SOME OF THE NEW VANITIES THAT ENHANCE THE TOILET.

Numerous Dainty and Elegant Accessories Flourish For a Season—New and Attractive Millinery—Something New In Nightgowns—Fall Costumes.

(Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.)

There was a lovely old lady with snowy hair In one of our swellest stores yesterday. She was evidently from out of town, and she had with her an exceedingly pretty young girl of 18 or 20. From shy blushes and the things they were purchasing I saw that there was a wedding on foot. No woman can resist a wedding, and I felt interested at once and managed to keep as near this fascinating couple as I could. By and by the old lady said to the saleswoman, "Now please direct me to the vanity department." It took quite awhile for the girl to understand that the old lady wanted to find the place where all the dainty little accessories to the attire were displayed.

After she had gone I came home thinking that she had given the department the name best fitted to describe its scope. What but vanities, after all, are the ribbons and laces, the delicate and fragile things on exhibition there that are soiled in an hour, withered and shriveled in an evening? Vanities they are, and none of them absolutely necessary for a woman's comfort, with no reason for existence but their own dainty beauty. It has always been a question whether a woman has a right to adorn herself with useless frivolities and fineries, but somehow the women have gone on buying and wearing them and looking extremely pretty in them while the question is being decided for them. Like the flowers, the "vanities" of a woman's wardrobe are their own excuse. Even the old lady recognized that, though vain and only ornamental, they must be bought.

VANITIES IN VOGUE.

And these vanities? They consist of every delicate fancy and dainty caprice that can be wrought out of lace, ribbons, flowers, jewels, silks and velvets, and clouds of filmy chiffons and billowy tulles and sheer linens and muslin. Each of these materials alone is a beauty in itself, but when they are deftly and artistically combined they reach the stage of perfection like the flower on the plant.

The vanity of vanities just now is the pineapple muslin sets of vest and deep cuffs, or the chemisette with its folded stock garnished with fine narrow lace in bands. There are also quaint fichus made of stiff linen lawn cut bias and laid in exact folds with lace edging laid flat between the folds. These dainty fichus are crossed modestly over the breast and fastened under a ribbon belt, or they are long and reach under the arms and fasten in the back with long tabs. One of the vainest of these vanities is made like a blouse front, reaching over the shoulders in form of a square yoke in the back. The folds are edged with narrow valenciennes, and the central one was arranged to droop over the ribbon belt. The stock was hemstitched on each edge, and tacked over the ribbon band, and on the edges were the dainty lace and where it closed was a full chiffon rosette to match the ribbon in color. There were deep cuffs reaching nearly to the elbows of the lace and muslin. This special vanity was not quite as vain as some of the others, for this could be laundered and thus kept clean and dainty all the summer, and by that time some other vain imagining will have taken its place.

There was a soft and mossy crepon gown, rather dull and dark of itself. This had no vain and useless garnishing on the skirt, and the waist was a sensible blouse, with a belt of silk of the same shade. There was a wide slashed collar of the silk and a gathered "wing stock." On this collar vanities in the shape of silver and pale pink silk wheel flowerets were sewed thickly. This collar was removable and could be worn with any other dress, it being particularly pretty over a white dotted swiss.

Bands of ribbon, the delicate chene gauze being particularly fine for the purpose, are arranged to give the appearance of blouse stripes or folds. They are fastened together at the neck and left loose from there to the belt, and they extend below the belt in form of loops. The belt may or may not be of the same, and the collar may be of the ribbon or of some still lighter and more tractable material. One that I have in my mind's eye has the ribbon fastened to the shoulder by a bow of the same color as the foundation of the chene, figured, but plain. The bands do not extend down the back, and there was a stiff bolt made of the material in the gown which was lavender gray sicilienne. This belt had four fancy oxidized silver buttons. Another new but inoffensive vanity is the full quilled neck ruffling made of chiffon, lace and silk muslin. This ruffling is sewed to bands and tacked along the inner edge of the collar or stock and it stands out widely like the paper fringe around the boiled ham. These ruffs are decidedly becoming. There are jeweled butterflies and dragon flies and no limit to the bugs and beetles in rich enameled colors for holding the white and dotted veils and the fluffy lace and chiffon vanities.

NEW BONNETS AND HATS.

