a throne of the tempest, and one day floated with silver and its feathers with yellow gold. Oh are you not in love with such a religion-a religion that can do so much for a man while. not compose a joke equal to the joke uttered at the other end of his table. Zeuxis, dying in a fit of laughter at the sketch of an aged Mazarin, dying playing cards, his friend bolding his hands because he was unable to hold them himself. All that on one side, compared with the departure of the Scotch minister, who said to his friends: "I have no interest as to whether I live or die; if I die I shall be with the Lord, and if I live the Lord shall be with me." Or the last words of Washington: "Is it well." Or the last word of McIntosh, the learned and the great: "Happy!" Or the last word of Hannah More, the Christian poetess: "Joy!" Or gone, saying: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit. Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly." "O death! where is thy sting? O grave! where is thy victory?" Behold the contrast. Dehold the charm of the one, behold the darkness of the other. Now, I know it is very popular in this day for young men to think there is something more charming in skepticism than in religion. They are ashamed of the old fashioned religion of the cross, and they pride themselves on their free thinking on all these subjects. My young friends, I want to tell you what I know from observation that while skepticism is a beautiful land at the start, it is the great Sahara Desert at the last.

A STORY WITH A MORAL

Years ago a minister's son went off from home to cellege. At college be formed the acquaintance of a young man whom f shall call Ellison. Ellison was an infidel. Ellison scoffed at religion, and the minister's son soon learned from him the infidelity, and when he went home on his vacation broke his father's heart by his denunciations of Christianity. Time passed on and vacation came, and the minister's son went off to spend the vacation, and was on a journey and came to a hotel. The hotel keeper said: "I am sorry that tonight I shall have to put you in a room adjoining one where there is a very sick and dying man. I can give you no other accommodation." "Oh," said the young college minister's son, "that will make no difference to me, except the matter of sympathy with anybody that is suffering." The young man retired to his room, but could not sleep. All night long he heard the groaning of the sick man, or the step of the watchers, and his soul trembled. He thought to himself: "Now, there is only a thin wall between me and a departing spirit. How if Ellison should know how I feel? How if Ellison should find out how my heart flutters? What would Ellison say if he knew my skepticism gave way?" He slept not. In the morning, coming down he said to the hotel keeper: "How is the sick man?" "Oh," said the hotel keeper, "he is dead, poor fellow! The doctors told us he could not last through the night," "Well," said the young man, "what was the sick one's name! Where is he from?" "Well," said the hotel keeper, "he is from Providence college." "Providence college! What is his name?" "Ellison." "Ellison!" Oh, how the young man was stunned! It was his old college mate-dead without any hope. It was many hours before the young man could leave that hotel. He got on his horse and started homeward, and all the way he heard something saying to him: "Dead! Lost! Dead! Lost!" He came to no satisfaction until he entered the Christian life, until he entered the Christian ministry, until he became one of the most eminent missionaries of the cross, the greatest Daptist miss.onary the world has ever seen since the days of Paul-no superior to Adoniram Judson. Mighty on earth, mighty in heaven - Adoniram Judson. Which do you like the best, Judson's skepticism or Judson's Christian life! Judson's suffering for Christ's sake, Judson's almost martyrdom? Oh, young man, take your choice between these two kinds of lives. Your own heart tells you this morning the Christian life is more admirable, more peaceful, more comfortable, and more beautiful.

Oh, if reliated a dees so much for a man on earth, what will it do for him in heaven! That is the thought that comes to me now. If a soldier can afford to shout "Huzza!" when he goes into battle, how much more jubilantly he can afford to shout "Huzza!" when he has gained the victory! If religion is so good a thing to have here, how bright a thing it will be in heaven! I want to see that young man when the glories of heaven have robed and crowned him. I want to hear him sing when all huskiness of earthly colds is gone, and he rises up with the great doxology. I want to know what standard be will carry when marching under arches of pearl in the army of banners. want to know what company he will keep in a land where they are all kings and queens forever and ever. If I have induced one of you this morning to begin a better life, then I want to know it. I may not in this world clasp hands with you in friendship, I may not hear from your own lips the story of temptation and sorrow, but I will clasp hands with you when the sea is passed and the gates are entered.

