> mote in a sunbeam. It may be that this is a sort of recollection on the part of the always to take it into account.

But does the scale actually tell us how much we weigh? It simply calculates the balance between two forces that are working against each other, the one tending to drag us down to the center of the earth and the other to send us spinning out into space. The pull of gravitation has the advantage by so many pounds, otherwise we should leave our happy homes in a hurry and start on a journey ing out into space to hobnob with comets and asteroids and other celestial wanderball in the hands of an expert pitcher. You have seen the experiment of swinging a pail of water over the head without spilling the water. The earth is giving us the same sort of a swing.

It is as if some giant were stationed at the point of space where the center of the earth is, with a string upward of 3,000 miles in length attached to us and were swinging us around at the end of it. This rate of circular motion is approximately 1,000 miles an hour. It is a pretty rapid swing, and the fact that on account this rapidity we have a considerable tend ency to take a long jump several thousand miles into space must make a considerable difference in the pressure when we step on the weighing machine. If the earth were to stop its whirling some day for a short time, we should all suddenly become heavy weights, and it is a question whether the ordinary weighing machine would be adequate to measure the tendency which our bodies would have to good deal more if it wasn't for the giant. swing given us by the planet upon which we are involuntary residents.
