OIL REAR DETROIT .- On Monday afternoon the drill at the Greenfield Oil Company's well, near Detroit, struck another wein of gas. The gas rushed forth with such violence as to blow all the apparatus. except the tubing, out of the well. Stones and fragments of dirt were thrown into the air to the height of from sixty to one hundred feet, falling in a perfect shower for thirty feet around. The workmen had to run for their lives, and work was temporarily suspended. The tubing is now down about eighty feet, and the drill is supposed have reached the rock or a bed of hard sand The gas brings up a black, oily substance, which has the peculiar odor of petroleum.
