sauntered forth and after an absence of exactly thirteen minutes, having enjoyed a delightful and southing stroll, I was leisurely returning, watch in hand, when to my astonishment I beheld the train alowly moving out of the other end of the depot and increasing in speed at every puff of the gigantic locomotive. Here indeed was a call which admitted neither correspondence nor delay; there was no time for taking it into consider-

So without conferring with flesh and blood I put like a sky rocket with double fuse. For a moment I thought I was gaining ground, although I knew I was losing wind. I was encouraged in the race by sundry helpful fellows who kept crying out as I passed; 'Go it gaiters!' Plucky Boy!' 'He ain't left-oh no! and well meaning and benignant exhortations. Though they intended perhaps AT LOW PRICES ALWAYS IN to help me over the course, I found that the more they shouted the less I was inclined to run, and more decidedly did the locomotive make its terrible way against

A Good Story Well Told.

-The following story is told by the 'We stopped at Syracuse, New York, for dinner. You remember the railroad depot, centrally situated, with its eastern and western entrances, which are exactly alike -as much as the two ends of a car. After we had dined the depot master informed me that we had seventeen minutes to spare before the departure of the eastern train. This, thought I, will give me an opportunity to see the city, and a glorious chance for a smoke, provided a clergyman could be tempted into such a tasteful and worldly anusement.

To give up the chase, to submit to the chagrin of being left, to lose my party could find him, the depot master whose blundering statements were the cause of all my trouble. Without search, that individual advanced to meet me with the bland recognition of a fact that nobody could well deny: 'Well, you got left, did you?' I replied with the resentment of a 'silencing eye.' If I looked as I tried to look, my photograph at that instant would hardly be chosen to grace an album

HENDERSON'S in my case, in what wise the thing had happened; and others wishing to point a moral, advised me to be on hand a listle earlier next time. words came together, and I squarely barged the railway official with al. blame. I spoke of his incompetency in no measurable terms, recalling how, after I had placed my party in the car, he hid assured me that there were full seventeen minutes to spare before the train went out, 'while here,' said I, with a triumphant exhibition of my watch' 'the seventeen minutes are even now barely up and yet the train has gone clear out of sight. After no little hot shot back and forth, with the usual variations and final per-

> 'you're another,' etc, I asked him if would be risking another chance of being left, if I depend on him to give me the exact hour of the next Eastern train. 'Eastern?' exclaimed he. 'Yes, Eastern,' I replied, with a decidedly upward and sarcastic inflection. Why,' quoth he, 'the train you have been chasing with such good luck wasn't

With much interesting confusion and excitement, I stammered out. 'Then where in Jobba is the Eastern train? 'Why, there it is,' replied he, 'just getting under way at the other end of the depot; leg it or you'll lose that.
