KRUGER DISAPPOINTED

He Was At Bloemfontein Yesterday.

THE BOERS RAN TOO HARD.

BRITISH MAY HAVE NO FURTHER OPPOSITION.

In Their Advance to Bloemfontein —Roberts' Operations Failed in Their Main Object Because Boers Skipped Out—Delarey Trying to Collect Scattered Boers.

London, March 10.—Nothing of importance has been received concerning military movements in South Africa. It is pretty clear that Gen. Roberts' operations on March 7th failed in their main object, through the rapidity of the Boer retreat. The sixth division was intended to turn the Boer left, while the seventh and ninth divisions enclosed their right, the cavalry meantime shutting off the line of retreat by closing the road to Bloemfontein.

Gen. French on Friday was ten miles ahead of the main army, and he reported that there were no Boers in front of him. The impression grows that there will be no further opposition to the advance to Bloemfontein. The British have destroyed a quantity of captured ammunition, including explosive bullets contained in boxes stamped, "Manufactured for the British government."

Boers Ran Too Hard.

C.F. Hands, the Daily Mail correspondent with Gen. Roberts, says: "The assault of Poplar Grove was rather a partridge drive than a battle," and then he explains: "We, however, gained a complete victory and drove the Boers from every position and knocked another fifteen miles off the distance to Bloemfontein, but failed to inflict a crushing punishment, because the Boers started too early and ran too hard."

The position was this: "The Boers occupied the kopjes on both sides of the Modder river, above Makauw's drift and extending for twenty miles in two crescents, and joining at a flat topped kopje, which advances centrally before the first ridge, and then comes a long, gently sloping plain, over which the Boers expected us to advance and attack without cover, according to precedent. They had constructed elaborate trenches at the fott of the kopje, mounted guns at the top, and prepared positions behind boulders for direct frontal attacks. All marching was done at dead of night, with the cavalry making a wide detour. Roberts' intention was to turn the Boer positions successively. The left horn of their crescent was engaged by our cavalry, who, supported by artillery, flanked and headed the enemy towards the river, thus cutting off retreat.

"The Boers did not need much driving, for as soon as they saw they were being flanked they ran like the wind from one position to another, leaving their tents standing and food cooking in their various camps. Gen. French's cavalry heroically endeavored to catch them, but the circuit was wide, and there was fighting all the way. In the afternoon when the opportunity arrived, the horses were done up. Delarey is supposed to command the Boers, and is endeavoring to collect his scattered forces at Abrahan's Kraal, thirty miles to the rear. Maydone, the correspondent of the News, was slightly wounded accompanying the cavalry."

Joubert Making Defensive Line.

Pretoria, via Lorenzo Marques, March 7.—The Boer commander at Van Reenens Pass reports that there has been no advance of the British since the republican forces retreated from the vicinity of Ladysmith. Commandant Gen. Joubert has been actively organizing a defensive line in the Biggarsberg range.

White Thanked Buller.

London, March 10.—A despatch to the Daily News, dated Ladysmith, March 9th, says that Gen. Hunter's division will advance beyond Ladysmith. The other troops are preparing for immediate movement as circumstances develop. The Boers are reported to be still holding the Biggarsberg range in considerable force, but they are sending their stores to the rear.

Gen. White has gone south. It is understood that he is en route to East London.

The Standard's Ladysmith correspondent says that Gen. White, before leaving, thanked Gen. Buller, on behalf of the garrison, for his successful efforts to relieve him.

The eighth division has been under orders to embark for several weeks, but these orders, so far as the artillery contingent is concerned, have been recalled, lord Roberts having reported that no more artillery from home is necessary.

This is the first pause in reinforcements since the war began. Sir Redvers Buller, second in command in the field, and lord Wolseley are understood also to consider that no more artillery is needed. Lord Roberts has altogether 452 guns, including siege pieces.

Not in the Actual Fighting.

Poplar Grove, March 8.—The Canadians with the Gordon Highlanders, the Cornwalls, and the Shropshire regiments, forming a part of the nineteenth brigade, took an active part in the engagement at Osfontein to-day. The Canadian troops occupied the left bank of the Modder river, where were also the Cornwalls and Shropshires, the Gordons keeping the right flank.

