Peace and Prosperity Together Rule the World.

Hayti, quarrels in eastern Europe and small wars in Asia, raids by American Indians and disputes in more highly organized societies; cabinet crises in France and Spain, a change of rulers in Germany and a continuation the long and wearying contest in Ireland. But all have got through, the year with less trouble than any expected at its beginning.

forces there have been comparatively few; the greatest were the floods and earthquakes in China, which caused the death of at least hundreds of thousands of persons and poverty and suffering. In Japan occurred a most astonishing phenomenon. A lake on a mountain broke through into a volcano, the whole upper half of the mountain was blown into the air by the steam thus created, and in its fall buried a number of small villages and several hundred persons. In the United States there were terrible snow storms early in the year, causing great loss of life; and in the gulf states the yellow fever caused some less of life late in the season. But taking the year as a whole there has been unusual exemption; there has been no blight upon the grain, no murrain upon the cattle; no general pestilence has anywhere fallen upon mankind. and the civilized nations have had no wars.

In the line of inventions and public improvements the year has been a good one. In every part of the civilized world railroads and telegraphs have extended, all the indusmanities have developed unchecked. In short, the year 1888 must rank in history as one of those in which mankind are fairly happy because they are not making exciting

Following will be found a carefully compiled and classified record of the more importuat events of 1888. Of cour o it has been found impossible in the space available to include everything worthy of note, but it is believed that the true relative values of the year's doings and happenings has been observed with tolerable accuracy.
