Booth made a short address, and he was followed by his wife, who made one of the most impassioned speeches of her life. Mrs. Booth is always interesting, but besides this, abe has the inspirational quality which always compels attention, commands respect, and at times rises to the highest plane of hun elequence. When theroughly into her it is not, she forces the conviction that and is terribly in earnest, and her speech sounds like the preschaustion of a prophetess.

On Tuesday night she fairly outdid her.

There was a mild flutter of sensation when themews got out that Amelia Rives had secured a divorce from her husband not half as great a surprise as the marriage. Jack was an astor in the second degree, that is, his mother was an Astor, so that he was on the inside of the secial so that he was on the inside of the secial swim. He was a gay boy, and when in town trained in the crowd of which Berry Wall was a bright and shining light. He had been around the globe two or three simes; shot elephants in Africa, hunted tigers in India, traveled all over Europe, and had sounded the depths and shouls of all the great capitals in every part of the world, and he was as much at home in Calcutta, Bombay or Cairo, as he was

With the insatiable vanity, which no flattery however gross could satisfy, she started on her matrimonial venture. She evidently expected that her husband would be only too happy to live in her presence and obey her slightest nod like the young bountry squires of highative State Virginia; but Jack Chalner had passed all that years and years ago, though he is still a young Her appearance in New York created no

It was the regular apnual meeting of the Presbyterian churches to consider the year's work; to attend to the present and to provide for the future. Dr. T. When Dr. Talmage arose to speak, and to say farewell to those with whom he had been associated for so many years, it was preacher for onice was unequal to the task he had imposed upon himself. The couple went to Europe, and it was a dread-ful shock to the young authorese to find that no one had heard of "The Quick and the Dead" in London or Paris. Then Jack too, did not come home early; he preferred the companionship of the pleasant fellows at club to the society of one who could talk of nothing but herself, and it did not take the couple long to discover that they had made a serious mistake, and the sooner they dissolved partnership the better for both. The plea for divorce was put in the mildest form of application—incompatibility of temper; it involved no scandal, and both parties were let down very easily.