There were no casualties among the Canadian troops, and our men saw very little of the active fighting. The army advanced to Osfontein on the 6th. There the enemy were found to be in force, about six thousand men occupying trenches five miles in length along the kopjes south of the Modder river. After a few hours of shelling by the British the Boers evacuated their positions. This evacuation was brought about by a flank movement by the British cavalry, supported by forty-two guns, which force had moved rapidly south and got between the Boers and their reinforcements.

Deprived of support, it became impossible for the Boers to maintain their position in their left lines of trenches and they hastily retreated. The pursuing cavalry was unable to come up with them before they had made good their escape. The Shropshires, who occupied a position in advance of the Canadians along the left bank, charged a kopje held by the enemy and captured a gun. The fight was over before the Canadians had an opportunity to come to close action.

The health of the regiment has improved, and there are now few in the hospitals.

Mafeking Still Besieged.

Bloemfontein, March 8, (10 p.m.)—News has just reached here from Petrusberg that a Boer scouting party, while reconnoitering in Koodoosrand district, captured 150 horses belonging to the enemy. They found that the British had remained stationary since the Poplar Grove engagement.

The latest intelligence from Mafeking shows that that town is subjected to a continuous fierce bombardment by the Boer besieging force.

No important news has been received from Natal or the Orange River or Vaal River fronts. Heavy rains are falling over the Orange Free State and the Transvaal.

Impossible to Defend.

Cape Town, March 9.—A despatch from Poplar Grove, under yesterday's date, says: "The Boers retreated to Abrahams' Kraal last night, where a strong commando of Bloemfontein police interrupted their flight. The Boers placed two guns in position, but the place is impossible to defend, and a fiasco similar to that of Paardeberg is anticipated."

Kruger Bitterly Disappointed.

President Kruger was at Bloemfontein at noon yesterday, and it is reported that he pressed the engagement and urged the burghers to make a courageous defence of their country. Afterwards he expressed bitter disappointment at the feeble resistance that had been offered to the British.

A Bitter Attack.

Toronto, March 10.—Mr. Matheson continued his onslaught on the Ontario government in the legislature yesterday afternoon, and painted a depressing picture of the condition of the provincial finances. According to the speaker things were running all behind, and the exchequer was being depleted in a most alarming manner—this despite the reassuring report of the financial experts, which was in every member's hands. Mr. Matheson allows sheriff Brown of West Elgin, on the ground of having permitted strangers to come into the riding and act as deputy returning officers, and insisted that the government should have promptly dismissed him. This strong statement elicited a protest from premier Ross against the vilification of a public officer whose conduct had been under review by the judges at the election trial, but who had not been reported by them for any offence. Hon. J. R. Stratton will be the next speaker for the government when the debate is resumed on Tuesday.

Mr. Whitney introduced his bill to amend the election act, which contains a large number of proposed changes.

Asks Them to Wait.

London, March 10.—I learn on excellent authority that Mr. Chamberlain has strongly protested to the Australian government against granting concessions to the Eastern extension company, at present, asking them to postpone the matter until they have learned what the Pacific cable board has to propose. The Eastern company's Australian campaign was very skilfully conceived and carried out, but it is probable that they will build the African cable in any event without concessions regarding the Australian land lines.

Trunk Line Classification.

New York, March 10.—All the recommendations made by the Trunk line classification committee as a result of its recent meetings, which were accepted by the railroads composing the association, went into effect to-day. The principal changes are the abolition of the difference between rates for carloads and less than carloads and the modification of the rule against wood-pulp packages. In the latter case a rule has been adopted for an increase in rates of ten per cent. on freight packed in pulp fibre board cases.

Shock Killed the Father.

Quebec, March 10.—One of the soldiers who died from wounds at Paardeberg was Pte. A. Roy, of the first Canadian contingent, formerly of the 89th battalion. Roy was the son of Pierre Roy, dit Lauzier, of St. Arsene, Temiscouata county. The first information received of the boy's enlistment with the Canadians was in a letter written at Belmont. Upon learning of his death, his father was struck with apoplexy and died a few minutes later.

Will Punish Rioters.

Paris, March 10.—M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, is said to have written a private letter to Sir Edmund J. Monsen, the British ambassador, expressing deep regret at the Bordeaux disturbances on Wednesday, and promising that the necessary measure will be taken to punish the offenders and to prevent a repetition of such an incident.

Labor day will fall on September 3rd this year.

