THEY ARE ALL DOING WELL. Members of the Colony Happy and Pros

Fenwick Taylor, a former resident of this city, now located at Minneapolis, Minn., writing to a friend in this city states that the colony of Kingstonians there are all doing well and are managing to more than "hold their own" with all competitors. The winter weather experienced there has been remarkable. to the beginning of the current month little or no snow had fallen and the dust was still flying about the streets with every little gust of wind. The temperature kept high, and was mindful of weather experienced in Kingston in the early epring. change of temperature occurred on the 2nd inst., however, and the thermometer suddenly dropped to twenty-two degrees below zero, but next day there was a return of warmth with every appearance of its continuation. Bicycles have been in use every day the weather would permit of their being ridden, and it was seldom, indeed, they had to be left indoors. Of course there is sufficient ice for skating, but the sport is unattractive in being deprived of wintry accompaniments. A large number of young men there have Klondicitis. Many have already gone northward and more are preparing to Patrick, but the reversed position follow. The writer had been pressed by made about many things, but never yet hymn book instead of the new Presbyterian name's Patrick — and that's the way hind. He thinks many who go out to the you're to put it down." Patrick refused Klondyke will not return to ivilization. Many of the gold seekers purchase their outfits right at home from merchants they know, thereby saving more than sufficient to pay for the transportation of their goods

The writer expected a visit from his father and eister at an early date. There are plenty of growing towns in Minnesota not far distant from Minneapolis which afforded good openings for young and energetic physicians. Of course, as might be expected in a young and growing country, there are numbers of practising physicians not worthy the name, but to good bona lide medical men the country abounds in openings that will prove profitable. The writer, a former member of the team, hopes to hear of Queen's hockeyists meeting with success in the season's schedule of matches.
