FRIDAY EVENING, SEPT. 7, 1877.

GOLD in New York at 100/10 1/2

A. A. LEVEY, Wellington Street, is now offering CLOTHING AT COST...

CITY AND VICINITY

There is to be a meeting of the Council on Monday evening.

RECEPTION.—We understand that a public reception will be tendered Rev. Andrew Wilson and Mrs. Wilson on their return to the city next week.

SHAKE!—The Watertown Times' Cape Vincent correspondent says that Mr. "Sid" Sobell, of the firm of Sobell & Kingshore, is the recipient of congratulations on all sides. It occurred on Sunday, and is a boy.

IN A MURDER.—So far as the contents of the city by-laws are concerned he is an able barrister indeed who makes anything out of them. Talk of dispensing any appeals! To carry one of those old books into Court would mean the instant collapse of the case.

POLICE.—Winnifred Keller was accused of splitting the nose of another woman, but no prosecutor appearing she was dismissed.—Joseph Furnell, drunk, was fined $2 or 30 days.—Philip Stenson, drunk, $5 or 60 days.—George Humber, drunk, dismissed.

NOT FOUND.—The man who so roughly assailed Thomas Clancy on Sunday night has not yet been found, though vigorous efforts have been made to trace out the one who committed the offence, and whose description is such that the police feel that they know who he is.

LEAKING.—A Port Colborne despatch of last night says the schooner Samana, from Detroit for Kingston with wheat, arrived there in a leaking condition. She had to unload her cargo at an elevator there and proceed to Buffalo to dock. She damaged 893 bushels of her cargo.

CENTRAL WAREHOUSE.—This is the name applied to a new opening in Martin's Block, adjoining Polson's drug store. The place is a great attraction, and will continue to be so as long as it remains open, and the business is fairly and squarely conducted.

COMPARISON.—The Canada Casket, in writing of "Parry Sound," says: "I know only one place that will compare with it, and that is Garden Island, opposite Kingston, where the practical prohibition of intoxicating liquor is so thoroughly enforced. Certain I am that no township or village where liquor is sold can present such an exhibit."

MESSRS. A. & S. Nordheimer, Toronto, exhibit a fine selection of Steinway, Chickering, Dunham and Haines Pianos, for a short time, at the store in the Golden Lion Block, next to Mr. McRae's. They invite inspection. In case the store should be closed, the key may be found at Mr. J. E. Hutcheon's, on Brock Street.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL.—The great improvement shown in Catorquai School by the additions made has encouraged the parents of the pupils to ask for similar work in other schools. Queen street building never was a splendid school, but it can be made very serviceable by two wings, which the energetic Chairman, Mr. R. M. Horsey, has taken into consideration and highly approves of.

RINE MEETING.—A meeting of those interested in the Rine Temperance movement will be held this evening in the Y.M.C.A. Hall. It is intended to arrange for the return of Mr. Rine, and the resumption by him of a campaign which will fully demonstrate the Temperance strength of this city, to be joined in and followed up by Rev. Mr. Haswell and Mr. Hurd, whose success has been something almost unprecedented.

PROBABILITIES for the next twenty-four hours for the lower lake region: Fresh to brack northwesterly to northerly winds, cloudy to continued cool weather with rain. For the St. Lawrence: Fresh to brack northwesterly to northerly winds, increasing cloudiness and rain by night in the upper portion. For the Maritime Provinces: Increasing northeasterly winds, increasing cloudiness and possibly rain.

SALE OF WHEAT.—Yesterday the cargo of the schooner Rivadavia, damaged by the vessel's running ashore, was sold by auction. One lot of about 7,000 bushels, was knocked down at 10¢ per bushel; the second and a better lot, only 8¢, went up to 21¢ per bushel. The purchaser was inclined to "kick" subsequently, but a settlement occurred between him and the auctioneer. The fact seemed to be that this Buffalo man was one of a small ring of speculators who expected to buy the grain at their own figures, and they would have done so but for the intervention of Kingstonians, who made the bidding very lively. There was another lot of 4,000 bushels which, dry and in perfectly good condition, was held for the benefit of the consignees.

