NELLIE IS A FREE WOMAN.

SHE FOUND CLARK HAD A WIFE BEFORE HER.

An Incident that Impressed Her—Clark's Confession Before the Two Were Made One—What Miss Ganthony Discovered After They Were Wedded.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Miss Nellie Ganthony, sometimes called the "Female Grossmith," an entertainer, had been the wife of John Clark, batrister, of Toronto, Ont., just twenty-nine days when Judge Miles Beach, in the supreme court on Oct. 12th, granted her petition to annul the marriage on the ground that Clark had another wife living. She was married to him in the city hall on Sept. 13th. Miss Ganthony, whose real name is Ida Davey, comes of a wealthy family of Richmond Terrace, Surrey, Eng. One of her brothers is said to have entertained Mr. Gladstone on his yacht at the Kiel celebration. She made her first appearance here nearly a year ago, giving a monologue entertainment. While filling an engagement in Toronto last spring she became involved in a suit with her manager. John Clark was engaged by the manager to prosecute his suit. Instead of having his office boy serve the papers in the suit Mr. Clark served them himself. He won his suit and a few days later he proposed to the defendant and was accepted.

After she had accepted Clark Miss Ganthony said she felt a sharp pain in one of her fingers. Looking at it she saw her mother's wedding ring and a silver ring she wore had snapped in two. She is not superstitious, but the incident impressed her. Then Clark made a confession. He said that in July, 1891, in Detroit, he had been married, but, he added, had been divorced thirteen months later in St. Joseph, Mo. He said that his first wife was likely to prosecute them.

Miss Ganthony, however, concluded to accept him. To prove that she was not superstitious and that the breaking of the rings had no effect upon her, she set the date of the wedding for Friday, Sept. 13th, and on that day she was married to him by Ald. Schilling. On that day Clark was temporarily stricken blind. Several doctors attended him, but they did not tell her the cause of the blindness. She now says it was morphine. In the last week in September while they were at the Everett house Clark was found unconscious and was taken to Bellevue hospital. He was discharged the next day. Miss Ganthony alleges that he confessed to her then that he was addicted to the use of morphine.

Mrs. Clark moved him to Flushing, L.I., and there she received a letter from a lawyer in Toronto, who said that a woman had appeared with a marriage certificate and claimed to be Clark's wife. In the presence of her brother, Richard Ganthony, Mrs. Clark showed the letter to Clark.

"Didn't I tell you" said he, "that that woman would annoy us. Now look here, I am either an honorable man or a scoundrel. If you think I am a scoundrel why don't you shoot me?"

She explained matters to a lawyer and asked him if Clark's divorce was valid. On Oct. 5th she received a telegram from the lawyer asking her to visit his office. There she was confronted by Mrs. Lillian Clark who exhibited her marriage certificate, showing that she had been married to Clark on July 24th, 1891, in Detroit. She said she had never been divorced from Clark. The lawyer was also unable to find any record of the decree in St. Joseph.

Miss Ganthony then filed a petition in the supreme court asking for an annulment of her marriage, and a referee recommended that it be granted.

ALONE ON THE OCEAN.

A Sailor Found Floating on a Vessel's House Surrounded by Sharks.

New York, Nov. 2.—Capt. Hopkins, of the four-masted schooner Star of the Sea, of Boston, which arrived from Chisholm Island, S. C., phosphate laden, reports that on the morning of Oct. 25th, in latitude 25.16, longitude 76.41, she sighted a piece of wreckage which appeared to be the top of a vessel's house. On a closer inspection of the wreck, he observed a man standing on the house, waving a coat to attract us. He altered the ship's course and bore down for the wreck. He immediately launched a small boat, in charge of two seamen, who succeeded in rescuing the occupant of the floating house, and brought him on board the Star of the Sea.

He was in a dazed condition, and it was some time before he was able to give an account of himself. After his wants were attended to, he gave his name as Benjamin E. Weeks, thirty years of Wilmington, N. C., and stated that he belonged to the schooner Harry S. Lord, jun., of Bath, Maine, Capt. Kimball, from Cape Hayti for New York, with a cargo of logwood. The vessel sailed from the Capeon Oct 12th. She experienced variable weather, with heavy seas, which caused her to strain badly, so much so that she sprang a bad leak. On Oct 23rd, owing to the heavy sea running, she became waterlogged. A heavy sea struck her, which started the after house. It soon broke adrift and floated away from the vessel. Weeks jumped on top of the house, preferring to take his chances of being picked up by some passing vessel rather than remain on the wreck. The house floated in the vicinity of the wreck until next day, the 24th, when they lost sight of each other. Weeks was without food and water, and after being adrift twenty-four hours, despaired of ever being rescued. Sharks surrounded him, but he managed to beat them off with his coat, which, with the shirt he wore, was all the clothing he had.