PEACE IS TALKED OF.

But Only One Kind Of Terms Possible.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER

KRUGER'S INFLUENCE SAID TO BE WANING.

If the Transvaal Won't Act The Orange Free State May Cut Away and Seek its Own Arrangements — Pretoria Despatches Seem to Suggest a Stiff Upper Lip.

London, March 10.—While the official and semi-official telegrams from Pretoria speak emphatically of the stiffening of the Boer resistance in face of reverses, and the prevalence of a spirit of desperate resolve, several English correspondents continue to declare that not only are the Free State Boers demoralized and anxious for peace, but the Transvaalers are wavering, and seeking a settlement by which they may escape a prolongation of the exhausting struggle. President Kruger and president Steyn are credited with approaching the British government with a proposal of the terms on which they are prepared to negotiate for peace.

The Daily Mail's Pretoria correspondent, in a despatch dated March 8th, and sent by way of Lorenzo Marques, the message being prefaced by the words, "Censored by the Boer government," says: "Conversations I have had with the highest state officers show that the Boers consider that the time has now arrived for clearing up the misunderstanding and misrepresentations from which they believe the war emanated. They deny the existence of any Dutch conspiracy. They assert that they occupied extra territorial positions merely on strategic grounds, while the abstinence of the colonial Dutch from participation in the hostilities demonstrates their unshaken loyalty. If England is waging a war of conquest the republics will fight to a finish, otherwise they believe that a plain statement of the British intentions will reveal a basis for negotiations, now that England's prestige is repaired."

Presidents Kruger and Steyn conferred at Bloemfontein on Monday on the incorporation of the above representations in a telegram to lord Salisbury. The preservation of the independence of the two republics is a sine qua non.

The Times' despatch from Lorenzo Marques stating that president Kruger told the burghers at Glencoe that he believed the war would end within a month, and the telegram to the same paper from Poplar Grove declaring that the Free State burghers are demanding the submission of that republic, are the other contributions to the latest peace talk. The vast bulk of opinion in Great Britain continues to be wholly opposed to peace on any terms except the unconditional surrender of the two republics, and that is the same view that is held by the government. Though this fact hardly needs assertion, is shown in the following note which is prominently printed this morning in the Morning Standard, a ministerial organ:

"We have reason to believe that an authoritative announcement will shortly be made by her majesty's government, reaffirming the impossibility of conceding any terms of peace to the two South African republics which would involve the perpetuation of the political and military independence that has led to the present costly and sanguinary conflict."

Rumors have been current in the lobbies of parliament for two days that republics have made representations looking to peace, but that these are inadmissible. Members who are acquainted with the Orange Free State express confidence that in any case the Free State will shortly break away from the Transvaal and make an arrangement on its own account.

In addition to the foregoing rumors the English correspondents in South Africa report that president Kruger's personal influence with the Transvaal Boers is waning. Old political animosities against him and commandant Gen. Joubert, who is also vice-president of the Transvaal, are cropping out again. One story, that is supposed to have reached Berlin from Johannesburg, declares that these differences have culminated in Gen. Joubert resigning his command, and in a decision by president Kruger to assume the active leadership of the burgher forces, in the field. All this comes from interested sources, which obviously discounts it, but it is the feature in a section of to-day's London papers.

Says War is Ending.

London, March 10.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, when explaining to the bankers the terms of the new loan, gave them an intimation that the government considered the end of the war near.

"Since the estimates were prepared," he said, "events have taken place that have changed the situation, and probably not all the money will be required."

Whatever the government may know or intend, unofficial opinion seems every where to think that the Boer power is collapsing.

Proposals Are Premature.

London, March 10.—The Telegraph says this morning that the rumor of peace proposals on the part of the republican governments is premature. This is the view of the best informed. The subject is ignored by the Times and other of the prominent papers, while the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, which is more or less of an anti-war organ, claims high authority for a denial that any peace overtures have been received at the foreign office. The backbone of the sudden peace talk seems to be the Osfontein report that the Free State burghers are importuning Steyn to end the war at Lorenzo.

