A VISIT TO ENGLAND

The Emperor's Parting With His Mother -Details of the Tour.

Berlin, Nov. 19 .- The parting between the emperor and his mother was very touchtimes. The party met the Prince of Wales, at Flushing, and embarked on the royal yacht which started for England near midnight The emperor has instructed Count Von Hatzfeldt, the German ambassador at London, to meet the ex empress on her arrival in England. Count Von Hatzfeldt will join the party and be a guest until

LONDON, Nov. 19. - Most of the English papers, in referring to the visit of the ex-Empress of Germany, express warm sympathy and welcome. ONDON, Nov. 19 .- The royal yacht bearing the Empress Frederick of Germany and her daughters, and the Prince of Wales, reached Port Victoria this morning. Queen Victoria and the Princess Louise and Beatrice left Windsor this morning to greet the empress on landing. They were joined at the Waterloo station of the L. & S. E. railway in Loudon by Count Von Hatzfeldt, the German ambassador, who will accompany them to Port Victoria, and will afterwards go with them to Windsor. There was only a small crowd at the station on the arrival of the queen's train, and there was no cheering or uncovering of heads. The queen and empress met in the yacht's saloon. The meeting was affecting. On the way to Windsor the train stopped at the V'aterloo station and Count Von Hatzfeldt | held to bail in the [Charged with the Murder.] alighted. The train was Loving on when the queen remembered that she had omitted to invite him to be her guest at Windsor as | will come on in December. she had intended to do. Princess Beatrice, therefore, called out from the window and the Duke of Cambridge from the platform of the car, "Count Von Hartzfeldt, you will accompany us to Windsor." The count bow. ed his assent, but the train had started and he was compelled to take a later one. No slight was intended.

The empress landed shortly after the arrival of the royal train at Port Victoria. When the greetings were over the whole party proceeded to Windsor where they arrived this afternoon.

A MURDER AT OMAHA.

Divorced Wife Committs the Crime-The Details of the Tragedy.

OMAHA, Neb. Nov. 19 .- Harry W. King had been boarding at the Paxton hotel with a woman ostensibly his wife. At 7:30 this morning a fair haired lady-like woman arrived from Chicago, and registered as Mrs. H. W. King, jr., and proceeded to King's rooms. Calling him to the door, some conversation ensued, she upbraiding him while he urged her to go away and leave him. She finally said with tears in her eyes : "Harry, will you take me to breakfast? I mean you no harm." He repulsed her roughly, and started for the elevator. She followed him, drew a revolver, and shot him in the mouth. He staggered away. She followed and fired three more shots, when he fell down stairs leading to the rotunda, dying immediately. She rushed after him with the smoking revolver in her hand. Kneeling by his side she sobbed : "I've murdered my hus band." Judge Brewer, of the U. S. district court, and many guests were eye witnesses.

ST. Louis, Nov. 17 .- A few weeks ago a special despatch from Louisiana, Mo., was printed here announcing the marriage of Henry W. King, jr., to a lady at that place. The marriage was a secret one, and it is thought the divorced wife had just learned of it and the tragedy followed.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19. - All the mystery regarding the woman who shot Harry King at Omaha has been cleared away. Her real name is Elizabeth Bechler, and her parents live at Cleveland, Ohio. She was rnined five years ago by a man named Legarde, and took his name. After a stay in Detroit she came to Chicago, and was introduced to young King who at once became infatuated with her. She was never married to King, and never took his name, living with him at Quincy under the name of Legarde, and here under the name of Bechler. She was not an educated woman, but had the faculty of adapting herself to circumstances and to casual acquaintances she would pass as a woman of culture.

THE CRIME IN THE WEST

A FAMOUS POISONING CASE NOW GOES TO TRIAL

T. HANLEY. . Gen. Ticket Agent. | Gne Result of a Very Unhappy Marriage-A Great Blackmailing Scheme Which Miscarried-The Vile Plot Into Which a Woman Estered With Her Husband Against a County Attorney.

