city and Brilliant Conversation.

It is well known that habitual opium eaters suffer most terribly when deprived of the drug. Dr. John Crowell says, in Popular while it is found that an increase of the drug is necessary in order to produce the lesired results, and before long an amount is tolerated of surprising magnitude.

According to Dr. Crowell, opium enters take the drug in every variety of form. In the crude state the gum is eaten or smoked. In the liquid preparations the tincture is the most popular, but paregoric is a favorite form, especially with women, while the elixirs are also largely used. Morphia bolds sway over a large proportion of consumers, either by the stomach or hypodermically. The amount of the sulphate of morphia that can be tolerated by a confirmed subject is enormous, sometimes reaching as high as a trip to assist in renewing health. sixty grains in twenty-four hour.

The organ most directly affected is the and consequent lack of nutrition are among the results that follow.

But it is upon the nervous system that the use of onium produces the most profound results. It is here that the pathological effect is clearly seen, the influence upon the secretory glands being merely secondary. Every physician has seen, says Dr. Crowell, in opium habitues cases illustrating to a greater or less extent the stimulant action upon the intellectual centers.

While under the influence of the drug there is seen the vivacity, the loquacity, the brilliant flash of the eye, the ardor and glow of the countenance, and the general superexcitation so peculiar to the morbid condition, and in such contrast to the depression and wretched melancholy attending a deprivation of the drug.

There are cases of society women who, having spent most of the day in bed, will flash most brilliantly in the evening under the influence of the drug. And the fascination of literary and methetic conversation, so captivating to the habitues of salons, is not unfrequently the inspiration of the potent

Dr. Crowell further states that in the treatment of this morbid condition two methods are tried-a sudden withdrawal of the use of the drug, or a gradual diminution in its administration. Both methods have strong advocates. But the theory and practice of the first are sharply controverted by the wisdom and experience of the managers of retreats for the victims of this dreadful habit. According to Dr. Bancroft, of the Concord, N. H., asylum, gradual reduction is generally approved by physicians in this

Whooping Cough.

In every case of whooping cough a physician should be consulted early in the attack. He can then give full instructions as to management. A child with whooping cough should be well nourished, and food nutritious in character and sufficient in quantity should be urged upon it.

During a fit of coughing the child's head, as he bends forward, may be supported by the hand. In some cases putting the finger in the mouth will induce vomiting and so shorten the paroxysm. Aside from this there is, according to Journal of Health, very little that the mother can do to assist the patient during his distressing attack.

Marvels of the Healing Art.

Among curiosities of the medical art is successful transplantation of skin from a corpse to a living being, of which a Berlin physician reports a case. The patient was a boy aged 14, who was suffering from a loss of the integuments of both feet, consequent upon a burn. Some skin was taken from the legs of a man aged 75, who had died twenty minutes before, and was transplanted to the boy's feet.

Scraped Meat.

Instead of the minced raw meat often given it is now claimed that scraped meat, prepared as follows, is much better because it is free from sinews and more palatable. Take a piece of steak cut like a little block, scrape the surface with a silver spoon till all the pulp is extracted, then cut a slice off the steak and scrape the newly cut surface again.

Weakness of the Eyes.

Infants are frequently born with eyes so weak that they "water" upon exposure to wind or light, even when judiciously advanced to these. A nurse recommends for the cure of this weakness frequent bathing with water of the saltness and temperature of tears.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

Little Caprices of Custom That Puzzle the Neophyte in Society.

Few points of etiquette are more debated than those that relate to the leaving of cards. There is no end to the dilemmas of the novice as to how and when she shall pour out the contents of her card case upon a thankless world. Shall she leave her card after she has made a call! Shall she leave her husband's card if she is calling on a widow or a single lady? And what if there are daughters belonging to the family on whom she is calling? These are but a few of the questions that arise. Now, the truth is that nothing changes more quickly than the fashions of card leaving. Every season brings something newthe shibboleth by which the elect may recognize one another. People who are constantly moving in society pick up this kind of knowledge almost instinctively, but it is almost impossible for those who go out very little to follow all these little caprices of fashion.

Of one of these vexed questions-the turning down of the corner of a card-it may be said that it is only done when the person called on is not at home, and is supposed to imply that the visitor has left it in person; for it is very clear that none but the owner would take such a liberty as to bend a corner of a card. The upper right hand corner is the one to turn down.

Wedding Announcements.

In case of a private or informal wedding, an announcement of the marriage is sent out next day by the bride's family to all friends and acquaintances. It is engraved upon a sheet of note paper after the following form: "Mr. and Mrs. William Staunton announce the marriage of their daughter Agnes to Mr. Arthur Howard, on Thursday, Oct. 11, 1888. Toledo, O." In the leat hand may be added: "At home after Nov. 4, at ---," supplying the blank with the proper street and number. These notes are in many instances prepared for distant friends who could not be present even at a large wedding. They may be sent in two envelopes by mail.

The harsh, drastic purgatives, once deem. ed so indispensable, have given place to milder and more skilfully prepared laxatives; hence the great and growing demand for Ayer's Pills. Physicians everywhere recommend them for costiveness, indiges. tion, and liver complaints.

Grand Results.

For years R. H. Brown, of Kincardine, suffered from dyspepsia, he says he tried several physicians and a host of remedies without relief. His druggist recommended B. B. B. which he declares produced "grand results," for which he gives it highest recommendation.

Officials of Methodist district formerly demanded Rev. J. W. Jeffrey's resignation within twenty four hours. He complied, and relinquishes connection with his new church. He will remain a minister without charge until conference meets.

In a Dreadful Condition. Hattie E. Manthorn, of Mill Village, Ont., says, "My cough was dreadful, I could not sleep at nights on account of it, but when I used Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam I had rest and was quickly cured." All druggists sell this invaluable cough remedy.

The largest car transporting steamer, the Maryland, burned at Port Morris, N. J., with three sleeping cars; loss $400,000; the thirty passengers saved.

A High Valuation.

"If there was only one bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Cil in Manitoba I would give one hundred dollars for it," writes, Phillip H. Brant, of Montieth, Manitoba, after having used it for a severe wound and for frozen fingers, with, as he erys, "astonishing good results."