On the morning of the 25th, much to his delight, he sighted the Star of the Sea hearing down towards him. Weeks' joy was so great over his timely rescue that for some time he was unable to speak, and could scarcely believe that he was saved from death. Weeks could give no account of his vessel or shipmates.

AN UNPROVOKED MURDER.

The Owner of a British Schooner Shot by a Venezuelan.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—A despatch to the Herald from Barbadoes, W.I., says announcement is made that a commander named Filbert, on board a Venezuelan Guarda Coasta, shot down Thomas Garcia, owner of the British schooner Myosotis, on board that vessel while on a voyage from port of Spain in a most unprovoked manner. The facts have been reported to the administration at Trinidad, and a report on the same is now on its way to London for the information of the secretary of state for colonies and the cabinet. It is generally believed that the murder of Garcia is a grave misfortune to Venezuela, considering the present relations between the two countries, as it will give England an undoubted advantage in dealing with Gen. Crespo and his government. England will certainly demand satisfaction for this and other unwarranted outrages on her shipping.

Cause For Alarm.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The Paris journals of conservative and moderate opinion regard the nomination of M. Berthelot to the office of minister of foreign affairs as most extraordinary. The Figaro says: "With M. Cavaignac directing the army, Lockey the navy and Berthelot the diplomacy of France there is more than enough to alarm those to whom the defence of the nation and our position in Europe are matters of concern." The Gaulois expresses belief that the Bourgeois cabinet will last longer than the moderates imagine.

Want Jury Trials.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 2.—The remainder of the Burin smugglers demand jury trials. This will necessitate postponement of the cases for a week or more. Several other raids on smugglers are expected. The public warmly approves of the convictions already obtained and urges the government to work vigorously and punish all the other offenders.

THE CASE WAS WITHDRAWN

THE HUSBAND ARRESTED ON A CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY.

An Insurance Company Recovers for Fraud in Offering a Chronic Consumptive as a Proper Policy Holder—The Case Withdrawn and the Husband Secured by Detective Murray.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—A suit was commenced in Osgoode hall by the Equitable life insurance company against Elisha Alger, of Pickering township, to recover $7,000, the amount paid on a policy on the life of Mrs. Alger, his wife, who died last August. The body of Mrs. Alger was exhumed last September, as there were suspicions that she had been passed by Dr. Francey, of Wyvale, under an arrangement with her husband, while suffering from chronic consumption. Dr. Francey left for the states when the investigation was commenced, but came to Toronto a few days ago under a safe conduct from the Ontario government to give evidence, which, it is stated, will be of a highly sensational character.

The suit came to a sudden termination this morning by the defendant withdrawing from the case. Dr. Francey, Wyevale, was the only witness called, and his evidence was very brief. He stated that he had attended Mrs. Alger professionally, and when he was first called in, in November, 1894, he found her suffering from pronounced consumption. Lawyer McDonald, of Stouffville, stated that he had never told Dr. Eastwood that there was $3,000 in this affair, and that he would get part of it. B. B. Osler, counsel for the defence, after consulting with his client, said that he did not by any means admit that there was any fraud on the part of his client, but still in view of the strong warranty needed by the company he would withdraw the case.

As soon as proceedings had terminated, detective John Murray arrested Alger on a charge of conspiracy to defraud and will take him back to Whitby to-day.

THE CASE SUMMED UP.

The Lawyers Delivering Argument in the Holmes' Case.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Interest in the Holmes' trial has steadily grown since the case began Monday, and each day the crowd has been larger. Long before the prisoner appeared this morning, the court room was packed with people.

When Holmes was brought into court this morning he seemed to be a trifle nervous; he greeted the counsel and the court officers, however, with a cheerful "Good morning" and read the papers while waiting for the proceedings to open.

