WHAT BOYS READ. The Sort of Literature Whish Demoralizes Youth,

One of the messenger boys who carried press copy from the Horse Show sat in the gallery the other day reading a govel while the green hunters were jumping the bigh. hurdles in the ring below. The people in the boxes were applauding, and even calling out in their excited enjoyment of the contest, in the galleries up stairs, the spectators were shouting and waving their hats, and around the ring the grooms and stable boys cheered and burrahed for their favority horse or lockey, but the messenger boy never lifted his eyes from the book in his hands. His head was bent, his face was within a lew inches of the page, and her turned the leaves over with an impatient eigh at the wasted time in doing it. Some one was sufficiently interested to take the sook out. of his hands and read the title. It was "Wild Bill's Boy Fartner, or The Radakin's Secret " The nickel novel, of which this is a sample. is awfully and wonderfully made. It is written after a fixed fashion, and certain unities are always observed. In the first place, its title must consist of alliterations, and must be striking and suggestive. Such a title as "Cometh up as a Flower," or "A Woman's Reason," or "April Hopes," or "Robert Eismere" would not do. To suit the nickel novel the latter would have to read : "Ribert Eismere, the Rockless Roknown Assassin. All California is excited over the murder of John Ivett, the wealthy rancher of Merced county, and the subsequent developments which point to the guilt of his wife's family. It is a very singular and altogether very horrible case. The corpse was found in the morning at the door of the dwelling, the head crushed almost to a pulp by the blows of a bammer, and appearances indicated that the murderer had come and gone on horseback.

By a sort of common impulse the citi zens of that vicinity turned to the dear man's brothers in law with a fierce demand for their testimony. These are Jake and August Olsen, and the neighbors almost to a man declared that Jane Olsen. their mother, was the instigator. Mr Ivett was nearly 70 years old and his wife Sophie was but 30; yet his chances for life had lately seemed as good as hers, for she had been for some time in poor health and was in San Francisco for medical treat very nice young fellow. Her mother, however, compelled her to became an invalid. The case, say all the peighbors, is plain-what could be plainer? All parties went to work on this theory. and soon had circumstantial evidence enough to arrest the Olsena. The farmers declare that August Olsen did the deed. and that they will lynch him cost what it may; but Sheriff Warfield, of Merced county, is a wary and experienced old Cali fornian, and so there may be news of a serious scrimmage.

PLUCK OF A YOUNG GINL

She Clings to the Ties of a Treetle While a Train Sweeps Over. A young lady hanging to the edge of a treatle while an express train thunders ever her at thirty miles per hour is cer tainly in a condition to try her nerves, and that was the fix of Miss Norms Onken a Bloody Run trestle, near Cincinnati, th other day. Miss Orken, who lives on. Ridgeway avenue, Avontale, was walking on the track of the Cincinnati, Lebanon and Northern narrow gauge, and coming to the trestle and hearing no train supposed she could easily pass over it. She was half way over when a delayed train came at full speed. The treatle is there twenty feet or more above the rocky bed of the creek, and Miss Onken dared not risk a jump. So she swung herself over the side of the trestle and hung to the timbers with a death grip. As soon as they could stop the train the engineer and conductor ran back and lifted the lady from her perilous position. She was almost black in the face, her strength exhausted, and she could not have held on half a minute longer. The place has a bad reputation for accidents. Last July 4 an old colored man was knocked off the trestle and badly crushed, and three years ago there was a collision between freight trains, the engine of one of which still lies in the mud below. "Hannaford electric and automatic lighthouse't is the full title of an invention which comes from New Zealand, and is among the first fruits of English civilization and science in that far off Australasian land. Consul Connolly at Auckland has sent to the state department at Washington a sketch and description of it, with the enthusiastic indorsement of many practical engineers and electricians who have examined it. Mr. Hannaford claims that his machinery will send forth electric flashes plainly discernible for thirty miles The cupola revolves and the lamp with it, but the are within does not and is always broadside to one desired direction, the lens pulley at its back facing the land, so that flashes can be sent in that direction at will. The flash signals are arranged for the letters of the alphabet, so that any desired message can be sent, which is of great importance in case of shipwreck or war. The arc is automatic and does its own lighting or extinguishment to the minute. But the great novelty and most valuable feature is the wind mill attachment which generates the electricity and the storage of the latter to such ample amount that it would not run short of 15,000 candle power even in a six months'

The Wonderful Snow Plant. The snow plant which grows in the sierras at an altitude of 8,000 feet above sea level grows under deep banks of snow and flowers as soon as the snow melta. The flower stems consist of partly crystalfized sugar, and are said to taste when cooked sweeter but not unlike asparagus. The flower resembles the hyacinth, but is far more beautiful. This wonderful plant was discovered by the late Gen. Fremont in 1843.