There is a sensation at Mason City, Ia., over the approaching murder trial, growing out of the poisoning of Hiram L. Brown and Josse Brown at Mason City. A Mr. and Mrs. Hiram E. Brown, the son and daughter-inlaw of Hiram L. Brown, lived an unhappy married life. Mr. Brown, the husband, was music teacher. His old father lived with the couple, and this seemed to augment their difficulties. On March I last, while the family were setting at suppor, they were all suddenly son of the Brown ing the house a box of Rough on Rats was found. The body of Hiram L Brown was buried, but. several weeks after was exhumed and sent to a chemist for examination. Arsenic was found in large quantities. The whom the case came implicated Hiram E. Brown. In order to clear himself he hired a detective, whose investigations resulted in the arrost of Mrs. Brown. She was sum of $7,000. Now, Mrs. Brown has been indicted, and the case

While the people in one part of the state are about to be horrified with the details of this crime the first anniversary of a terrible tragedy in another portion, Waverly, Brenner county, is near at hand. This case involved rather more of tragedy, black treachery and degradation of people once highly respected, than anything in recent history. By incontrovertible evidence it was proved that Col. M. E. Billings, once an honored citizen and a veteran of the war for the Union, planned to have his wife debauched by County Attorney W. S. Kingsley in order to blackmail the latter; that on the failure of the plot he murdered Mr. Kingsley, and that in order to shield her busband Mrs. Billings testified to her own muilt and shame. Yet in spite of her personal evidence it was shown by a letter she had written that the murdered man was guiltless cawrong doing. On Dec. 21, 1887, just after dark, two pistol shots were heard in Mr. Kingsley's office, and Col. Billings rushed out declaring that the attorney had shot at him and he had killed him in self defense. But it was proved that Mr. Kingsley never carried or kept a pistol, while Col. Billings kept several; and on the person of the latter were found papers he had drawn up ready for the attorney to sign, confessing the adultery, deeding all his property to Col. Edlings and guaranteeing to pay him the attorney's official salary till 18(0). The bullet Col. Billings exhibited as having been fired at him, and having flattened against his suppender buc.le, was shown to have been harmnered to the buckle. In short, the evidence vas complete of consparacy to blackmand, and on the failure of the scheme a declarate murder. The jury returned a vertice of marder in the second degree, which carries to operalty of imprisonment for his.

COL. BILLINGS. W. KINGSLEY. DELIA E. BLLINGS.

The portraits here given of the two show Mrs. Billings to be a fairly good looking woman and her husband not a very evil looking man; yet they have both sunk about as low as humanity can get in this world. The victim, Lawyer Kingsley, had a very pleasant face and was generally robular.

PROVED HE IS NO LIAR.

A Startling Scene in a Council Chamber at Windsor-Copy From Kingston.

A lively scene occurred in the Windsor council chamber last week. The ferry franchise came up with J. W. Drake and T. Mercer Morton on different sides of the great problem. Both are gifted with warm and excitable dispositions. In the debate Morton turned upon his adversary with startling fierceness. "You are a coward, sir," he shouted.

Drake rose to a question of privilege. "The man who says I am a coward, lies!" Morton glanced wildly round, grasped very large and very full inkstand, and hurled it with all his manly power at the head of his municipal colleague. The world stood still for a moment to hear Drake drop with a dull and sickly thud. But he didn't drop. The inkstand missed fire, but the ink didn't. Drake's new and highly attractive fall suit and half a dozen Waterloos were outlined where the black and sticky ink trickled from his aristocratic chin and ran in caressing streams under his Byronic collar. At last accounts the combating powers were doing as well as could be expected. Of course the scene has been a great shock and scandal to Windsor, but as a town it is yet young and fresh. It will be better fortified against such assaults when it becomes as ancient as Kingston. For reasons obvious now perhaps to the Windsor councillors the ink bottles in our council chamber are solidly fastened to the table. No hurling of ink here; nothing worse than Billingsgate.

CAUGHT AT PETERBORO.

Forger Ross Run Down-The Ringston Shookeepers Can Prosecute.