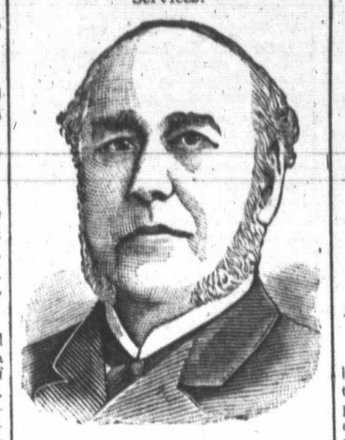
PAUNCEFOTE EULOGIZED.

House of Lords Pay Tribute to His Services.



LORD PAUNCEFOTE.

London, March 10.—In the house of lords yesterday lord Newton advocated the retention of lord Pauncefote as British ambassador at Washington and asked whether in view of the valuable services of lord Pauncefote, the advisability of prolonging his tenure of office would not be considered.

Lord Salisbury said: "We have every cause to express to lord Pauncefote our gratitude that at a critical time and when his remarkable experience and singular aptitude for the peculiar duties of his office render it desirable that he should continue in it, he has consented to do so."

Lord Kimberley, the liberal leader in the house of lords, associated himself with the eulogy passed upon lord Pauncefote.

A Coming Suit Over Timber Berths.

Ottawa, March 10.—One of the greatest legal fights in the history of lumbering in the Ottawa valley is that which may probably ensue over the sale of a quantity of timber limits on the Sueyo river and adjacent to it in 1885, owned by McCoskin & Co. The sale took place at the Russell house on October 20th, 1885, and the berths were said to have been bought in by Hamilton Bros., for somewhere in the neighborhood of $300,000. These limits are now said to be in the possession of the J. R. Booth company. The heirs of the McCosken estate, who reside at Bryson, Que., are likely to sue for the recovery of the property on the grounds that it was wrongfully sold without the consent of the heirs.

A Heinous Crime.

Marion, Md., March 10.—Mrs. Henry Wise, wife of a farmer, was attacked by a tramp yesterday afternoon while her husband was absent in the field. The man seized a towel, bound her hands behind her back, administered chloroform, and left her lying unconscious, where she was found by her little daughter, when the latter returned from school. A posse captured the tramp, who gave his name as Fred Dunker, of Quebec. The mob made desperate attempts to lynch the prisoner, but were kept at bay by revolvers in the hands of the police.

Goes as a Private.

Hastings, Ont., March 10.—James A. Fraser left here this morning to join the contingent which the government is sending out to take the places of those killed and wounded in South Africa. The whole village marched en masse in procession, preceded by the Citizens' band, to the station to give their fellow townsman a fitting send-off. Mr. Fraser, who leaves a very prosperous hardware business here, resigned his commission as lieutenant in the 40th battalion so as to be able to take his place with the other brave Canadian boys at the front.

Quarantine Removed.

Toronto, March 10.—All danger from the small-pox epidemic at Toronto Junction is believed to be over. The quarantine which has been kept on the Taylor house for the past thirty-three days, was raised yesterday, and the inmates, numbering in all fifteen persons, received their liberty. This morning the quarantine on the Adams house was raised and those who have been isolated there were released. To-night a number of the patients at the isolation hospital will be allowed out, leaving only ten, all of whom are improving quickly.

Killed by a Bull.

Chatham, Ont., March 10.—William Stover, Oldfield, Chatham township, went out to the barn to do his evening's chores. Not returning for an unusual length of time, a search was instituted and Mr. Stover was found dead in the barn yard. He had been killed by a bull which was running loose in the yard. Mr. Stover, was sixty-nine years of age, and leaves a widow, one son and a daughter.

Dean Smith's health has been greatly improved by his trip.

Swell English Suitings

Just now you can pick from an assembly of the smartest suitings, and do it, too, without going beyond a moderate price limit. Choosing when assortments are complete has advantages, but when price inducements are added there's a double force to hurry you to the deciding point. More enthusiasm at present, about suitings than we ever remember of, and it looks as if the active demand now would bring a scarcity later on. Anyway you can't be sure of buying at the same prices, because manufacturers say that repeat orders will only be accepted on the advanced scale Come and enjoy the pleasure of seeing the new things.

Miss Ogg the manager of our Ladies' Custom Tailoring Department," will cheerfully show you all the latest fashion plates, for spring, and give all necessary information regarding prices and styles. Never in the history of the Dress Goods business in this city has any three stores ever shown the variety and magnificent collection we show now of these goods. A look will convince you of this fact. Come and see, if only to see.
