The play had hardly begun when it was asily to be seen that the Montreal men were not going to have it all their own way by a big majority. The Queen's men were eidedly heavier in the scrimmage, and lthough not playing with the combination of their opponents in the back division the Queen's half and quarters seemed to make by good passing and checking the Montreal ers got the leather over the Queen's 25 line, but as soon as it got into scrimmage it was pertain to be worked back slowly and surey. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Juvenile Rowdyism.

KINGSTON, Nov. 6 .- (To the Editor) school boys of Kingston and its vicinity requires some very decided check, in the interest of our city's peace and good order. have witnessed, yesterday and to-day-two disgraceful street rows, in which the offenders were small mobs of boys on their way from school. In the one case they abusive, threatening with violence any one who should interfere with them. These boys reside in Portamouth. Their name are known. One of them at least has been seen before assaulting a small boy on the street, and if again found disturbing the grod order of the city he will be summarily reported at the police station. row witnessed to-day on Johnson street was equally brutal, if not more so. A dozen or so of boys were mobbing a boy who had been driving a swill cart. They had been pulling his harness to pieces, abusing his dog, and one of them finally had him down on the muddy sidewalk, pummelling him with might and main. He was with difficulty got to release the victim, who was covered with mud, and had his face marked People to-day would talk of flothing but

Assaults of this character are of too frequent occurrence. Small boys and dumb animals are the usual victims of this juvenile rowdyism. I have never seen it so prevalent in Kingston, and, for the sake of the boys themselves, it is time that such conduct should be effectually repressed, and that the offenders should be made acquainted with their duties as citizens. Unless this is done promptly there may soon be more serious results. Mothers, too, complain that their little girls are addressed in vile language on the streets by some of these young roughs. I would suggest that policemen be special ly appointed to patrol the streets most traversed by school boys returning from morning and afternoon school, with instructions to make summary examples of the first offenders caught, carefully discriminating. however, between attackers and attacked. If it is necessary let the police force be increased sufficiently to make it effective in preserving the good order of the city-a matter of the first importance. I think, too, that the free use of profane language on the streets should be checked as disorderly conduct. - Yours, A CITIZEN.

A BOLD ROBBERY.

A Commercial Traveller Relieved of His Valuables at an Hotel.

Belleville Intelligencer.

Daniel H. Doust, a commercial traveller, arrived in the city yesterday and registered at the Dominion House. During the afternoon he, in company with James Guillett, who is an employee of the above hotel, visited a number of hotels and imbibed quite freely of liquor, and both became much under its influence. In the evening they retired to bed together, occupying the one room in the Dominion House. About 11 o'clock Doust awoke, and arising, commenced an investigation, when it dawned upon his mind that be had been the victim of a robbery. He immediately gave the alarm, but Guillett was no where to be seen. The extent of the robbery was stated by Doust as follows: $20 in money, an open face silver watch with Elgin movement valued at $25, a handsome gold ring in which was set a tiger's eye stone and was valued at $15. A number of papers had also been extracted from his pockets, among which was a commercial traveller's certificate, dated from 1875 to 1889. The affair was immediately communicated to the police. The party who is accused to have taken the articles has been an employee of the Dominion House for some time and was considered to be a trustworthy person. Guillett was arrested in Lingston and was taken to Belleville on last evening's train.

THE COURT OF CHANCERY

A CASE THAT HAS BEEN HEARD OF TWICE BEFORE.

Was the Mortgage Drawn Fraudulently? -A Woman in the Case-The Circumstances of the Affair-Decision is Reserved.

The court of chancery was engaged on the case of Mills v. Mills for two and a half days. It was an action to set aside a mortgage and redeem property on the south side of Brock street, and which has become quite noted because of the many disputes concerning it. It appears that J. C. Mills, father of the plaintiffs, gave a mortgage to his son James Mills in 1861, for $1,000, with interest at 7 per cent. and payable in one year after date. In 1868 the mortgage was assigned to Thomas Mills, and by him in 1871 to Mary Mills, the present defendant In 1887 James Mills having dfed J. C. Mills brought an action of trespass against Mary Mills et al by putting up a fence on the property. The late Justice O'Connor gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff, but this decision was reversed by the common pleas division on the ground that the mortgage conveyed the legal title to the property and gave possession to the defendants.

Since that time J. C. Mills has died. Laguipa a mill in which he devised the pro perty to his two daughters, Mary and Eliza who brought the action to set aside the mortgage. The defence was that the mortguage was made in good faith for the amount it represented, that were it otherwise the lapse of time precluded the bring. ing of the action. The defendants also claimed the title by right of possession. There was a great deal of contradictory evidence on both sides. It was shown that the mortgage was drawn in the office of T. L. Snook by a clerk named Wilson. Upon the mortgage $500 was paid at the time; the aum of $200 had been previously advanced. The mortgage represented a settlement of accounts. Mr. Snook swore to the execution of the mortgage, and his evidence was corroborated by that of Samuel Mason, a mariner, who was seeidentally present at the time for the purpose of changing money at the request of James Mills. Other evidence was put in to show that the mortgage was recognized by J. C. Mills on several occasions.

On the other hand four members of the plaintiff's family swore that James Mills had acknowledged that the mortgage had been given him by his father to protect the property and keep it as a home for the children, as he feared that a woman, with whom he lived in the United States and had several children, might obtain a claim on the property, and further to save it from being subject to the claims of creditors at a future time. Important points of law in connection with evidence were raised. and his lordship deferred judgment until he had an opportunity of consulting authorities. Dr. E. H. Smythe, Q.C., appeared for the plaintiffs, and R. T. Walkem, Q. C., for the detendant. The judge complimented these gentlemen on the excellence of their addresses in argument.

THE INSTITUTE STAFF.

Changes Occurring In It -Two Retirements-Two Vacancies Not Filled,

Yesterday the collegiate institute board held its monthly meeting. Charles J. Cameron tendered his resignation from Dec. 31st as classical master, having resolved to enter the ministry. He gracefully acknowledged the courtesy and fair treatment of the trustees during his engagement. The board expressed its regret at his leaving, and its sense of the faithfulness, excellence and enthusiasm of his work. F. O. Sliter, English master, was appointed classical master at $800 for 1889 on the strength of his good record this year, and of his record in classics at Toronto university-scholarships in '84, '85 and '86, and the gold medal in '87. Daniel Conboy resigned his position as modern language master to accept an in surance inspectorship. The filling of this position and that of English master was postponed until the December meeting. The contract for coal was awarded to the Messrs. W. B.& S. Anglin lowest tenderers.

The Order Established.

A branch of the Royal Templars' organization was instituted last evening at Portsmouth by W. Kelly, deputy grand councillor for this district. Seventeen registered their names as charter members. Only a tew of the officers were chosen. The election will be completed next Tuesday evening. About twenty-five of the members of the Kingston society were present.