On the 22nd Dec., 1887, a man who gave his name as William Ferguson, passed a forged check upon Messrs. Foote & Mc-$18, and purported to be made out by Mayor Stevenson, who denied all knowledge of the check. The affair has since been almost forgotten, but Chief Douglass, Port Hope, who knows the man and has several charges against him, awaited his opportunity. Ferguson, or Louis Ross, as his right name is said to be, kept shady for a long time, but finally gravitated towards the town of his birth. Chief Douglassan ested him. He will be prosecuted on the charge of forgery at Peterboro. Then the Port Hopers will call him to account for several misdemeanors committed.

This story was so much like that given by the fellow who passed forged cheques upon Messes Sarsfield and Liffiton that the WHIG telegraphed to reterboro asking for a coscription of the forger, and also whether he was in Kingston on Thursday last. The reply was :

"Ross, 5 ft. 10 in. in height; stoop in shoulders; stoutly built; dark complexion, tanned; iron grey hair but only, perhaps, 30 or 35 years old; slight moustache, week's growth of whiskers on face; wears dark plaid suit, pants short; heavy under lip. Wanted also at Trenton for forgery.

The description is complete, and it is undoubtedly the Kingston forger who has been

DOMESTIC TRAGEDIES.

A Discovery Made in New York-The Barreme Aurder in France,

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. -An astonishing revelation has been made in the case of a handsomely dressed woman who committed suicide in the Compton house on October 4th. Being unidentified, she was buried in Potter's field. On the clothing were the initials "A.B.B." It is now believed she was Mme. Almont Calvert Barreme, the sister of M. Barreme, the prefect of the department of Eure, France, who was murdered in a railway car in January, 1886. The murderer was never brought to justice, but the murdered man's family seem to have been pursued by fatality. One brother died under peculiar circumstances, another is now mad, the father is dead and now the pay the salary of an assistant out of his own sister, Mme. Barreme, is discovered to be the mysterious Compton house suicide. It was suspected that a member of M. Barreme's wife's family was the murderer. so it is hinted he has known how to get rid of his pursuers.

DEATH OF DR. SANDS.

The Reception Arranged at His House-The Suddenness of His Demise.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. -Dr. Sands, eminent surgeon, New York died yesterday in a carriage with Dr. Alexander when opposite Delmonico's. By a previous arrangement the sextetteclub of the philharmonic society, and others, had gathered at the house of Dr. Sands in the afternoon for a private entertainment. At 3:55 his carriage was seen corring down the street, and the gentlemen were preparing to give him a musical welcome, when the carriage door was opened and Dr. Smith was seen supporting the dead body of his friend. Death was caused by a blood clot on the brain. Dr. Sands was consulting surgeon in the cases of Gen. Grant and Hon. Roscoe Conkling.

THE GOVERNORS OF COLONIES.

Should They be Elected or Chosen by the Governments of the Day? LONDON, Nov. 19. - Lord Carnarvon writes to the Times deprecating the idea that the colonies should chose their own governors. This, he says, implies the appointment of the governor by the political party then in power in the colonial parliament, and the abandonment of those very few rights which now belong to the crown, and which he honestly believes are mainly in the interest of the colonies, as enabling the crown to discharge its duties satisfactorily to them. After discussing the question fully he concludes : "The dispute requires careful handling. We must trust to the temper and good sense of both sides.'

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE UNION.

A Good Meeting Last Evening-Addresse

From Various Gentlemen. Mr. Cameron, of Queen's, was in the chair at yesterday's meeting. Miss C. Davey and L. Drury sang, "Are You Coming Home To-night?" Mr. McDonald, Manchester, showed some of the evils brought upon the people by their rulers and teachers indulging their appetites in strong drink The people followed the pernicious example, and the nation became corrupted, bringing down upon it the vengeance of God for their sins. The temperance people were few and their work great, but God was on their side, and He would scatter the liquor traffic until itwas destroyed. Mr. Lee, a member of the Rechabites, of Birmingham, said the cause of temperance in England had made great progress. The time was when there was but one member in parliament on the side of temperance; now there are nearly one hundred. Six bishops of the Church of England and several thousand clergymen were pledged temperance men. The people were