The list of accessories to the feminine toilet is so great that a whole newspaper page would not contain it. There are feather collars, feather fans, feathers and still more feathers for hats and bonnets. Furs; fringes, jewels of all kinds, buckles, fancy separate rosettes, stocks, bows, belts, sashes, garters, gloves, flehus without number and for variety as many as the sands of the sea. Collars, cuffs, gloves, fancy combs and pins, buttons, dainty aprons, embroideries, laces and—why go on? I could not finish in a week.

I suppose hats and bonnets would really class as necessities instead of vanities, and so I will mention two or three that have struck me as being particularly pretty or novel this week. There was a black milan cut in points and bordered with rough straw. It turned up somewhat like a prelate's and was topped with great masses of black plumes. Another of yellow straw turned up sharply in front. The brim was wide, and just over the left temple there was a chestnut brown velvet bow. There were eight brown ostrich tips and a black aigret on the crown and a small flat bow with a square gold buckle. It was worn with a brown taffeta gown, which was trimmed with butter colored lace and gilt buttons. There was a sunburned straw which was much admired for its simple style. It was bent down on the left side deeply and held by a large bow of heavy black grosgrain ribbon. A smaller bow was set on the right side and that constituted all the trimming.

For a young matron was a pretty straw bonnet, with a black ribbon bow turned backward. On the top were three roses and their foliage. The velvet strings fastened with a myrtle green velvet bow under the chin. A miss of 14 looked pretty under a quaint hat with a drooping brim which gave it somewhat the shape of a "pork pie hat," as they used to be called. In the front there was a ragged chrysanthemum and on the right side a curled cock's plume. The straw was a mixture of colors. There was a cunning little bonnet for a small girl. It was of white linen lawn with the edges of the clips and the ruffle in front embroidered in pale blue and there were ribbons of the same shade across the crown and in the back. This is washable.

Among the other vanities I find an entirely new departure in nightgowns. Formerly these have had long and loose sleeves. Now they have no sleeves at all, but perhaps this economy in material was made necessary on account of the enormous collars. These fall over the shoulders and reach down the front to the waist line. The materials in these sleeveless nightrobes is fine nainsook. There are others, however, with sleeves made of white, blue and pink wash silk, and these are richly trimmed with lace and are quite pretty enough for morning robes.

Indeed I heard of one clever little lady who transformed one of these into a dainty tea gown by opening the back and adding a watteau plait and sewing on a rich bow of ribbon to match, with very long ends in front. Challies have been made up into negligee gowns for morning wear, and the newest patterns make them fully as desirable as the silken fabrics. There are new taffeta and dresden designs, all exquisitely delicate. The best challie is as fine as india crapes, with greater durability. The more ordinary challies of cotton have the figuring quite as delicate as the others, and they will wash just as well, and one can get lovely cotton challie at 5 cents a yard.

Organdie lawns are shown in new patterns, some of them dating back to the year 1, in curious cashmere designs, and there are some new lawns and dimity cords, with patterns printed upon them in faded colors. The effect is very pretty. One new organdie frock had four printed flounces, each headed by a puff. It is said that there will be many flounces and many draped skirts for early fall. I notice that many of the made up imported gowns have the whole skirt laid in flat or box plaits, and in these plaits at the top are gathers, so as to distribute the fullness more equally. Some have one or two panels of a different material or contrasting color. This last plan is productive of some happy effects.

NEW FALL COSTUMES.

There was one handsome suit in this style worthy of reproduction, and it is a model that is suitable for almost any goods, though plain surfaced material gives the best appearance. The original was of light biscuit colored cloth, the front breadth laid smooth, but all the others were plaited in rather close folds. The corsage was smooth and seamless and closed in front invisibly, though there were two rows of small gold buttons. There were two lengthwise puffs of white cloth starting from the neck, where they were held in closely by gold buckles. They were then left to take natural folds to the waist line, where they were gathered in by two more buckles, and from there they spread out to the foot of the skirt smoothly like a box plait. There was a folded stock collar of the material of the gown and a puffed belt across the front. The sleeves had quaint gauntlet shaped cuffs reaching upward from the elbows. The lower portion of the sleeves was of the biscuit cloth.