STREET EXCURSION.—The merry party that yesterday occupied the new excursion car and others behind it, was made up of the Williamsville Methodist Sunday School and their friends, who, after making a tour of the city, halted at the grove of Mortonwood for an afternoon's picnic enjoyment. There, we learn, the sports incident to such occasions were heartily engaged in, teachers and pupils visiting with each other in contributing and enjoying their share of the general pleasure. Mr. Morrison, President of the Street Railway Company, accompanied the party on the track and in the grove, and succeeded in rendering himself very agreeable and useful. Tea time was honoured by a generous spread, to which, it is scarcely necessary to say, all present did ample justice. The whole affair passed off very pleasantly, and reflected great credit on the management of it by Mr. S. Kilpatrick, the lively, elegant and efficient Superintendent of the School.

WIND WAFTS.

"Good bye, Rebecca," is the latest slang expression.

Who will be the first to put up a stove!

The sound of bursting hives is heard in the land.

New name for the goat—Foot and mouth disease.

You can buy more ice for the same money soon.

The time for "huking" is near at hand.

The last rose of summer has been captured.

The next big excursion is by Grand Trunk from Niagara to Niagara Falls.

The Westport hunters succeeded in killing two fine deer in the West Rideau on Saturday last.

The School Board did not succeed in having a meeting last evening.

The pestiferous house fly begins to weaken, and the lightning bug pales his ineffectual fire.

In the case of Mace v. Frontenac Mr. Mulock obtained a summons to examine.

The True Witness is a very modest paper. It declares that the Tribune isn't a Catholic paper at all, that it, the True Witness, is "the recognized organ of the Catholics of this Dominion."

A HOUSE WARMING.

Opening of the New Addition to Catorquai School.

Last evening the teachers of Catorquai School gave a pleasant social to the pupils number 200 and over, in the new room at the school. We notice Mr. F. Bajus, Chairman of the School, Dr. J. K. Oliver, R. M. Horsey, T. W. McCrea, of the Trustees present; also several of the teachers from the other schools. After short address from the Chairman of the school, Dr. J. K. Oliver, R. M. Horsey, and others, some very pretty pieces were sung, when tea was served out to the children, who enjoyed themselves very much, as was plainly indicated by their happy countenances. The children were then dismissed, when a very handsome spread was laid out on tables occupying the centre of the room, and under the taste direction of the ladies, under the able display of Miss Beattie, principal of the school, we think that "John of the Mass" must have been giving instructions. At any rate, when the ladies and gentlemen present had been seated, with the pretty form of the Chairman of the School at the head of the table, ably supported by Dr. J. K. Oliver, ex-chairman, on his right, and one of Kingston's fair daughters on his left, with R. M. Horsey at the foot, it was very evident that all had so prepared to enjoy themselves. After due justice had been done to the delicacies, and several of the ladies had their fortunes told by a lady present, on motion of Mr. Horsey the thanks of the company were tendered to the teachers for the very handsome manner in which they had been entertained. The party dispersed with "God save the Queen."

Liverpool, London & Globe Insurance Company.

The disastrous fire at St. John, New Brunswick, has furnished another illustration of the strength of this Company, of the prompt manner in which it meets its engagements. The fire occurred on the 20th of June, and all the claims—128 in number, amounting to $465,151—were adjusted and paid in full before the 30th of July. This large sum was paid, in addition to all the ordinary losses and expenses, out of the surplus premiums of the first half-year of the present year. The Company's Assets, as reported on the 1st of January last, so far from being reduced, have been increased, thus affording striking evidence of the important advantage enjoyed by a Company whose operations are not restricted to one country, but extend all over the world, doing more than meet and compensated by success and gain in others. The assurance of being paid promptly in the event of a loss—no matter how extensive or disastrous the fire—is of the utmost importance, and the above exhibit will please insurers. Mr. Thos. Briggs is the Kingston agent.