IF WE HAD BUT A FORETASTE OF HEAVEN. That I might woo you to a better life, and that I might show you the glories with which God clothes his dear children in heaven, I wish I could this morning swing back one of the twelve gates that there might dash upon your ear one shout of the triumph, that there might flame apon your eyes one blaze of the splendor. Oh, when I speak of that good land, you involuntarily think of some one there that you loved-father, mother, brother, sister, or dear little child garnered already. You want to know what they are doing this morning. I will tell you what they are doing. Singing. You want to know what they wear. I will tell you what they wear. Coronets of triumph. You wonder why oft they look to the gate of the temple and watch and wait. I will tell you why they watch and wait and look to the gate of the temple. For your coming, I shout upward the news today, for I am sure some of you will repent and start for beaven. Oh, ye bright ones before the throne, your earthly friends are coming. Angels, posing mid air, cry up the name. Gate keeper of heaven, send forward the tidthe battlements coles-

"Ob " ver sit, " ligion I am going to have: Is the carry of chestion of time." My brother, I can care I that you may lose heaven the way Long Philippe lost his empire. The Parisana mob came around the Tuileries. The national guard shood in Cofense of the palace, and the commander said to Louis Philippe: "Shall I fire now? Shall I order the troops to fire! With one volley we can clear the place." "No," said Louis Philippe, "not yet." A few minutes passed on, and then Louis Philippe, sooing the case was hopeless, said to the general: "Now is the time to fire." "No," said the general, "it

The inspector general of public works in France has recently made an official report to the minister of agriculture, drawing attention to the vast advantages of the judiwealth of a country. He says the gain is not to be measured by millions, but by milliards. In France three cuttings of hay are secured by it annually.

He Drugged the Snake.

Radison Jolly, a well known negro of Greene county, was attailed by a large rattlesnake about three miles from here. He threw his bundle down and made for the nearest tree, which happened to be a persimmon tree loaded with ripe fruit, into which he quickly climbed, knocking off some of the ripo persummons as he made his way up into the tree. When the snake arrived at the foot of the tree instead of climbing up after the negro he began to eat the fruit which had fallen to the ground. After the snake had finished devouring all the persimmons in sight he began to coul himself around the tree preparatory to climbing it. The frightened negro, seeing the snake had eaten the fallen persimmons, gathered a handful and threw them to the ground; then the snake uncoiled from around the tree and began to cat the fruit the darky had thrown down. This was repeated several times, when the darky bethought himself of a small vial of morphine which he was carrying home to his sick wife. He split open several persimmons and emptied the contents of the vial upon them and dropped them to the snake, who immediately ate them. The drug acted like a charm upon the snake, and he was soon lying helpand ran to a house near by and secured help, and returned and dispatched the snake, lying helpless from the effects of the morphine.

HAINES & LOCKETT'S helpless from the effects of the morphine. The snake was eighteen feet long, six inches in diameter, and had forty-four rattles and a button on the end of his tail, and had been the terror of Tubb's creek swamp for the past twenty-five or thirty years. - Gainesville (Ala.) A Lemarkable Umbrella.

Among the many curio collectors in New York city there is one old gentleman who declares his umbrella to be his greatest treasure. It is his inseparable companion, and accompanies him wherever he goes. The handle is made from a piece of the Charter Oak, in which is set a small triangular piece of stone clipped from Plymouth Rock; the stick is made from a branch of the old elm tree at Cambridge under which Washington assumed command of the colonial armies; the brass cap on the lower end of the stick is made from the trimmings of a sword scabbard once used by Gen. Grant; the green covering originally served as the lining of a coat worn on state occasions by the suave and courtly Aaron Burr; the ribs, springs and other metal trappings were manufactured from a small steel cannon captured by the Americans from the Hessians at the battle of Brandywine. Eight oblong pieces of brass have been inserted in as many sides of the octagonal handle. They were made from buttons cut from the military coats of eight generals famous in the Revolutionary war. The owner of this unique umbrella values it at $300, does not believe in keeping his treasure under lock and key, but makes free use of his interesting possession.-Loston Transcript.
