

A Japanese heroine.

A Yokohama letter to the New York Herald says: A curious and touching story is told of a brave, high-spirited girl, daughter of one of the most distinguished of Saigo's generals, who was found after the last battle was over lying dead in the moat of the castle with the ghastly head of her brother in her right hand, and in her left the deadly sword with which she had taken her own life. She was dressed in garments of the richhest and most expensive quality, and had evidently undertaken the dreadful, last, and highest duty enjoined upon her by her hopeless parent with the most lofty sense of its overwhelming importance, and an unshaking faith in it, its absolute necessity, if her father's honor and name were to remain unsullied in the recollections of men. The steady hand and firm purpose that sacrificed her father failed not when she drove the knife into her own heart or stood bravely up to receive its deadly thrust in a soldier's hands. Such an exhibition of self-sacrifice, a glorious, splendid spirit of self-sacrifice, and a stern sense of duty, lighted up the terrible shadows of that fierce contest about the monastery moat, with a glory which time can never dim. The unknown Japanese lady has won a place among the real heroes of the world. It was of such stuff that the leaders of the fatal insurrection were made. It is a pity that so many gallant and heroic men fell in such a hopeless contest, for they were of the very best blood in Japan, and struggled from almost the first against disheartening odds.

A Case of Consumption.

Chesterfield, N. H., March 25, 1867.
Moses Seth W. Fowle & Son:
Gentlemen—I feel in duty called upon voluntarily to give my testimony in favor of Dr. WISTAK'S BALM OF WILD CHERRY. I was taken sick last October with a long complaint, accompanied with a very serious cough; and after having been treated a number of weeks by the best physicians, they gave me up as an incurable case of consumption, and for about six weeks my friends expected that I might die any day, having entirely despaired of my recovery. At this time I heard of the advertisement and certificate of Dr. WISTAK'S BALM OF WILD CHERRY, as I have taken no other medicine since I commenced taking that.

Very respectfully yours,

Mrs. Mira S. Smith.

Mrs. Fowle & Son:
Gentlemen—Mrs. G. L. Smith gives me the foregoing certificate of the efficacy of your preparation in her case. She is an acquaintance of mine, and took the Balm on the strength of certificate, which she saw in the papers. Her history is literally true.

Yours truly, W. H. JONES

A Question.—Why will people keep four or five tailors sitting at home to do the work that one good horse may perform? If the horse has the harness, is broken winded, has a cough or colic, or is lame, and anyway disabled, if his master is bad, his master's tailors are ranged, has a rough skin or is his hide bound, we would in all cases recommend the use of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS & OINTMENT.

Parties who may be disabled by vein disease, sprains, rheumatism, &c., &c., & others who are unable to walk, shall be communicating the particulars to me, he amply remunerated, and their names never divulged. Signed THOMAS HOLLOWAY

A MILITARY ORDER INTERRUPTED BY A WOMAN IN LOVE.

A young sub-lieutenant left his regiment a short time ago on sick leave, and put up at the best hotel, not half a hundred miles from Poosah, where he was immediately smitten by the attractions of a lovely young lady who was stopping there. He proposed, was accepted, and the happy day was fixed. The colonel, however, disapproved of subalterns getting married, and particularly of the marriage of the sub in question. As he happened to be a friend of the young man's father he thought to prevent the union of the fond couple by sending a preparatory telegram to Poosah, telling him that he must "go once." The son of Mars was in despair. He presented himself before his intended with the fatal missile in his hand, and anything but a pleasing look on his countenance, but the young lady was equal to the occasion. With a blush of maidenly simplicity and virgin innocence, she cast her eyes on the ground and remarked, "Dear me! I'm glad your colonel approves of the match, but what a hurry he is! I don't think I can get ready so soon, but I'd do my best, because, of course, love, the commands of our colonel must be obeyed." The young warrior was puzzled. "Don't you see, my darling, said he, "that your colonel's orders are to go once?" "I have only one little letter," he said, "and nothing else well and give such general satisfaction." J. Thompson Woodford writes, "Send me some Electric Oil. I want to make a salve. Nothing takes it like Miller's Red Liver Oil. I am nearly out, nothing equals it." Col. J. H. Metcalfe, 18th Regt., writes, "I am highly recommended by those who have used it. Bedford, Thamey, writes, "Send me a full bottle of your oil. I have only one little letter. I have nothing else well and give such general satisfaction." J. Thompson Woodford, writes, "Send me some Electric Oil. I want to make a salve. Nothing takes it like Miller's Red Liver Oil. P.Q. writes, "The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here and is daily called for. Send me a further quantity." Dr. Thomas K. Thomas is on the wrapper, and the names of Norton & Lyman are on the bottle. DR. NORTON & LYMAN, Toronto, Ont., proprietors for the Dominion. Note—Electric—Saluted and Unsalted. B
