THE SITUATION IN CHINA.

FRESH ANTI-FOREIGN OUTRAGES ARE THREATENED.

A Feeling of Uneasiness Prevails—If an Incentive is Provided a Tumult Can be Quickly Precipitated—Drastic Measures May be Required.

Special correspondent of the United Press per steamer China.

TOKIO, Sept. 26. — Ugly rumors are circulated in China as to the probability of fresh anti-foreign outrages from Hankow. It is reported that a day had been fixed for attacking the foreigners but as that kind of thing had been going on for the last three years no particular attention was paid to it until a despatch had come from Pekin ordering a reduction of twenty per cent. in the pay of the Wuchang garrison and the discharge of a considerable number of soldiers for the sake of economy. The probable effect of these measures was to induce the removal (Sept. 12th) of all foreign ladies and children, as well as of the girls in the American mission boarding house, from Wuchang to the concession. Whether, owing to these precautions or to some other cause, the threatened trouble did not break out. But it is easy to conceive that the adoption of such measures may attract the very peril they are intended to avert since they indicate the most vulnerable point on the foreign side.

In Kikunang also a feeling of uneasiness prevails. There is talk of the inauguration of extensive reforms under instructions from the central government, involving the dismissal of numerous useless officials and the disbanding of seven-tenths of the soldiers that proved themselves such a worthless rabble during the recent war. If these steps be taken, the situation, already critical for foreigners, will be complicated by the presence of a multitude of needy mal-contents ready for any form of outrages or pillage.

In Wenchow things are not dissimilar. At a place called Siuan, between Wenchow and Ping Yang, the missionaries have, for years past, been stoned and insulted, and the same fate was recently experienced by the British consul on his way back from investigating the Ping Yang riots.

The elements for an anti-foreign tumult are always ready to become violently active if only an incentive be provided. In truth there is no avoiding the conviction that foreign life and property are everywhere unsafe in China to-day, and that the conciliatory policy pursued by the western powers in their dealings with the middle kingdom has been entirely misconstrued by the Chinese. Many men of letters seem to employ their pens for the deliberate purpose of misleading and exciting the people. Cartoons, brochures and vernacular newspapers, such as they are, combine to work mischief, recounting even now, wonderful tales of the defeats inflicted on Japan during the late war and the misdeeds of aliens in general. Whether this undercurrent of fierce conservatism is being worked up as a factor to assist in the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty by embroiling it with foreign nations, or whether genuine antipathy to occidentals permeates the masses in China, it is becoming plain that the situation may, at any time, demand measures of a most drastic character.

The Mohammedan rebellion still continues to defy the resources of the Chinese authorities. Troops are being sent up the river by steamers from Hanghow to the scene of the disturbance, but as they are a rabble of the same quality that made such a miserable stand against the Japanese in the recent war, their ability to quell the rebellion is very doubtful. It is stated that the Mohammedans have now completely invested Lanchow, the capital of Kansu. The Mohammedans, or Tunganis, as they are called, labor under civil and military disability, being ineligible for office above the fourth or for military rank above that of captain, unless they renounce their faith. Their illiberal treatment by China goes far to justify the stand they are now taking.

The Japanese prince imperial is slowly mending, but many months must elapse before he is restored to full health. In the absence of further complications, however, his recovery is pretty certain.

The details of the investigation conducted at Kucheng in the presence of a commission, consisting of two consuls—British and American—and other foreigners, have been published. The commissioners reached Kucheng on the 17th Aug., and by the 20th the perfect had received telegraphic instructions from the viceroy, telling him to do exactly as the consuls wished. Accordingly, the examination of prisoners commenced on Wednesday, 21st, or rather their re-examination, for before being brought up to give their evidence in the presence of the foreign commissioners they had already been questioned by the Chinese magistrate. What this preliminary questioning involved must be left to the imagination. Something of the pains that the prisoners had to undergo may be gathered from the remarkable readiness of their admissions before the foreign commissioners, but only in two cases did the men bear marks of the devices employed to extort confessions. But happily after the examination of about a score of prisoners, evidence had been collected sufficient to clearly indicate the persons chiefly concerned in the outrages. Then, at the instance of the consuls, the prefect telegraphed for the viceroy's permission, and obtained it, to dispense with the confession indicated by Chinese law as a preliminary essential to capital punishment. It was conclusively proved that not more than one hundred vegetarians were present at the murdering and burning. Some 200 set out from the association's fastnesses in the hills, but a number of them dwindled away en route. Very few of them seem to have known exactly what was in contemplation. They went along in blind obedience to their leaders, but were ready enough to stab and plunder when the occasion presented itself. Indeed, the general programme of the vegetarians in the Kucheng district is violence. The principle of their procedure is to take the place of the duly constituted authorities, and to substitute a reign of force for the control of legal tribunals. It does not appear, however, that other branches of the same association in various parts of China adopt similar methods, though probably all are prepared to raise the standard of rebellion if a favorable opportunity offers. Even the Kucheng vegetarians profess to be nothing more than an anti-opium society. Several of the prisoners recently examined said that they had entered its ranks for the sake of getting cured of the opium vice. In practice, however, the regular custom of the leaders is to settle by force disputes that would otherwise go before the law courts, and an instance upon record of their openly entering the yamen of a magistrate and compelling him to release some of their associates whom he had arrested.

