CHARLES AND ELLEN KEAN.

Famous Actor's Quaint Attive and His Wife's Ample Hoopskirts. Clara Morris, in on article on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean in McClure's Magazine, gives a delightful description of the old couple off the stage. "Ellen and Charles were like a pair of old, old love birds -a little dull of eye, nor quite perfect in At- the preening of their somewhat rumpled plumage, but billing and cooing with all the persistency and satisfaction of their first caging. Their appearance upon the street provoked amusement, sometimes even excitement. I often saw drivers of drays and wagons pull up their horses and stop in the crowded streets to stare at them as they made their way toward the theater.

"Mrs. Kean lived inside the most astounding hoop that woman ever carried. Its size, its weight, its tilting power were is awful. Entrances had to be cleared of all chairs or tables to accommodate Mrs. Kean's hoop. People scrambled or slid sideways about her om the stage, swearimated at 2,000,000 baskets, one-half ing mentally all the time, while a sudden gasp from the front row or a groan from Including all stoppinges, the steamer Mr. Cathcart announced a tilt and a revelation of beelless slippers and dead white stockings.

THE FLORIDA RAZORBACK.

Becomes Most Valuable When Killed by Railway Train.

The Florida razorback is the hog indigenous to that climate and soil. He is usual'v large of limb and fleet of foot, being the only known porker that can outrum a darky. He has a tail of wondrous length, which while he is in active motion he twists into the tightest corkscrew, but with which while quietly feeding he raps his leathery sides much in the same manner that the docile cow uses her tail. He is self supporting. He earns his own living and thrives equal well in the high woods, in the flat woods, in the hummocks and in the marshes. He subsists upon anything he can find above the earth or underneath its surface. has a clear, farseeing eye and is very sensitive of hearing. Nature has equipped him with a snout almost as long as the beak of the wild pelican of Berneo, with which he can penetrate the earth many inches in quest of worms, snakes and insects. He is the most intelligent of all the logs and is likewise the most courageous. He has been known to engage in mortal combat with a coon for the possession of a watermelon and to rend asunder a barbed wire fence. He is so intelligent that when he lives in the towns he becomes as familiar with the railroad schedules as are the train dispatchers themselves and plies his vocation in great numbers about the railroad stations, and yet no train over ran over a razorback. Whenever the railroad companies are forced to pay for killing a hog it always proves to be a Berkshire, a guinea or some other fine breednever a razorback. He is too active and alert to be caught even by a locomotive. He is nervous, restless, energetic, and hence does not thrive well in pens.

Confined, he loses rather than gains flesh. He is always ripe for market, as his condition is as good in August as it is in January. His owner respects his intelligence, admires his nerve and is fond of him as food, for he may always be depended upon to afford the proverbial "streak of leau" with a very small "streak of fat." He is the king of hogs. He can be grown more profitably than any other known variety, since, as has been observed, he is energetic and intelligent enough to feed and clothe himself.

> "Then he deliberately changed his method of rendering bills. He went over his books and found that he had some $12,000 worth of unpaid accounts. He made out the bills and addressed them to the busbands or fathers of his customers, directing the bills to their offices. Within 60 days he had received $9,000 in checks. His invariable rule now is to send all his bills to the husbands, fathers or the male members of his customers familles. When no male member exists, he insists upon a cash transaction."