Yachting Notes.

The yachtsmen held another meeting last evening and decided to have a regatta on Thursday, the 13th Sept., a date when it is expected several Toronto and Hamilton yachts will be here, en route to the races on the Bay of Quinte. The advertisement in another column indicates the amount of prizes, the judges, &c.

Mr. Cunningham has just finished a finely modelled yacht, (the "Mystery") which he will launch to-morrow, and have ready for the races on Thursday. The purchaser was inclined to "kick" subsequently, but a settlement occurred between him and the auctioneer. The fact seemed to be that this Buffalo man was one of a small ring of speculators who expected to buy the grain at their own figures, and they would have done so but for the intervention of Kingstonians, who made the bidding very lively. There was another lot of 4,000 bushels which, dry and in perfectly good condition, was held for the benefit of the consignees.

A REPLY.—An argus-eyed contemporary is not able to see that the omission of the word "the" by the compositor was what marred the intended sense of a sentence in a recent issue of the WHIG.

The quotation triumphantly given as a specimen of faulty structure was written "The elevation of Mr. Devlin to the Senate, like the retirement of Archbishop Lynch, seems after all to be shrouded in some uncertainty." The balance of the paragraph suggested the insertion of the omitted word, and rendered any other construction or any other meaning impossible. This was so evidently the intention that only those who were "shrouded" in something worse than "uncertainty" could fail to see it. But ours was a typographical error, which cannot be said of the following specimen of elegant grammar: "It is gratifying to learn that a great increase has taken place in the number of letters sent by those boxes since they have been established." There can be no apology for the above; and snappy replies will not make the public believe the writer of them any smarter or more gifted in literature.

OUR FIRE SYSTEM.

Yesterday afternoon the Committee on Fire, Water and Gas held a meeting in the City Buildings, and at it a thorough investigation was made into complaints which had been made about the working of the fire brigade in the columns of the Daily News.

