METHODIST CONVENTION.

Shepherd Psalm

The convention of Methodist min isters opened in Brock street church man, chairman of the district, presided. There were present Revs. Dr. Jackson, E. Crummy, B.A., J. Grenfell, S. Shibley, George Rogers, Thomas Meredith G. W. Snell, W. Williamson, J. Shortt, Hammond, Orser and E. I Kelly. The attendance of ministers and friends was small owing to the stormy weather. After devotional exercises the Rev. Eber Crummy, B.A. B.D., gave an expository sermon on the scholarly and critical study of the progressed the old time pastoral presented itself with renewed beauty and expressiveness. The preacher phasized the fact that the psalm shows us the discovery, by the composer, the similitude between that of the life of the eastern shepherd, in two of its relations, and the relations of the Lord to the human soul. The relations of the shepherd here brought before us in illustration were, first to the sheep spring. He goes to the vicinity of Dawson and then to society. As the one shep. City as a self-supporting missionary. herding the sheep he provides luxuriant and safe pasturage, and in time of impending danger, protects and delivers. death actual, but to the haunting tainous regions of the western states. He shadows of danger that oppress the heart. Then we are introduced to the relation of the shepherd to society as regards the ancient and binding custom of hospitality and protection. The east ern sheep must receive the fleeing fugitive, whose tife is in danger, must entertain and protect him for the space of two days and a night. In the psalm we see the hunted fugitive feasting ing the courage of his convictions. He avengers of blood, who represent, may to the force of evil habit and the They quickly stop drains on the system that say shadows of conscious guilt. Then in beautiful Hebrew parallelism he looks They cure nervousness, despondency and all forth again from his safe retreat and sees no longer the avengers of blood, but God's argels of goodness and mercy Now he dwelleth not in the moving tent, but the stable house, not simply for the legal breathing space of respite but forever. An undercurrent of deep spiritual ap preciation manifested itself during the discourse and made it to be as a window into heaven. The sermon was followed by kindly criticism and discussion. Dr. Ryckman emphasized the present day need of scholarly exposition in the puls as the ice got so bad during the night they pit and spoke of the sermon just de- could not fetch it back. At Collin's Ferry, livered as a model of excellence in that below here, there was crossing for a few regard. Dr. Jackson cordially agreed in such sentiments and gave of his own experience in the matter.

Rev. W. Williamson preferred to be gard the fourth verse of the psalm as referring to death, and could not agree that consciousness of guilt could pursue the man who enjoys the presence of Ged. Several other brethren took part in what proved to be a most enjoyable and helpful discussion. Rev. George Rogers concluded the meeting hold at Fine View on Friday night and was with prayer.

The Rev. Dr. Jackson presided at the evening session and introduced Rev. J. . Cure both my lungs were badly affected. One day I met Dr. MacKenzie who asked me what I was taking. I told him, and how it was helping me; he said: "Keep right on taking it, for it may cure you." I did, and am strong and healthy today.