Mr. Shoemaker was too ill to appear and Mr. Rotan made the closing argument. He sought to have Judge Arnold instruct the jury, in his summing up, to disregard all reference made of the killing of the Pietzel children by Mr. Graham in his speech at the beginning of the trial. This Judge Arnold refused to do.

Mr. Graham's closing argument was hardly a speech, as the word is usually meant. It was a sifting and an analytical review of the testimony. Without being of great strength the testimony of the prosecution was placed with clearness and skill before the jury by Mr. Graham, and when summed up the evidence was terribly damaging to Holmes.

Holmes listened intently and made voluminous notes of Mr. Graham's words. He realized that Mr. Graham's address might be life or death for him and there was an eager interest in his face that was not seen there before during the trial.

Mr. Cadman is a prominent citizen of Jackson, Mich. He was appointed an Indian agent by president Cleveland. It is not known what caused him to attempt his life.

Made Him A Brother In Deed.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Nov. 2.—Dr. Hunter called on Rev. J. E. Hunter, of Crossley & Hunter, the evangelists, while in Fredericton, B.C., a few days ago. The doctor thought Mr. Hunter, perhaps, was a brother whom he has not seen for twenty years. This was not the case. The doctor was then invited to the evangelists' meeting. He declined at first, saying he had not been inside a church for thirty years. He went, however, and left the meeting a devout christian.

How to Bake Tomatoes.

To bake tomatoes cut off a small piece of the fruit at the stem end and put in a bit of butter, a pinch of sugar and a pinch of salt. Sift a little powdered cracker or bread crumbs over them, and, if the flavor is liked add a few bits of onion. Bake an hour and have the top brown.

For stuffed tomatoes, select large, full-meated tomatoes. Cut off the tops of a sufficient number to fill a baking dish of the size desired. Sprinkle bread crumbs over the whole; add a few more bits of butter. Set in the oven and bake till the crumbs are a nice light brown.

The gathering was not an extensive one, but consisted chiefly of the willing workers who have done nobly in bringing the first year in the history of the institution to a satisfactory close. Mayor Wright presided. the meeting was opened with prayer by Very Rev. Dean Smith. The chairman said the work, aims and objects of the society were not generally known by the citizens. The society, however, had many supporters, as the attendance at the recent entertainment, held under its auspices, proved. He regretted that the council did not thoroughly understand their work; they need only to know the workings of the institution to have them advance on the grant of $200 given the institution last year.

The Rev. J. R. Black presented the report of the committee of management. It dealt exhaustively with the workings of the institution. It will appear in full in a later issue.

E. J. B. Pense, on behalf of the treasurer, Mrs. (Dr.) McCammon, presented the financial report, which showed the institution to be flourishing, with a small balance on hand, after having reduced the debt on the building by nearly $1,000 and paid all current expenses. The report, in detail, reads:

Mr. Pense congratulated the society on its financial standing. It was most satisfactory, considering the fact that it received no aid from the government, was not favored by endowments, and had, besides, part of the community against it. When the society was first organized great difficulty was experienced in securing a house, and when one was secured the workers were almost driven from the neighborhood by residents who circulated a petition to have the institution removed. But in Kingston persistency is rewarded and happily the present excellent quarters were procured and taken possession of. It was easy to work for and to give to charities approved by all classes, but it required a strong and hearty spirit to bring into life an institution regarded with doubt and even scorn by many persons. He hoped the council and citizens would be still more generous towards the home, and that the work would so progress and extend that the present building would be found too small for the needs of the society.

Rev. J. E. Starr nominated the officers of the Kingston society for the ensuing year. Before doing so, he delivered a very complete address on the aims and objects of the children's aid society, and as his address deserves a full presentation, it has been reserved for a later edition.

Edw. J. B. Pense moved a resolution of earnest thanks to the ladies of the society and home for signal public service, conducted with uncommon energy, coupled with special mention of Rev. J. R. Black whose labors as the society's agent had been invaluable, and whose continuance in office was a boon alike to the public interests and the society's comfort.

Rev. M. Macgillivray seconded the motion with great pleasure, adding generous approval of the work, whose value he had not been fully aware of until hearing the explanations just made at this meeting.

Mr. Black in returning thanks regretted he could not spare more time to devote to the work. The person holding his position with the society should be free of professional duties. The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Ryckman.
