THERE IS PLENTY OF IT TO DO IN THE CITY JUST NOW.

The Necessity for the Young Men's Christinn Association-It is a Rebuke to the Church, But it is Doing Well And Deserves to be Encouraged-One Popular And Free Rendevous.

meeting in the interest of the international committee of Young Men's Christian association was held in the First Congregashurch last evening. The audience was a large one. Major Mayne, of the Royal military col-lege, said that the fact of young men's associations throughout the world were a success was proof that they supplied a reed in society. The origin of the associations was the failure of the church to do the work among young men which the associations do. This Christian society for young men was one of action, and its aim was not to preach any particular doctrine, but to train young men in Christain principles and make them better church-goers. In this work the church people should lend the association strong support. There were many reasons why the association should be encouraged. It aimed at the improvement of young men, and held up the example of the this by comradeship in Christian work, by prayer meetings and by bible readings. The speaker pointed out that a building for the young men's association of the city was much required to enable it to carry out its work better, and he hoped funds for it would soon be forthcoming. If the different branches of the church became united it would be mainly through the efforts in Christian work of the young men's associa-

Rev. Mr. Sparling, of the Williamsville church, said that despite statements to the contrary the young men's association was doing a grand work. The report of the Kingston society was very encouraging. It was one of which the members were not ashamed, one which would compare favorably with the work done by any of the city churches. The aim of the society was the welfare of young men, to keep them from evil, to teach them to be Christians, and industrious and good citizens. He was sorry there had arisen a necessity for such a society, because it was a standing rebuke to the church which neglected the spiritual welfare of its young men. Notwithstanding that there were 3,000 young men in the city, and 47 saloons and places of pernicious amusements which tend to ruin them, there was only one place where instruction and recreation could be had by young men under Christian influence. The young men's association accomplished great good by the atmembers of it. It had its athletic, gaming and literary departments, and by these it was enabled to reach the hearts of young men who could not otherwise be reached. In strong terms he denounced the pernicious literature which was so popular among young men, and which was doing a great deal of harm. He advised the Young Men's Christian association to guard against getting this literature into the libraries. urged the citizens to aid the local association in its work.

The meeting dispersed after Rev. J. W. Sparling pronounced the benediction.

St. George's Cathedral.

Yesterday morning the congregation of St. George's cathedral was unusually large. The singing was excellent, and the choir. which has lately had the accession of an excellent bass, is evidently on the high road to become first-class choir for its size. The sermon was preached by the Ven. Archdeacon Lauder, who chose for his text, John, 17-15. After some highly appropriate introductory remarks, the ven. gentleman went on to say how much it was to be deplored that many persons, especially the young, were practically lost to the church by the injudicious exposition of Christianity presented to them. He clearly demonstrated how sin could be made out of anything, and also showe I how the element of purity could "leaven the whole loaf," and that what otherwise might appear frivolous and vain, when touched by "the magic wand of christianity," assumed the form of heart-serving mirth and wholesome recreation and exercise. In every way it was evidently the intention of the preacher to show that a true Christian may take advantage of the enjoyments presented to him in "this vale of tears," as well as of those upon "the golden floor," and that it is stupid in the extreme to "strive to merit heaven by making earth a hell."

In the evening the service was full choral and conducted in good style, the congregation joining in with laudable accuracy. It proves to be most interesting to those Archdeacon Lander, who again preached, | whose forefathers came to Canada toward chose for his text, 1st Cor., 39. After | the end of the last century. Many persons had a very erroneous idea of the bible. Some almost seemed to think that it had dropped from heaven neatly bound as we possessed it. If people read more of church history their views would become expanded. He plainly showed how futile it | John Grant, John Money, John Faris, was to talk of an infallible chruch. "The church," he said, "is not like a club or an association, all true believers, irrespective of sect, form the church."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Feeling in the West

ALGOMA, Iowa, Nov. 10. - (To the Editor): Supposing a short letter from me descriptive of this western country might be of interest to some of your readers I am tempted to write. This place is situated in the northern part of the state on a branch of the Des Moines river, and in a very rich and fertile section of country, mostly settled by a thrifty, hard working class of people. The principal grain grown is corn, which yields 50 to 75 bushels shelled corn per acre. During this season prices are generally low, corn being only worth from 20 to 25 cents per bushel, but in the spring and summer it is worth from 40 to 60 cents per bushel. Grain is next, however, the principal preduct of this western country, cattle and hogs are raised extensively for fatting purposes, for which there is always a good market in Chicago.

