are the dullest of the dull, without one spark of intellect to brighten their heavy personality or enliven their neighbors. However, we must organs in the formation of good blood and take things as they are, and as suciety is sound tissue. now constituted it is not feasible to "weed out" all bores or unattractive people from dinners or any other social gatherings, but those who entertain do well to bear in mind that wit, humor, talent of some sort, are greater factors in the success of a dinner party than mere gold, if the possessors have nothing else to recommend them.

Wasps and Bees. Bees never injure sound fruit. According to Popular Gardening, wasps will puncture grapes, etc., but with bees it is a physical impossibility. Their mandibles are not so constructed, nor are they strong enough to be used in puncturing fruit. Numerous experiments have been tried; among the rest one of putting the hives in an apartment and taking the bees' food away and making them fast for a few days at a time, all the time exposing grapes, etc.; but the bees would not do any injury even under those conditions. If fruit bursts or is injured by the birds or wasps or something else, the bee will soon suck all the juice; but that is an advantage rather than an injury to the grower, as the sound fruit is apt to rot by coming in contact with such, or by the juice flowing over the sound fruit.

He Was Sick.

Had a far away look in his eyes, predicted all sorts of evil, short-crops, low prices, a new rebellion in the North-West. His skin was yellow, and a fever spot on each of his cheeks told of a torpid fever and poisoned blood. A box of Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills worked a wondrous change, for through their stimulating action on the liver, all poisonous germs were removed from the true river of life-the blood. Crop prospects improved, prices were away up, and life at once became filled with new prospects and pleasures. Trv Hamilton Pills at druggists and dealers in medicine.