The Chief Engineer, the working engineer, Mr. Youden, the contractor for horses, Mr. Lemmon, and one of his drivers were present, and a general discussion as to the means of increasing the efficiency of the brigade took place. The Mayor drew attention to this statement in the News: "The fire yesterday at Mr. John Landry's house gives colour to the statement that the men in charge of the department are not fitted for their duty." This the Mayor characterized as a very serious charge, and one which should be enquired into, inasmuch as it placed some of the officials of the city in a very unfavourable light. Our contemporary went on to say: "A couple of weeks ago we advised that when the alarm sounded from any of the outlying wards two horse carts should be despatched to the fire. This was urged yesterday by some parties, but we are informed that one of the men in charge refused to do this because he had no orders from the Chairman of the Committee on Fire, Water and Gas." The Chief Engineer admitted that in a conversation with the reporter of the News he had made remarks something to this effect—that he had requested that both horse carts should be drawn to fires, but that his orders had been refused. The working engineer said he was acting on the orders of the Mayor, as Chairman of the Committee on Fire, Water and Gas, and the Mayor explained the position he had taken, not knowing that he and the Chief Engineer had come into conflict in the administration of affairs—i.e. that he had concluded that the two carts were more than one horse ought to or was supposed to draw. He had had the carts weighed and found that the large cart, with 300 feet of hose, and drivers, figured 3,000 lbs., and the small one 1,000 lbs., both being 4,000. The Committee and the Chief Engineer agreed that this was an overhead for one horse. Upon this matter there was considerable debate. It was proposed to attach the second horse cart to the Hook and Ladder apparatus, but this was considered inexpedient, as it oftentimes occurred that the H. & L. truck was very late in reaching a fire, and occasionally did not turn out at all. Then it was suggested that a team should be put to the large horse cart, in which event both reels could be conveyed to fires simultaneously. Finally it was conceded that to have an uptown station, where the small reel could be kept in emergencies, was the best plan, as it dispensed with many expensive alterations which would otherwise have to be made, and answered the same purpose, it being an easy matter to change the cart run to any of the outlying wards when on the level, and above the hill which must be traversed from the fire station to point in the west of the city. Mr. Devlin complained that the horse carts were not driven quite so rapidly as they might be, but Mr. Lemmon replied that his horses were urged to a reasonable extent. Against the manner in which the engine was driven Mr. Devlin had nothing to say. Mr. Youden alleged that the driving was as fast as need be—in fact at times he had requested that the horses should be held in more; and Mr. Lemmon stated that if he did not check the speed of his horses the machinery would be broken. The Chairman, especially, had to be carefully handled, as the spokes of the wheels were liable to loosen when driven over rough roads. Mr. Devlin drew attention to another fact—that the horses acted awkwardly, and did not move about with the facility with which engine horses should. He believed this could be remedied by experience, and the Mayor suggested that the engine should be taken out in the evenings for practice. Mr. Lemmon demurred, holding that the horses are employed all day, and worked hard, it would be unjust to expect them to submit to this exercise, but the Mayor replied that if the Chief Engineer thought it necessary it would have to be done. The idea of having horses constantly on hand, harnessed, was discussed. Of course it was not to blame if he is not always at the engine house, he being engaged under contract to do other city work. At the same time he (Mr. L.) stated that if the Council allowed him the cost of one horse, he would keep another himself, and thus have a team standing in the stable prepared for service at a moment's warning. This team he could also have trained for special duty. The Mayor requested him to make an estimate of what he will supply this extra horse for. Finally several matters of organization were looked into, matters of detail which only apply to persons, and have no relation to the public. The Committee will make a full report of the whole case to the Council, and make certain recommendations which will be of vital importance to every citizen. In the meantime the Committee directed Mr. Devlin when he had any complaint to make of any branch of the Department, to communicate it to them, and if any communication thus made was not acted upon the case would not rest upon him. Ald. McCannan put in a strong plea against awarding a fire. He insisted that orders should be given without blameworthy, and that men should work harmoniously and agreeably, one with another.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Reception of and Welcome to the Rev. S. N. Jackson.

Last evening the members and adherents of the First Congregational Church, in this city, were assembled in the basement of the Church, Wellington Street, for the purpose of giving a reception and according a welcome to the Rev. S. N. Jackson. The school room never presented so gay an appearance as on this occasion. The walls were covered with flags of all nations, the pillars entwined with evergreens and flowers. At the platform end of the room the "Welcome" was seen, and upon the table was a beautiful display of flowers. On the whole length of one side of the room a table, richly laden with choice fruit and confectionery, was arranged, the display of which was highly pleasing to the eye and tempting to the palate. It was handsomely laid out, exhibiting a marked display of true taste. On the whole the decorations were most effective. The attendance of members and congregation was large, very few being absent. The proceedings of the meeting were opened by the Rev. R. McKay, Chairman, who, after conducting devotional exercises, expressed his pleasure at being present on so joyous an occasion, and his thankfulness that the church and congregation had been kept together during the period they had been without a pastor. It was gratifying, too, to know that in giving a call to their new pastor, they were unanimous, which was testified by the presence of nearly every member of the church and congregation. He thought they had been most fortunate in having the Rev. S. N. Jackson in their midst that evening. He had relinquished an important charge in Toronto to assume an equally important charge in Kingston, and he doubted not that his labours in this city would be in a marked manner blessed. He concluded by expressing the hope that the harmony and good feeling existing between the church and congregation would long continue, and result in a large increase in the membership of the church.