The towns and villages hereform a strange contrast to those in the east. They stand out on the prairie, many of them, with very few trees or means of protection around tractions it offers young men to become | them from the severe cold and heavy storms | fresh eggs; preserved fruits 121c. a pound; of winter. Villages spring up suddenly throughout different parts of the state, and in a year or two are important business centres, displaying as much life and activity as many eastern places of ten times their

> In regard to commercial union or free trade with Canada the feeling of the people here is very strong against it. They have generally got the impression that were commercial union or free trade established between Canada and the United States the cause of the working classes would be financially ruined, that England would soon flood the country with pauper emigration and reduce the wages of the common laborer to 8 cents per day, as I heard a gentleman remark a short time ago, "Where this impression originated it is hard for me to state but I presume the origin can be traced to the utterances of some political enthusiast who desired to work upon the credulity of the people." I also find that the people generally throughout these western states have a very limited knowledge of the England. Being a Canadian myself I feel somewhat amused when I am told that if the United States granted commercial union to Canada they would be obliged to extend the same privileges to England also, thus allowing her with her cheap labor to compete with American manufacturers in their own markets to the ruination of all American industries. It is my impression. therefore, that if the feeling against commercial union be as strong everywhere as it is here Canadians need not hope for it for some time to come. -Yours, &c.,

IN MEMORIAM.

The Late Miss Macdonald.

Miss Macdonald, only sister of Sir John A. Macdonald, died at three o'clock Sunday morning. About two weeks ago her illness assumed a serious aspect, and since that time she has been gradually growing worse. Her disease was the result of a heart affection from which she suffered for many years. The deceased was seventy years of age, several years younger than the premier. She was a resident of Kingston for nearly half a century, residing with her brother while he lived here, and for the past twenty years with her brother-in-law, Rev. Dr. Williamson, of Queen's university She was mild and gentle in character and disposition, and beloved by all with whom she came in contact. She was a woman much ability, well read and brilliant in conversation. She bubbled over with humour and wit, even eclipsing her eminent brother in rapartee. She was of generous and noble impulse, and quite religious. For years she was connected with St. Andrew's church Although an invalid for the best part of her life, she ever maintained patience and resignation. Sir John arrived here yesterday, but his sister had departed this life. Mr. McIntyre broke the news to him. The funeral occurs to morrow morning.

He did not confine his mercantile operations to Picton, for at one time he had branch stores in Milford and Wellington. Col. Ross was twice married. His first wife was a sister of the late Sheriff Thorpe. His second wife, the widow of Dr. Pruyn, survives him. He has four living children, two sons and two daughters. His eldest son, Walter T. # THE LATE FR. STAFFORD.

Eloquent Remarks By Vicar-General Laurent-A Noble Character.

Sunday last being the 6th anniversary of the death of Rev. Father Stafford, Lindsay, Vicar-Gen. Laurent took occasion to advect in eloquent terms to the steadfast temperance principles of the deceased priest. Vicar-Gen. Laurent was of the firm opinion that in a cold climate like that of Canada, incapable of producing the light wines of warmer countries, and where alcoholic fermentations more or less ardent, were the only beverages procurable total abstinence was the only safe course to pursue. Thirty years in the climate of Canada had shown the results of indulgence in the strong drinks of the country. Without expressing an opinion as to the methods of temperance workers it was his honest opinion that total abstinence was the best for the people. During eight years spent in Muskoka and the Sault St. Marie region, where stimulants were much used, he invariably found that hunters, trappers and others, whose vocations obliged them to tramp long distances-a hundred miles or so-on foot or snow-shoes, never took liquor with them, and frankly acknowledged that it would be dangerous to Another Romance.

Cape Vincent is teeming with romance these days. A young doctor, while in conversation with a friend, became suddenly ill, and was removed to the residence of young lady to whom he had been paying attention. He grew rapidly worse, and a physician was summoned who pronounced the patient in a dangerous condition. So alarming was the case that the doctor sent for the parents, who live on a neighboring island. This was about I o'clock in the morning, and while the physician was in search of some one to go after the parenta. the young man sent for the girl and had the gordian knot tied.