There can be no doubt that the culpable perfunctoriness of the local authorities in dealing with these vegetarians was ultimately responsible for the Ku-Cheng tragedy. Magistrate after magistrate had paltered with the law-breakers, and when, finally, at last, two hundred soldiers were sent, they lay inactive in Ku-Cheng while their presence was ascribed by the leaders of the allied vegetarians to foreign interference. The clerks, servers of the missionaries appear to Proprietors, facilitated their own apprehension by boasting of what they had done.

GO IN FREE OF DUTY.

A Decision in Regard to Bicycles—Seized at Niagara Falls.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Oswald N. Cammann, vice-president of the Cheeseborough manufacturing company, 24 State street, while on a trip through Canada, recently, bought a new bicycle. Dressed in a new bicycle suit he started across the bridge at Niagara on his wheel. Just as he was about to enter the United States a custom house officer demanded thirty-five per cent. duty on the wheel. Rather than pay what he thought to be an unjust exaction Mr. Cammann allowed the bicycle to be confiscated. Upon his return to this city Mr. Cammann wrote to the secretary of the treasury protesting against the ruling of the collector. Mr. Cammann yesterday received a letter from assistant secretary Hamlin saying that the bicycle would be admitted free of duty. This decision is important both to bicycle riders and manufacturers since wheels are cheaper in Canada than here.

To Increase The Rate.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—The Central traffic association roads are talking seriously of advancing eastbound grain rates. The present rate is twenty cents per 100 pounds and they would like to advance it to twenty-five cents, a rate which some officials think is more than the traffic can bear at this time in view of the low prices which farmers receive for their product. Until a few days ago grain rates were secretly cut below the 20 per cent. basis and this has had a stimulating effect on the traffic. Shipments have been increasing from day to day, and roads find it difficult now to supply cars for all the business that is offered for transportation.

At last hearing he was still living, but the doctor says he could not live but a few hours. Lacolle made some bad transactions lately and this, with hard drinking, is supposed to be the cause.

E. Chown & Son vs. S. Walton—Action to recover an account of $43.18. Judgment for plaintiff for full amount.

A. Ellis, architect, vs. Dr. Stackhouse—An action to recover $60, balance of architect's fees. The account was not disputed, but defendant filed a counter claim of $100 for damages, claiming the house designed by plaintiff was a foot and a half out of line with the lot. Judgment for plaintiff for full amount, but each to pay their own costs.

J. F. McDermott vs. E. Boddy vs. P. H. McGuire, garnishee—Action to recover payment of account for $4.90. Adjourned until next court.

Macnee & Minnes vs. W. F. Tye—An action to force payment on a note for $110.98. Judgment for plaintiffs for full amount.

J. Black vs. B. Smith, W. K. Smith and C. Ryder—Action for the recovery of a note for $171.25. The defence was that the endorsers had notified plaintiff to collect from the maker of note, B. Smith, who was at the time insolvent. Endorsers claimed they were released by plaintiff not proceeding against them when notified. Judgment for plaintiff for full amount and costs.

H. V. Lyon vs. S. W. Hobart—Action on a note for $170.90. Judgment for plaintiff on confession.

There were five judgment summonses. Two were ordered to pay $2 a month, two were dismissed and one was ordered to be committed for ten days.

With all due respect to other members of the team, it would be difficult to fill his place. He has had the experience, and besides has the confidence of his men.

MRS. SHORTIS HEARD FROM.

She Gave Testimony on Behalf of Her Son at Beauharnois.