Another instance of a full plaited skirt may not seem amiss, particularly as women are growing very tired of the godet skirt, which looks so well when first made and so dreadful after a couple of wearing. All the way around the skirt was laid in box plaits at the top, and these were each "held in" until the whole fitted the belt. The folds were allowed to fall naturally the rest of the way. This gown was of lavender mohair with a rich silky luster. On the skirt and on the waist and sleeves there was ecru lace trimming. The waist was blouse plaited, and there was a cher y velvet belt. The lace on the skirt and sleeves can be purchased by the yard, and that on the shoulders and down the plaits comes in sets. Around the neck was a plaited chiffon ruffle. This gown was copied in black, blue, gray and brown mohair brilliantine, the folds bringing out the peculiar beauties of that showy fabric. This goods is being shown now in several new shades, and some is produced figured in different colors and brocaded in self color.

MATE LEROY.

Over the Phone.

"Ah, Mamie, is that you?"

"Yes, I'm here, George! Why did you call me up? You only left the house at 3 this morning."

"I've got some awfully good news. I want you to run up to Milwaukee with me this evening and get married."

"Why, in the name of goodness, are you in such a hurry about it?"

"Two justices of the peace in that city have cut marriage fees slick in the middle!"

"That's all right as far as it goes, but I don't see there's been any dropping off in the divorce lawyer's charges."—Chicago Dispatch.

It Made Him Tired.

"Follows do get a little lazy in the government service," said the lean man with the yellow vest, "but I do think that the man who complained when pay day was changed from once every quarter to once every month rather overdid the thing."

"What was the kicking about?" asked the fat man.

"Said it made him tired to draw his salary so often."—Cincinnati Tribune.

A Youthful Reminder.

Little Billy was told: "Never ask for anything at the table. Little boys should wait until they are served." The other day little Billy was forgotten in the distribution and was not served at all. What could he do? Presently, after reflecting seriously, he asked, "Mamma, when little boys starve to death, do they go to heaven?"—London Weekly Telegraph.

NEWS FROM RURAL POINTS.

WHAT IS OCCURRING IN THE NEIGHBORING BURGHS.

A Little Money of the Soldiers Was Retained For Expenses—The Department Consulted—The Policy of Mr. Foster Not Endorsed—Home After Years of Absence.

CHAUMONT, N.Y., July 13.—The farmers are getting along nicely with their haying. They have a little over half a crop. The Alleu's New York theatre showed in town for the last six nights. They have some fine plays. The men from this place, who have been working in Ogdensburg, returned home last Friday night. A number of the boys with wheels went to Clayton yesterday to see the ruins of the fire. Bert Byam's smallest boy, who broke his arm a while ago, is doing nicely. Miss Grace McCrea, of Copenhagen, is visiting at Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Swing's. Charles Jewett is home on a visit. Charlie Knapp made a flying call in town last week. Last Monday morning one of our honorable men hired out to work on a farm through haying and was to begin work at noon, but when noon came he was not to be found, and has not been seen since. Charles Hentz got a small stone in his eye last week. It laid him up for a few days.

Forfar Facts.

FORFAR, July 15.—A slight shower of rain visited this section on Saturday afternoon. A number of farmers in this locality have finished curing hay. It is not as good a yield as last year. Four from here tried the entrance examinations at Newboro. Thomas Myers took a business trip to Brockville on Thursday. A quiet wedding is expected to take place on Wednesday morning. Selwyn Kendrick, Athens, paid our village a flying visit on Sunday. Miss Maud Adram is taking lessons on the violin. Miss Anna Morris has purchased a new piano. A number from here attended the Orange celebration at Portland. Miss Minnie Smith is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith. Visitors: Mr. Brown, Mallorytown, at Mrs. George Johnson's; Mrs. Brown and Miss A. Morris, Gananoque, at W. T. Hales'; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kendrick, Lyndhurst, at N. E. Graham's; Mrs. A. Kendrick, Athens, at C. T. Hales'.

Parham Paragraphs.

PARHAM, July 16.—D. Hecht has purchased a horse. He goes riding now every evening. A large number went from here to the Orange celebration at Piccadilla on Friday. The base ball game between Parham and Verona did not take place on account of the rain. It was postponed till another time. Mrs. George Lake, who has been visiting friends at Moscow, has returned home. Mrs. W. McKiever died last Monday. Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. McKiever and his little family. Miss Gertie Shields, who has been in Kingston for some time, returned home for holidays. The Misses Berryman and Mrs. Thoburn, of Almonte, are visiting their brother Mr. G. Berryman. Mrs. Goldensteen, Montreal, is visiting her daughter Mrs. D. Hecht. Mr. Hecht leaves for Carleton Place to-day to dispose of a bankrupt stock which he has purchased there. Miss Mamie Sleemens and Miss Arlen Funnel, Kingston, are visiting at J. A. McMahon's.

