President Lincoln has been assassinated We can hardly trust ourselves to write upo this cruel deed and wanton murder. Op posed as we ever have been to the Federale in the United States, of which President in the horrible crime. Wilkes Booth being Lincoln was the head, we never entertained in any ill-feeling against him, but looked up him as a guileless man, placed by untoward circumstances in a position beyond mental powers to execute properly. Sti he did his best, and with the able aid Mr. Seward, he managed to get through h arduous duties, and come out at the end o the War with flying colors. For the bru talities of Beast Butler, the Peculations General Banks, the Robberies and Rascaliti of the Government Officials and Contrac tors, and the infamous acts of the Armia under his nominal command, he was no accountable. He did the very best he coult in a peculiar position, and never once aggravated, but always tried to lessen the miseries his party had brought upon the country. President Lincoln was an honest man, and his loss will be deeply felt by every we disposed man.

That which cannot fail to aggravate to loss of the departed President is the melsucceed to the vacancy. If ever a nation like an individual was punished by the Almignty for its manifold wickedness, the United States is that nation. Firstly, in secondly, in the loss of President Lincoln and thirdly, in the elevation to place and power of such a man as Andrew Johnson. This last punishment may be the severest

This untimely death may be the cause of untoward proceedings between Great Britain and the United States. Both Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Seward were friends to Peace and Great Britain; and it is most sincerely to be regretted, that this unfortunate mur-weell, the Messenger of the State der should happen at such a time. Europe will look upon the death of President Lincoln as a great calamity, the extent of which cannot now be predicted, but may be imagined. It can however have no effect upon the War, for that may be considered
