Robson, telegraph clerk, and Alfred Cooper, night inspector, in the employ of the Great Eastern Railway Company, charge of manslaughter in connection with the railway catastrophe at Thorpe, last September, came to a close at the Norwich Assizes on the 7th of April. The jury acquitted Robson, but found Cooper guilty, commending him to mercy. risonment. An English paper in commenting on the above case says the lic will feel that the bringing home of the responsibility in this case increases chances of safety in railway travelling, and it will much tend to improve the displine of the whole service if railway ficials know that negligence, which results in calamities to others, is criminal and may be punished. Titles. - An exchange very sensible emarks: "It has often been a subject of remark that there are . more wearing military titles in the States than in any other country in the world. The absurdity of the extreme ! which their system has been carried is i lustrated forcibly in connection with trials in the Court of Justice where Counsel are referred to as "General" "Colonel" and the like, titles being seldom lower, however, than Colonel. There is to strong a disposition in this country t follow the American practice of calling voluntser and military officers by their military titles, which, as referred to no long ago, has been very properly condemned by General Smyth. The best way to go about putting a stop to the practic is for the press to ignore the military tles unless used in a military connection Any sensible man will be quite satisfied t be called plain mister. DESTROYING SLUGS. - Here is a method adopted to get rid of these troublesome insects, which last year were so very numerous in gardens and destroyed large quantities of tomatoe plants. A person got a bucketful of bran, and in the dusk of the evening he went along the places. where slugs abounded and put a small heap of bran on the borders, about 10 or 12 feet apart. Bran is something that slugs are fond of. Early next morning the person went over the ground where the heaps of bran lay with an empty pail, OUR FACILITIES to do first class work dust-pan and brush. The heaps will be found covered with slugs; the whole are ing our patrons with good goods and at mo swept into the dust-pan and emptied into the bucket, and by the time the operator has got through his walk, many hundreds if not thousands are captured. A week or two of such work, or even a day or two now and then will soon clear your garden
