GUNNING ACCIDENT.

Andrew McIntyre, Enterprise, May Lose His Beft Hand as a Result.

This forenoon a young man named Andrew McIntyre, aged eighteen years, and a resident of Enterprise was brought to the general hospital suffering from very severe injuries inflicted by the explosion of an old muzzle-loading shot gun. McIntyre had loaded the gun to shoot a dog, this morning, and it is supposed that the charge had not been home, but had caught some distance from the breech of the piece, hence the explosion. The thumb of the unfortunate young man's left hand was blown almost entirely off, hanging to the hand by a piece of skin only. The bones of the wrist were terribly shattered also. The thumb was removed immediatedly after the patient's arrival at the hospital. An endcavor will be made to save the hand, though whether or not it will be successful, cannot at present be determined, as the laceration is very great, and the wounds are burned and blackened by powder. The accident occurred at six o'clock this morning.

Miss Nellie Collier is visiting at Mrs. Perry's, Queen street.
