The human heart has hidden treasures. In secret kept, in silence sealed, The thoughts, the hopes, the dreams, the pleasures Whose charms were broken, if revealed. And days may pass in gay confusion And nights in noisy riotily, While, lost in fame's or wealth's illusion,

The memory of the past, may die. But there are hours of lonely musing? Such as in the evening silence come.

When soft as birds their pinions closing. The heart's best feelings gather home, Then, in our souls there seems to languish A tender grief that is no woe ; And thoughts that once wrung groams of anguish, Now cause some mild tears to flow.

Our own sharp griefs and wild sensations, The taste of other's antiering seem; Oh! when the heart is freshly blessing, How it longs for that time to be, When through the mist of years receding, Its woes but lives in reverie. And it can dwell on moonlight glimmer, On evening shades and loneliness.

And feelings, once as strong as passions,

Float softly back-a tided dream;

And while the sky grows dim and dimmer, Heed no untold wees of distress-Cnly a deeper impulse given By lonely hour and darkened room, To selemn thoughts that soar to heaven,