A Lady's Sudden Death.

ARDEN, July 16.—The rains on Monday and Friday of last week, although slight, have done good to the grain, and potatoes; to-day it is raining heavily. A few nights ago there was a light frost which touched the corn in some places. On Monday of last week Samson Wood, who lives near the C.P.R., had a pair of steers get on the track, the afternoon express struck them at Sanderson's crossing. One had a leg broken, the other was not much hurt; the former had to be killed. Mr. Hickey and wife from Watertown, N.Y., have been visiting for some days at Burgher Newton's, they returned home on Friday. On Sunday the Rev. R. Coleman, administered the holy communion at the English church service in the schoolhouse, and also baptised the infant daughter of Hamilton Knight. William Pringle and wife have been visiting friends at Plevna. The Twelfth was passed very quietly here, the Orange and Prentice Boys lodges visited Mountain Grove. Joseph Gendron's infant son has been very sick but is now better. The hay crop being a failure a great many are cutting marsh hay. Mrs. Rhoda Mills, mother of W. B. Mills, merchant of this village, died suddenly, of heart failure at 9:30 o'clock last evening (15th inst.) at the house of her son, she had been in her usual health all day. She was over eighty years of age.

A Serious Outlook.

DONALDSON'S MILLS, July 16.—The hay crop is reported to be a failure all through this section of country and the outlook for the coming winter is somewhat alarming. Just now, when the manufacture of cheese is looked upon as a source of revenue for the farmer, and the only thing out of which ready money can be expected, a more serious blow could not come upon them. Everyone has been increasing his stock of cows, and anyone that had means has invested them in that way and now they have the cattle but no hay to feed them with. If hay can be supplied from other places there are very few of our farmers able to buy. They may have the money's worth but they cannot get money for it and without money they cannot get hay. In conversation with G. W. Dawson, M.P., yesterday, your correspondent was informed that the prospect was no better in his section. On a field where he cut six tons last year, he only cut 300 lbs. this season; and another field where he cut three and a half tons last season will so completely burned up that nothing could be seen of it.

The mill men here are having a two weeks' vacation, necessitated by a leak in the boiler. Men are out from the Kingston foundry repairing it. It was found necessary to put in a new flue sheet and all new flues. It is an old saying, "A stitch in time saves nine." Dr. Elkington was at E. H. Newton's on Sunday to see their sick child. The little fellow is much better to-day. There is a large amount of berries shipped from here. They sell at 40c to 50c per pail for raspberries on the train here. Francis Allan, Perth, spent Sunday here.

Collinsby Clippings.

COLLINSBY, July 16.—The garden party in aid of the Presbyterian mission was quite a success. Music was furnished by the Portsmouth band; singing by Mr. Roughton, Kingston; humorous recitations by Mr. Yule, Kingston. These were well appreciated by all. Rev. Mr. Macgillivary, Kingston, conducts service on Sabbath afternoon; and Rev J. Cumberland, of Stella, will baptize two children at the close of the service. Mr. Armes, of Youngstown, Ohio, is here for the fishing season. G. Simmonds is rowing him. Mr. Currie, Presbyterian student here, will preach for Mr. Cumberland, Stella, next Sabbath. Quite a few from here attended the 12th of July celebration in Belleville. Will Dennis spent Sunday at home. George Smith has bought a bicycle. S. Lemmon has finished drilling wells for J. Pringle and H. Grass. He is now engaged for the C. B. R. Co. Enoch Godwin was here on business yesterday.

Mrs. M. Riefly presented her husband with a little daughter 4th of July. Mr. and Mrs. Adsit and son were the guests of Mrs. M. McDonald. Miss Murinda McDonald is visiting her brother, D. McDonald, after an absence of five years in the states. The str City of Owen Sound with barge Muskoka and schr. J. G. Worts arrived on Saturday from Ostonogon with timber. Our shoemaker, Mr. Powley, left this afternoon on the express for Port Hope to reside. Mrs. Spence and son, Mrs. Freeman and son and Mrs. Ettipger and son are at the hotel.