An Episcopal Church on Wheels. Bishop Walker, of North Dakota, has for his present hobby a car which the Pullman company has made for him and which he facetiously dubs "The Roving Catholic Cathedral." The car is so con structed that it affords seats for eighty or more people, and contains a font, an altar, a lectern and a cabinet organ and whatever may be necessary for performing the rites and ceremonies of the Protestant Episcopal church. It will be the home of the bishop as he travels about his diocese. Notice will be sent many days in advance to the people of a ertain town announcing the date of the bishop's visit there. On the appointed day the car will arrive and be sidetracked. At the appointed hour the people will assemble in the peripatetic cathedral and enjoy a service that otherwise their community might never have.

ON SOAP, IN RELATION TO THE COMPLEXION.

FROM AN ARTICLE BY

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E., Lecturer on Physiology and Health Under the "Combe Trust;" Editor of "Health."

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me. I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap ' Not merely from personal use. can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical, for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps; hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water, I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of muchvaunted 'Fancy Seaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also

It is a succession of short pura graphs, the longest seldom running to over three lines, and the majority consisting of one brief straight line. There is no descriptive matter and no analysis of character,

Why She Liked Crowded Cars. A little aweet-faced, tender-eyed girl, with an older and plainer companion, got into a New York train one night, and wedged herself in among the crowd that was packed into the aisle of the car. Her attire and the little tin lunch box under her arm showed her to be a shop girl on her way home to supper, and her pretty, innocent looks interested many of the stern business men who saw her. One gentleman in particular called the attention of his companion to her fine eyes, and observed that he. face was a perfect index of the purity in her

The movement of the crowd soon brought the pretty girl quite near to where the gentleman was standing, and he leaned toward her in order to hear what she was saying to her friend. He thought to hear words of youthful simplicity, and his heart was warm with appreciation of such cleanness of heart in one whose environment could not be of the best. As he listened to catels the subject of the girl's remarks, the following words, spoken in a metallic voice, came from

"Say, Maggie, I like to strike a crowded car like this when I go home nights, because you get a chance to cuddle up to a good The soft hearted gentleman started back as though he had been struck in the face. A Good Fish Story. The steam whaler Beluga has arrived from Behring Sea, bringing the remarkable news of the recovery of a harpoon which had been thrown into a whale sixty years before . in the South Seas, says a San Francisco despaten to the Chicago Herald. Every whaling vessel has its name stamped on the barpoons it uses. Last August, in Behring Sea, the Beluga's crew killed a big whale, in which was found an old harpoon bearing the name Moctezuma on it. The head of the barpoon was perfectly preserved, but the shank had been eaten away close to the skin of the whale by the sait water.

The records show that the Mocteguma quit whaling in the South Seas sixty years ago. She was a New Bedford craft, and while lying idle at that port during the war she was bought by the Government and sent with other old hulks down to Conrieston Harbor and sunk at the entrance of the bay o break up blockade running. An Item About Gloves. As high authority as Miss Mantalini tells in Pall Mall Budget that gloves will be worn outside the sleeves again. The gauntlet and mousquetaire shapes, both slightly modified, will be the gloves most in vogue. The latter is furnished with a broad welt and a couple of buttons to make the task of putting on the glove easy. Russia leather gloves are and will be in much demand this season. In the matter of colors leather and brown and wine shades are the thing at present. More pro-

Reasons why S. Davis & Sons maintain the quality of their brands. It has taken the best part of a lifetime to establish them. They have spent thousands upon thousands of dollars to introduce them. Having obtained the confidence of the public they wish to merit a continuance of same. A deterioration of quality in their brands would not alone destroy the structure upon which they have spent their time, money and labor, but would result in a loss of that confidence the public have favored then with that money again spent in advertising to intro duce new brands could not purchase.