BEAUHARNOIS, Que., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Mulcahey, boarding-house keeper, Montreal, told of Shortis' queer actions while boarding with her, at the trial to-day. His mother also took the stand. She stood the strain with great fortitude. Many times her motherly feelings got the best of her and she sobbed bitterly while relating her son's history. The most of her story bore up that given by her husband yesterday. She also said her son was virtually dumb up to his fourth year and could not articulate plainly until thirteen years of age. She educated him herself till he was seven, then sent him to different schools till he was sixteen. He was always deficient in memory and never acquired much knowledge. He was delicate up to his sixteenth year and subject to violent headaches. He was gentle and obedient towards his mother, and his ill-temper and other bad traits were evolutionary after he was sixteen years of age. She did not learn of but few of his depredations, as her friends kept them from her through kindness. She did not favor the idea of sending him to Canada, knowing his disposition and short comings. She always provided him liberally with money and came over there to see him. He was well cared for. Her evidence lasted about an hour and was listened to with wrapt attention. The prosecution did not cross examine her. The medical expert evidence was then begun, Dr. Anglin, late of Verdun asylum, being first witness. He thought prisoner was insane.

SIN AND ITS RESULT.

He Played the Gambler. Stole And Cried When Sentenced.

HAMILTON, Oct. 15.—W. B. Palmer, defaulting teller of the Hamilton branch of the Bank of Commerce, to-day, received sentence on the charge of stealing $1,960 of the bank's funds. This is not the only money belonging to the bank which Palmer took from the bank, and his defalcations amount to some thousands of dollars, but the sum mentioned was found on his person when arrested, the prisoner having taken it from the cash till, just before leaving the bank, on the day he disappeared. The prisoner gave up the money found on him. He had squandered large sums in pool rooms, bucket shops and other gambling places. Palmer, who is a married man, with several small children depending upon him, wept like a child when brought before the court and when Judge Snyder sentenced him to three years imprisonment in Kingston penitentiary, he broke down completely.

Another Hamiltonian Sentenced.

HAMILTON, Oct. 15.—Fred. A. Filgano, found guilty before chief justice Meredith, last evening, of stealing three sums of money, aggregating about $2,500, from the G. T. R. company, in whose service he was employed as cashier, was again in the dock this morning on a further charge of appropriating $411 of the railway company's money to his own use. Filgano was sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary.

She suffered no violence on the trip to Chicago at his hands.

Both Brockville and Belleville papers are shouting because the one or two contractors their towns possess have been kept busy in contrast to Kingston. Now what the WHIG meant by saying that the building industry was slow was that the various trades interested had not been as active as they could have wished. The fact is more new buildings have been put up in Kingston this year than in Belleville and Brockville combined. And even then business has not been swift.

What Premier Greenway Is Doing.

Belleville Intelligencer.

Rev. J. E. Starr, Kingston, in the course of his sermon at Holloway street church Sunday night, speaking of the Manitoba school question, said that Manitoba would receive no injustice from the people of Canada. Premier Greenway had at last done what he should have done before, namely, gone to the archbishop to propose a readjustment of the educational law. This question should be settled by the people of Manitoba where it properly belongs. Mr. Starr stated that this information had not appeared in any newspaper, but he had it on authority that could not be questioned.

THE HUGGER ARRESTED.

He Has Terrorized Woodstock Citizens For Two Years Past.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 15.—The town heaved a sigh of relief when it became known that "Jack the Hugger," who for two years has terrorized ladies on side streets, had been arrested. The police during this time have found themselves completely outwitted. Scarcely a week passed without some lady being accosted on the street.

On Saturday night a young lady named Kate McDonald was stopped up to by a man on Riddle street, who attempted to assault her. J. C. Walker, photographer, happened along at the time and chased the fellow for some distance. He eventually escaped, but not before he was recognized as Herbert Babcock, a horse trainer, formerly in the employ of Philip McLeod. Several other ladies had seen him acting in a suspicious manner on the same evening and positively identified him.

He was arrested and it is generally believed by the police and public that "Jack the Hugger" has at last been captured. A reward of $50 was some time ago offered by the town council for his apprehension. Babcock is a married man and has one six months' old child.

Back to His Old Love.

Brockville Recorder.

One of Prescott's celebrities, Wm. Lightfoot, recently shipped to an old man's home in Kingston, surprised his Brockville acquaintances yesterday by reappearing here on his way back to the fort town. His name don't fit him nearly so well as in days gone by, as he walked the whole distance between here and the limestone city and his feet was heavy instead of light. He says that he couldn't stay in the Kingston institution any longer without having his credentials further raised, but we have an idea that he got lonesome.