Joyceville Jottings.

JOYCEVILLE, July 16.—The 12th passed off pleasantly, with the exception of a very heavy rain. Quite a number from here took in the picnic held at Laferty's grove. Some are through haying already, it being an exceptionally light crop this year in this district. The question mostly asked now is "Did you get many berries?"

PRIVATELY DISCUSSED.

Montreal Physicians Beginning Largely to Prescribe a New Remedy.

MONTREAL, July 15.—There is still a good deal of talk here among all classes over the recent despatches which appeared in so many Canadian papers, relative to the cure of Mr. G. H. Kent, of Ottawa, from Bright's disease. Although the merits of the case have not been openly discussed at any of the meetings of the medical society, there has been a good deal of private conference and the impression which the report of the recovery has made is evidenced in the fact that a good many physicians have prescribed Dodd's Kidney Pills in their private practice. No higher testimony than this could be given to any remedy; the reluctance of medical men to admit any good in proprietary medicines being well-known.

A Winner.

The usual little game of poker was running at Schweinmagen's, and the players were all betting very freely. An unusually large jack pot was in the center of the table, and as the cards were being dealt old Schweinmagen remarked:

"Vell, shentlemans, I guess I win dis pot."

It was duly opened, and there was a raise or two all the way round. Schweinmagen drew one card, another player drew two, and two stood pat. The betting was brisk, and every time it came around to Schweinmagen he raised. Suddenly his 4-year-old boy exclaimed:

"Oh, look! Papa's got four cards all alike!"

"Shut up your mout'!" roared Schweinmagen, but it was too late. None of the other players would call his last raise. Schweinmagen took the lay up stairs. He returned in five minutes red in the face and resumed the game with the remark:

"You pet I shpank dat poy goot."

Half an hour later when all were trying to win a big pot Schweinmagen's 6-year-old girl exclaimed:

"Papa has got four cards all just alike."

Again every one dropped their hands. Schweinmagen pocketed the cash, and the 6-year-old was led up stairs.

When a few minutes later the grocer's 8-year-old son said, "Papa has got four all alike," one of the players studied his hand an unusually long time, scratched his head, studied the grocer's face and then called.

"What have you got?" he demanded.

"What haf you got?"

"I called. Show down your hand."

Schweinmagen spread out a pair of deuces. The grocer didn't take the boy up stairs, but whipped him on the spot for lying.

"Dot poy might haf fooled some of you shentlemans," he explained.—San Francisco Post.

She Had a Son.

"Madam," began the tramp as the kitchen door was opened in response to his knock, "have you a son?"

"Yes, sir," replied the woman as she locked him over.

"Is he among strangers, may I ask?"

"He is."

"Ah! You can appreciate my position! Who knows but what your son is a wanderer o'er the face of the earth tonight—hungry, ragged and compelled to beg for his bread. Have you heard from him lately?"

"Yes, sir. My son is no wanderer, and he gets three square meals a day and wears pretty good clothes."

"Then he has a steady job?"

"He has, sir. He'd like to wander, but he can't. He's in the workhouse on a six months' sentence and has over three months yet to serve. Did you want anything?"

"Why, ma'am—why, considering the circumstances"—

"You won't ask for anything?"

"No, ma'am, I won't. If your son was a wanderer—hungry, ragged and hopeless—I would modestly ask for a bite to eat, but seeing—but seeing"—

"That he can't wander."

"Yes'm—that he can't wander and has a good job of it, I'll try the next house and let you off. Afternoon, ma'am. Hope your wanderless son will stick right to it and come out as fat as a fall pig."—Detroit Free Press.

Latest Fad of British Aristocracy.

Zebras are among the latest fads of the British aristocracy. Lord Rothschild has a pair of zebras broken to harness which he drives around his country place, while recently a well known peer was seen driving a four in hand of these beautiful animals through the streets of South Kensington. The question is now being discussed as to whether they cannot be broken for use as polo ponies.

KINGSTON MARKETS.

The Prices Gathered on the Market Square and Elsewhere.

KINGSTON, July 16.—There was an unusually large market on Saturday, and all the goods offered were disposed of at fair prices. To-day garden raspberries were cheap and plentiful. They were sold in boxes at two for 25c, or 13c each. Wild raspberries are scarce at $1.35 per pail; red and white currants, 10c per box, or three boxes for 25c; blackberries, 10c per box; cherries, 13c per box, or $1.25 to $1.50 per basket; gooseberries, 10c per quart; huckleberries, 12½c per quart.