The Rev. D. McCallum, of Athol, was the first speaker called upon. He apologized for appearing before them that evening, for he thought that he had already done his share in connection with the installation, but as he never failed to obey the call of duty he would take the opportunity given to congratulate the church and congregation upon the happy occasion of their meeting that night. He referred to the earlier history of Congregationalism in Canada, and contrasted what he recalled of the rising of the Church in Kingston, with what he now saw during his short visit. He spoke of his later pastor, to whom they owed not a little of the success of the Congregational Church in Kingston. The city, too, had made most striking advances, and many improvements indicative of sound prosperity. It afforded him great pleasure to extend the hand of welcome to the Rev. S. N. Jackson. He was not only a pastor, but he would be looked up to as a sort of head or archbishop for this section, and he could assure him that himself and brother ministers would have great respect for him and be benefited by his presence and counsel among them.

Professor Fenwick, of the Congregational College, Montreal, next addressed the meeting. He said words failed him to express his thankfulness and gratitude to God, who, he was convinced, had led them as a church in this step in their history, and to participate in the joy and blessing which will follow them in the future, and they all knew the deep anxiety which he felt for their welfare, and particularly with regard to the selection of a new pastor. No one present was more pleased than he was, for he knew their new pastor well, and that he would be all that he and they could wish. References had been made to the past history of the church, but it was a theme he would not occupy their time with that evening, as he would have an opportunity of going more fully into that subject again. The church had appointed him church historian, and the part which Congregationalism in Canada would be written and given to the public in course of time. After referring to the liberality of the Kingston church towards missions and the college, he desired them not to relinquish their efforts on behalf of the college, to the work of which he was deeply attached. He looked forward to the future full of hope in the work of raising young men for the ministry. He said a great night had been taken off his mind in the selection of the Rev. S. N. Jackson. He was aware of the affection which many of them bore towards him; and he wished them to love him less, but to transfer as much of their love to their new pastor, and work with him heartily and sincerely in helping him to further Christ's cause, as he was convinced he was a pastor of the Master's appointing.

The Chairman said he would now call upon their new pastor to say a few words, and in the meantime he would read a list of names, and allow him to assume all duties and responsibilities of the pastorate of the church to which he most cordially congratulated him. The Rev. S. N. Jackson then stepped forward, and after a hearty shaking of hands with the chairman, proceeded to say that it was a mystery to him how he, an entire stranger, should have had so cordial a welcome given him. He had felt that he was a great pleasure to him to meet them on this occasion for the purpose of gaining their friendship. In assuming the duties of his pastorate he felt the great responsibility there was in succeeding a man whom he had so long and so affectionately loved, and with that he was sure he would do his best to discharge his duties. He had been so long with them, that they would be accustomed to his way of conducting meetings. He could not do what Mr. Fenwick had done. Like many of the earlier ministers of the church in Canada, he was a giant in the amount of labour which he accomplished. He hoped he would be permitted to carry out his work amongst them in his own way, but he wanted their hearty co-operation, and with that he was sure he would go on smoothly. They must begin afresh entirely, and grapple with the present and future with all their strength. For himself he would know nothing of the past, but would give his whole attention to guiding them in the future. He knew he should fail in some things perhaps, but he wanted to impress them that it was at such times that he would want their help. There was no parting with him, he was degraded from a position to which he had recently been appointed, for a period of 14 years.

THE WELL-TO-DO.—Dr. Ferguson, of Toronto, contractor for Section No. 29 of the Welland Canal enlargement, had been awarded the contract for No. 28. Messrs. Jones (Kempville) & Clark (Buffalo) are the lowest tenders for Nos. 33 and 34, and it is believed Messrs. Hunter, Murray & Co. are also lowest for Nos. 37 and 38.

COURT MARTIAL.—A report is current that during the recent stay of the British frigates in Quebec harbor, a court-martial was held upon an officer of the Bellefleur, very high in command, who, for giving a party, was particular was degraded from a position to which he had recently been appointed, for a period of 14 years.

would notice it even in his reading—and it would perhaps save many mistakes and prevent false impressions. After making their acquaintance he would, from the case alluded to, be able not to recognize them on the street. So he had said that he had so often passed his own wife without knowing it, so that she had got quite used to his cutting her acquaintance. (Laughter.) They would have to excuse a long speech from him for he had not prepared one, but he could not sit down without again thanking them for the warm welcome which they had tendered to him and his lady, and trusted that with God's blessing they would continue faithful unto death.

