By request David Murray, accountant, strong interference game." was present to offer advice on auditing the county books for 1897. He answered various questions put by the councillors and explained in full in what condition the books should be left at the close of 1897.

Mr. Avery thought it advisable to go over the books for the past few years and have the several items entered, not now appearing, in case of need for futu e reference. The feeling of the council was that this work would involve too much expense. Mr. Murray stated that a balance sheet could be easily made out up to the end of the late treasurer's term, showing what was to the credit of the county.

After considerable quiet conversation M Avery moved, seconded by T. Dawson, that I) Murray be appointed to audit the books at a salary of $125. D McRea thought the ealary a little eteep, as Mr. Murray, having made the special audit of the books up to June, 1897, the new audit would merely cover the books since that date.