Potatoes (new), $1 to $1.25 per bushel; old, 60c to 70c per bag.

Cucumbers, 5c to 10c each; shelled peas, 10c per quart; green peas, $1 per bushel; rhubarb, 4c to 5c, per bunch; green onions, 4c to 5c per bunch; cauliflower, 5c to 20c each; cabbage, 50c to $1 per dozen; lettuce, 5c per head; radishes, 4c to 5c per bunch; tomatoes, 15c per pound; mint, 2c to 5c per bunch; asparagus, 5c per bunch; parsley, 5c per bunch; beets, carrots and turnips, 4c to 5c per bunch.

Lamb, carcass, 3½c to 4½c; mutton, carcass, 5c to 6c; 8c to 12½c per lb.; beef, carcass, 4c to 5½c per lb.; cuts, 5c to 12c per lb.; pork, per quarter, 6c to 7c; 8c to 12½c per lb.

Fowls, 40c to 50c per pair; turkeys, 10c per lb.; ducks, 60c to 75c each; chickens, 50c to 65c per pair.

Family flour has gone down 10c per cwt. The rates are $2.40 to $2.50 per cwt; bakers' flour $2.30 to $2.75 per cwt; cornmeal, $1.60 per cwt; chops, $23 to $25 per ton; bran, $16 per ton.

Eggs, 12½c to 13½c per doz.; butter, rolls, 18c to 20c; pound prints, 23c to 25c per lb.

Sea salmon, 22c to 25c per lb; pike, 6c per lb; whitefish, 9c to 10c per lb.; salmon trout, 9c to 10c per lb.

The grain markets have been very quiet during the past week, Chicago taking a drop, in September wheat, to 61½c., a 20c. drop. Since this it has recovered to 63½c. The crop reports for fall wheat, both for this country and Europe, are very poor. There is less wheat this year than during the last ten years. The average has not been as small in Europe for many years as it is to-day and the prospects are a rise in wheat prices. The reports from Manitoba and the northwest are very good and it look as if there would be a large crop. We quote Manitoba, hard, 93c; red winter, 87c to 90c; peas, 60c; rye, 50c; oats, 35c; barley, 50c. The receipts of grain are very light, little or nothing doing in the trade, and we look for a better demand before a month. The stock in hand by that time will be exhausted and millers will have to buy. The last rise in the market will induce many to go in and buy largely, as they have been laying off for a month.

Hay—May not look for any lower price than $12 to $14 a ton.

The Wool and Hide Market.

John McKay, 157 Princess street, reports: The wool market remains firm. We are paying for washed fleece, wool from 16c to 18c per lb.; pure Southdown, 19c per lb.; unwashed wool, from 10c to 12c according to quality. Hides, No. 1, 7c per lb.; bull hides, 6c per lb.; calf skins, dekins, from 40c to 60c for No. 1; veal skins, from 60c to 80c; shearlings, 15c; lambs, 15c to 25c; horse hides, $1.50. We are receiving large quantities of wool at above prices. American market for wool continues dull.

Markets Elsewhere.

MONTREAL, July 16.—The best grass-fed cattle sold at from 3½c to 4c per lb., and choice stall-fed steers was held at 5c per lb., but none of the butchers cared to go so high. Pretty good stock sold at from 3½c to 3½, and common dry cows at from 2½c to 3c per lb., with some of the leaner beasts at about 2c per lb. Calves were less numerous than they have been lately, and brought slightly higher rates, good calves selling at from $5 to $8 each, and common ones at from $2.50 to $4.50 each. Jos. Richard paid $32.50 for six good calves, and he bought twenty good lambs at $3.15 each. There was an improvement in the prices of sheep and lambs, as the supply was rather small. Shippers are paying about 3½c per lb. for good large sheep, and the others sell at from 2½c to 3½c per lb. Good lambs sell at from $3 to nearly $4 each, or from 4½c to 4½c per lb; common lambs sell at from $2 to $2.87 each. Fat hogs have been advancing in price of late, fed hogs sell at from 4½c to 4½c per lb., and those just come off the cars bring one quarter of a cent more per lb.
