THAT NEW WORLD.

How gracious we are to grant to the dead Those wide, vague lands in the foreign sky. Reserving this world for ourselves instead— For we must live though others must die

And what is this world that we keep, I pray?
True, it has glimpses of dews and flowers;
Then Youth and Love are here and away.
Like mated birds—but nothing is ours.

Ah! nothing, indeed, but we eling to it all, It is nothing to hear one's own heart beat,

With something, anything, sure for me !

Ah, blow me the scent of one lily, to tell That it grew outside of this world at most Ah, show me a plume to touch ar a shell That whispers of some unearthly coast!

A New Feature of the Case.

Question, in which he reviews the situation. He says "From what I see I draw the following conclusions: The alliance of the three Emperors has one secret object, and that is not the division of the Ottoman Empire, but of the British Empire-an operation demanding less sacritices of men, money or diplomacy than would have to be borne for the division of Turkey. The trap of the Conference has been sprung upon us and now we are more menaced than is Turkey.'. He goes on to say that "England has nothing to offer to Russia, but Russia has everything to offer to Austria, Germany, Turkey and America. The division of the British THE MEM DOOK STOLLS Empire offers a rich and easy prize. whilst that of the Ottoman Empire only offers thorns and misfortunes, and, what is more, this division of England is easy, if Russia is adroit." Mr. St. Clair thus explains the process: "If the Ottoman army is defeated, Russia has only to be moderate in her demands; she has only to make a protence of being disinterested, to lead us into error, and leave us in full defeat It will be sufficient for it to breathe upon the Mussulman spirit to bring about revolt in the Indies.
