An Unsatisfactory Echo. Talking about echoes, Col. Ogeechee claimed that he had one on his place, a few miles from Savannah, which beat anything he had ever heard or read about; one, in fact, which would clearly repeat whole sentences. The party of gentlemen were interested, but incredulous, and arranged to accompany Col. Ogeechee home the next afternoon to test the wonderful

The colonel found, on getting home, claimed more than the facts justified. Determined not to be beaten, he called his Irish laborer.

"Pat." says he, "some gentlemen are coming home with me to morrow afternoon to hear the echo. Now, I want you to go across the river before time for me to arrive, so you can answer back whatever we may call out."