The Mayor (J. McKelvey, Esq.) was then called upon to speak. He observed that he did not know why he should have been singled out to speak on this occasion, unless it was that they knew he could talk on municipal and political matters perhaps better than on affairs ecclesiastical. However, he could not help feeling that the opportunity of giving expression to his sentiments, and of being thought of as a member of the congregation present, and that he was there merely on that occasion as their pastor. They had had such a good one before that he was at one time afraid they would have some difficulty in choosing an successor, but he was happy to say the difficulty had been got over in a satisfactory way, and he trusted that both the pastor, church and congregation would have no reason to regret their decisions. It also gave him pleasure to bear testimony to the zeal and devotion displayed by the ladies of the church in their efforts to make the church in Canada possessed such a devoted band of Christian workers, and he thought their praise would not be long in noticing that fact. Speaking of his own family, he must say that he never saw them so happy as when they were doing something for the church. He closed with wishing health and long life to Mr. and Mrs. Jackson.

Mr. Thomas Hendry also spoke a few words of welcome. At this stage of the proceedings ice cream and desserts was handed round by an active corps of young gentlemen, a report which was very much enjoyed. The ladies were most anxious to contribute the choice fruit which they had so liberally and freely provided. Some time was spent in social converse and in mutual introductions between pastor and people. Mr. Robert Henry made a fitting and stirring speech, and on behalf of the ladies announced that a bazaar would shortly take place, and he hoped every one present would be either a contributor or a purchaser.

The Rev. F. McQuig, of Chalmers' Church, was here introduced, and briefly addressed the meeting, expressing the pleasure he had in congratulating the church and their new pastor on that occasion. We must not omit to mention that the choir, under the able leadership of Mr. Thos. Hendry, sang at intervals, and contributed largely to the entertainment of the evening. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. S. N. Jackson, and thus closed one of the most interesting gatherings of the denomination.

Anniversaries.—Wednesday was the anniversary of the birthing out of the Prince of Wales, in other words, the non-landing in Kingston of His Royal Highness, and was duly celebrated by the Orangemen of the city, although the fates were unpropitious, the day being both stormy and rainy. If the Orange display was offensive to Irish Roman Catholic eyes, Irish Roman Catholics should remember that this and all other manifestations of party feeling on the part of their Protestant brethren, are one result of their own injudicious conduct, in making St. Patrick's Day a religious holiday, and celebrating it with exclusive Roman Catholic rites, gatherings, processions and meetings. If, like Englishmen and Scotchmen, would make their patron saint's day a national holiday, all classes and creeds of Irishmen would join in its celebration. The Shamrock would then be sported by every son of Old Ireland, as the Rose and the Thistle are worn by every Englishman and Scotchman. Protestant Irishmen love their country, and would honor it quite as much as their fellow subjects of the sister isle, but they are in many cities in Canada precluded from doing so, because Irish Roman Catholics pertinaciously persist in excluding them from any participation in their festivities of St. Patrick's Day, through making the latter exclusively religious.

Rifle Shooting.—The 47th Team, after winning the highest honors in the Ontario Rifle Matches, had not much difficulty in taking a prominent place in the matches of the Lennox and Addington Association, which came off at Bath on Wednesday. The following are some of the scores:—

- Prs. Sergt. G. Baillie, 47th, 64; Paymaster Strachan, 47th, 56; Sergt. Thos. Miller, 47th, 55; Sergt. F. Baillie, 47th, 55; Sergt-Major Strachan, 47th, 52; Capt. Crowther, Belleville, 51; P. Amey, 50; M. Strange, 50; D. Kinross, 48; W. N. Hooper, 48; 200, 400, 600 yards.

THOS. MILLS, Hatter and Furrier, Martin's Block, Princess Street, Sept. 5, 1877.
